BRICKER'S AIDS WORK TO STEM TIDE OF DEWEY

Republican Omens Are Analyzed.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

The outstanding impression gained by one who comes freshly upon the Republican national convention scene is that of a large aggregation of party leaders who are opposed to Gov. Dewey of New York, but look forward to nominating him for President next week with every manifestation of enthusiasm.

On every side in the lobbies of the Stevens and Blackstone hotels, where the arriving leaders are housed, one encounters national committeemen and state chairmen whose preference for the nomination is Gov. Bricker of Ohio, but who report their delegations preponderantly for Dewey. They deplore the overcautiousness of Bricker in getting into the fight, which enabled Dewey to run away with the ball.

There are leaders such as Joseph N. Pew of Pennsylvania, who is known to be first of all for Sen. Taft of Ohio and next for Gov. Bricker, but who expects his delegation to vote for Dewey, perhaps on the first ballot. In much the same position is Col. R. B. Creager, Texas national committeeman, who was Taft's floor manager at Philadelphia four years ago and is known to be partial to Bricker today, but whose delegation by a large majority is for Dewey.

Strong Dewey Tide Running.

There are Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa leaders who prefer Bricker, but think there is no stemming the tide running in favor of Dewey. There are the Minnesotans for Stassen, who will line up eventually for Dewey.

The general opinion among the Republican bigwigs is that Dewey will be nominated, probably next Wednesday on the first or the second ballot. The first ballot will be a testing of Dewey and anti-Dewey strength. If a bandwagon stampede to Dewey should develop on that ballot, there will be no need of another roll call.

If there is no nomination on the first ballot, the favorite sons will fall away on the second, and the actual strength of Dewey and Bricker will be revealed. The Dewey bandwagon might run to a successful finish on that roll call. That's the ballot which the followers of Bricker expect to prove the undoing of Dewey and to set the Ohio governor upon the path to victory.

Taft Folk Have Answer.

There is only an off chance of a deadlock developing in the balloting, in the opinion of most of the leaders, but if both Dewey and Bricker should be stymied there would be a strong movement to nominate Sen. Taft. It has been commonly remarked that Sen. Taft is the ablest man in the Republican party and the hardest to elect—or

BRIDGE EXPERT TELLS WHERE SKILL COUNTS MOST; IT'S AT POKER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—More skill is required in playing poker than in any other card game, with contract bridge second, Hubert Phillips, international bridge player, testified today in a London gaming house trial.

In a test case to determine whether poker is a game of skill or chance rests the issue of the legality of poker playing in British clubs.

Phillips, who is also an author and journalist, said that in a certain number of games an inferior poker player has no chance against a skilful player.

Three women and a man, accused of operating a gaming house, all pleaded not guilty, asserting that poker was a game of skill.

Foreign Plank Is Main G.O.P. Platform Issue

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

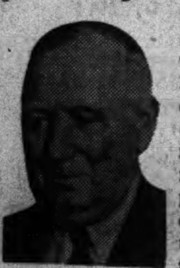
Formulation of a foreign relations plank dealing with America's place in world affairs after the war is won loomed as No. 1 subject of discussion yesterday when the resolutions committee of the Republican national convention met to organize. Protection of sovereignty and national interests in post-war coöperation with other nations to preserve peace is the major question of impending debate.



H. E. Spangler.

More than 60 members selected in advance by state delegations now on the scene elected Sen. Taft of Ohio as chairman. At the outset, National Chairman Spangler advised the committee to keep the G. O. P. platform short and confined to fundamentals.

This idea of terseness was echoed by Sen. Taft, Sen. Brooks of Illinois, who nominated Taft, and others.

In Spirit of the Constitution.

"Let's keep it down to reasonable length," said Spangler. "If we can get into it the spirit of the men in Philadelphia when they wrote the Constitution, that is what the nation wants."

Miss Mary H. Donlon of New York was elected vice chairman and Mrs. Ernest Griffin of Illinois as secretary.

Until the convention meets Monday, the committee has informal status, but in advance hearings it plans to dispose of many preliminaries.

The G. O. P. Mackinac charter of last September, which stressed national sovereignty in post-war coöperation with other nations, is basis of a suggested plank written by Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan as head of one of the eight Mackinac subcommittees.

Fundamental Themes Drafted.

Chairman Taft announced that the chairmen of all eight subgroups would appear Friday to present their conclusions. These relate to the fundamental themes, such as post-war rehabilitation, return of war time industries to peace time production, elimination of burocratic inroads upon individual freedom and initiative, and restoration of government in conformity with the Constitution, Bill of Rights, and statutory laws.

The Vandenberg plank is said to have been shown to Gov. Dewey of New York, who found it acceptable tho too wordy. It has been approved by the five other members of the subcommittee. Vandenberg, who is to fly to Chicago tonight, described the draft as embodying the ideas of the Mackinac nationalist utterance on foreign policy, boiled down.

When it comes to final drafting of the plank, it appeared yesterday, it may be submitted to both Dewey and Bricker, as the two leading candidates, for their approval.

Oppose Surrender of Sovereignty.

The Mackinac G. O. P. charter declared for a plan of post-war coöperation to preserve peace that will not surrender America's freedom of action and sovereignty to any international agency that may be set up.

The committee began public hearings immediately, the first witness being Francis A. Adams of Evanston, who presented a tariff plea for rayon and chemical interests. M. Shakespeare of Kalamazoo, Mich., urged a campaign against hidden taxes; Dr. Phillip R. White, listed as a staff member of Rockefeller institute, spoke for white collar workers; O. L. Sprague of Milwaukee, Wis., urged amendments in the railway retirement act.

Others appearing included Fred J. Libby of Washington, D. C., speaking for the National Council for the Prevention of War; Edgar G. Brown of Chicago, representing the National Negro council and advocating abolition of the poll tax in southern states.

Nazis Use New Type Rocket to Hit Britain

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—The Germans are using a new type of robot which is slightly larger and faster than the square wing type first employed, according to a British flyer who has seen both types. The new version has wings which "sweep back."

The flyer said the robots come in at about 2,500 to 3,000 feet by day, somewhat lower by night, and that they are being shot down now as close as 100 yard range. Most of them blow up, he said. Others, with their gyroscopes apparently damaged, perform spectacular aerobatics all over the sky before crashing.

The British flyer said the robot resembled a flame with wings sprouting from it and that when a hit is scored there is a red flash and the attacking plane sometimes is covered with blazing oil. He said that nothing but the fastest fighter planes were able to overtake the robots.

Attack Launching Areas.

The fight against Nazi robot planes follows two main courses. Allied fighter planes patrol routes which the flying bombs are known to have followed, while allied bombers carry out heavy raids on areas from which the robots are known to be launched. Despite all countermeasures, some robots manage to slip thru and explode in various places in southern England. Some of the bombs dropped on England today.

Our bombers attacked 10 known launching bases in the Pas-de-Calais area yesterday after crews taking part were given a special briefing during which scale models were shown of the well protected and camouflaged launching points.

The British Broadcasting corporation announced without confirmation tonight that American troops advancing up the Cherbourg peninsula captured several launching sites. Technical experts were reported dispatched to examine the installations.

One squadron of pilots flying Tempest planes, Britain's newest fighters, said it had downed many of the pilotless planes.

No Planes Lost.

It was said no allied planes so far have been lost in these attacks. A three second burst in most instances has been found sufficient either to explode or bring down the robots.

London papers today carried diagrammatic drawings of the new German weapon as issued by the air ministry. An explosive charge amounting to about one ton is carried in the nose. According to eyewitnesses, when power is cut off, the robot glides briefly and then noses down in a vertical dive. Altho the robot strikes with a terrific force, the explosive power in most cases seems largely lateral.

BOMB SINKS JAP SHIP AND BLOWS BACK NEWS ABOUT WHOLE CONVOY

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—A Japanese ship that was blown up by a bomb in the Pacific, the army disclosed today, delivered its log and papers to an attacking plane.

Army A-20 planes flying in pairs went in to attack a convoy off Wewak, New Guinea. The pilot of a wing plane, realizing he was too far behind his lead plane and might get caught in a bomb blast, swerved to the right and flew parallel to a ship under attack. His speed carried him close, however, as the lead plane's bombs exploded. Debris from the ship filled the air. On returning to his base, the pilot found the ship's log, papers, cargo listing, and the names of convoy personnel lodged in the air intake of the plane's cooling system.

Two motor and two patrol vessels were sunk in the attack.

Rocket 'Organ Pipes' Peal Death to Nazis

New York, June 21 (AP).—One of the ingenious new weapons successfully used by the allies in the European invasion was the spectacular LCR [landing craft, rockets], known jokingly in the trade as "the expendable battleship." Description of it was permitted today for the first time.

The LCR is a tank landing craft hull fitted with a series of explosive rocket guns designed to lay waste any given stretch of beach. Seen at a little distance, its deck looks like a stack of organ pipes laid row on row, pointing forward at a fixed angle.

The hold, which ordinarily would contain tanks, carries the necessary ammunition. The whole contrivance is controled from an asbestos and steel shelter on the stern.

Crew Has to Flop.

The operator, clad in fireproof clothing, can set off the rockets electrically singly, in series or all at once in one great shattering broadside.

Since the rockets are at a fixed angle, a few single ranging rounds are fired as the craft approaches the beach. Then when it is directly on the target area, the whole lot is fired, usually in two series.

The explosion and recoil are so tremendous that to fire all at once would risk breaking the back of the ship. So great is the fire and shock that all members of the crew except the operator go below and throw themselves flat after battening down all hatches.

Used in Italy.

The full broadside is described as heavier than that of the battleships Nelson or Rodney, each of which has nine 16 inch guns.

In most cases in the Sicilian landings, where LCR's got their first big chance, they did not get a lot of use. Later they performed with terrifying effect when the eighth army leaped the Messina straits to Italy.

Beach mines, barbed wire entanglements, machine gun nests, and any living thing on the beach simply disappear under the scorching fire of the LCR, which precedes the landing party.

HAND TO HAND FIGHTING RAGES AS YANKS GAIN

Set Final Hour for Nazis' Surrender.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 22 [Thursday]—(AP).—An ultimatum to the German garrison of Cherbourg to surrender by 9 a. m. today, British time [2 a. m. Chicago time], was broadcast this morning by the allied army field radio station in Normandy. The broadcast was recorded here by the London Daily Sketch.

"If you do not stop the fight now, you will never see your homeland again," the ultimatum said. "Your situation is desperate. Thousands of planes are waiting for the signal to rain death on you. Guns of the allied navies are aimed at you. You have no other way out than to capitulate.

"Should you, the commandant, not surrender, you will bear full responsibility for the lives of your men. We give you until 9 a. m. today, June 22, to decide."

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 22 (Thursday).—American troops last night were fighting their way to Cherbourg's suburbs with hand to hand clashes around the inner ring of the port defenses. They had seized an arc of high ground overlooking the harbor.

Messages from correspondents on the Cherbourg front said the Yanks had smashed all the inner defenses of the city and that on all sides Cherbourg was tightly encircled by troops. Reënforcements were pouring in to increase the pressure and fall of the port appeared to be only a matter of hours.

Make New Gains.

Supreme headquarters in its midnight bulletin said the area held by the enemy around Cherbourg was "steadily diminishing."

Americans, as far as it was learned here, had not yet taken any of the strong defenses surrounding Cherbourg. Altho advance patrols had penetrated between these points, it was doubted that this had been done with any great strength.

1,500 Yards from Dock.

Radio Algiers said, however, that American troops were fighting within 1,500 yards of the port area of the naval base and that to the southwest the Americans were assaulting Fort Octeville, 1,200 yards from the Bassin du Commerce waterfront. Another force was attacking Fort du Roule west of the railway station, the radio said.

The Germans are known to have batteries of artillery at Roule. Roule mountain is 450

PROGRESS—American infantry smashes into Cherbourg's southern fringes. The port's defenders toil to wreck its harbor with demolitions. Coastal roads held by the Germans under artillery fire. Heavy fighting continuing south of Tilly-sur-Seulles between British, Canadians, and Germans. French patriots reported increasingly hampering German troop operations, particularly in the Brittany area south of the present battle area.

Put Jap Isles in U. S. Hands, Aussie Asks

New York, June 21 [Special].—Complete United States possession of Japanese mandated islands, as well as joint British-American-Australian control of strategic military bases on other islands, are "completely necessary" after the war to guarantee peace in the Pacific, Keith Murdoch, Australian publisher, said in an interview today.

Without such a joint defense barrier against the Japanese, the European communities in the Pacific and China herself will always face the threat of extirpation, even after the Japs are defeated, Murdoch added. And the west coast of America, he said, will never be safe.

Murdoch predicted the European war will end in November, if all goes well. But the allies, he added, must plan at least on another two years of the "grimmest fighting" before Japan is beaten.

Must Be Thrashed.

Moreover, he said, leaders in England "completely realize the necessity not only of defeating Japan but of thrashing her soundly." Plans, he said, are already under way to move British divisions to the Pacific theater as soon as Hitler is defeated.

Murdoch, who is chairman and managing director of the Melbourne Herald and its affiliated papers, paid high tribute to America's fighting forces in Australia during the interview.

"We have a very great sense of gratitude toward your men," he said. "If they hadn't come, we would have the Japs among us today. We particularly admire the American navy that sent out small task forces and walloped overwhelming Jap forces.

"All Australia would like to see America increase its trade interests and possessions in the Pacific. The Japanese mandated islands must be completely in American hands, for that is a barrier extending far out into the Pacific, and if strongly held by a democracy will give security to the European communities as well as the west coast of America itself.

Important to Australia.

"This is so important from the Australian angle that we hope America will regard it as important from her angle."

So far as other Pacific islands are concerned, Murdoch would favor not only joint American-British military bases but also joint advisory councils which, however, "would not disturb the actual sovereignty of the existing powers."

"We feel different from Europe," he explained. "We have had a brutal soldiery come upon us.

"Something more than an international court or a league of nations is required for the Pacific."

America's decision to leave the Philippines was "a great disaster to the Europeans in Asia and to China, too," according to Murdoch. He expressed the hope that this country would establish defense bases there after the war.

Army Vehicle for Each 7 Yanks, Says General

New York, June 21 (AP).—The United States army now owns one motor vehicle for each seven soldiers, Brig. Gen. W. R. McReynolds of the quartermaster general's office said tonight. The army has a standing requirement for at least 2 million trained drivers, he told the New York university center for safety education.

U. S. CARRIERS CATCH ENEMY OFF MARIANAS

Americans Advance in Saipan Drive.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, June 21 (AP).—American carrier planes attacked a strong Japanese fleet, including aircraft carriers and battleships, midway between Luzon and Saipan before dusk Monday in the first day of an action which may develop into a decisive naval battle, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The text of his bulletin follows:

"In the afternoon of June 19 (Chicago time) carrier based reconnaissance planes of the 5th fleet sighted a Japanese fleet, which included carriers and battleships, approximately midway between the Marianas Islands and Luzon.

Losses Not Assessed.

"Aircraft of our fleet carrier task force were immediately ordered to attack, and made contact with the enemy fleet before dusk.

"Enemy losses and our own losses have not yet been assessed. Additional details will be made known as they become available.

"In the ground fighting on Saipan Island, our assault troops made advances in a northerly direction along the western shore of Magicienne bay, and made progress against an enemy strong point at Nafutan point. Severe fighting continues."

With nightfall the American aerial attack on the enemy ships presumably had to be broken off. The mention that there were enemy losses to be assessed could mean that our carrier bombers scored hits on the powerful Jap fleet.

Spruance in Command.

Engaged in the battle is the American 5th fleet, commanded by an admiral with a string of victories against the enemy—Raymond A. Spruance. It has, in the words of Nimitz, the power to take care of everything the Japanese may fling at it.

Whether continuing action may develop into a decisive fleet test depended on the maneuvering of the opposing armadas. The American fleet does not have complete freedom of maneuver, because it has an obligation to protect the amphibious force and ground troops invading Saipan in the Marianas.

Force Japs to Fight.

The Japanese fleet is trying mightily to draw the American force deep into the vast ocean space between the Marianas and the Philippines. The scene of action is about in the middle of the 1,500 mile ocean sweep between the Marianas and the Philippines.

It was the American thrust into the Marianas, at Japan's very throat, that finally provoked the reluctant Japanese navy. It was stirring itself for a major engagement for the first time since meeting disaster at Midway more than two years ago.

That navy, since Midway, has been shorn of much of its screening force of cruisers and destroyers in the war of attrition so successfully carried on by United States submarines and warplanes. Pitted against it will be American naval power that is at its top for all time, not only in airplane carriers, but in new heavyweight battleships, cruisers, and destroyers.

On Saipan itself, near where naval air battles have been fought that have cost the Japanese probably 600 planes within a week, American forces continued to advance. They held the southern portion of the island, Nimitz said in a bulletin Tuesday night.

MacArthur Will Aid.

Also ready to send land-based bombers into action is the air arm of Gen. MacArthur. His planes are poised within bombing range of the Philippines and adjacent ocean areas at captured Mokmer airfield on Biak, off north Dutch New Guinea. Yesterday he announced the capture of two more air fields.

Nimitz emphasized that he had expected Japan's violent reaction at Saipan because it is in the last island defense line before China and the Philippines.

A massive American force of hundreds of surface ships and more than 1,000 planes comprised the Saipan invasion fleet, Rembert James, Associated Press war correspondent, reported. There were hundreds of landing boats and other craft to put many thousands of soldiers ashore.

Bombers Pound Kuriles.

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Army and navy bombers have pounded the Kuriles and the Japanese base of Truk again, the navy reported tonight. Pacific fleet headquarters also told of raids by fighters and bombers on Japanese at Mille, Maloelap, and Wotje atolls in the Marshalls.

DESCRIBE U. S. "LOSSES"

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Tokyo radio asserted yesterday that an American battleship listed in a Japanese bulletin Tuesday as sunk by Japanese planes off the Marianas June 16 was of the 45,000-ton Iowa class.

The enemy broadcast, without confirmation, said another battleship claimed to have been heavily damaged was of the 25,000-ton North Carolina class.

"Two out of four United States aircraft carriers which were heavily damaged and set ablaze or left heavily listing the night of June 17," the broadcast went on, "were of the 24,000-ton Essex type, while another was of the 10,000-ton Independence type which had been converted from a cruiser.

"United States Fleet Engaged."

A Berlin broadcast quoted a Japanese naval spokesman as saying that Japanese air and naval forces "have successfully engaged an American fleet" near the Marianas Islands.

In Tuesday's bulletin, imperial headquarters maintained that the Japanese had shot down 300 United States planes, sunk several American warships, and damaged a number of others off the Marianas.

JAPS SAY BURIAL SERVICE FOR B-29 CREW IS HELD

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A Japanese radio dispatch yesterday said Japanese units had held solemn burial services for "the unfortunate American personnel" of a B-29 Super Fortress shot down in the raid on Yawata last week. Burial was said to have taken place on Wakamatsu, at the northern tip of Kyushu Island.

The Domei account did not state the number of flyers killed in the crash nor indicate whether any escaped.

The 20th bomber command announced last Friday that four of the B-29 Super Fortresses were lost on the Yawata mission, saying two went down due to accidents, one fell over the target, and another was missing.

MARINES FIGHT JAP TANKS, EVEN BOATS AT SAIPAN

Turn from Battle on Land to Sea.

BY PERCY FINCH.

[Representing the combined American Press—Distributed by The Associated Press.]

ABOARD EXPEDITIONARY FORCE FLAGSHIP OFF SAIPAN, June 21 (AP).—Rolling back remnants of two Japanese divisions, American forces have swept across Saipan Island to seize strong control of the southern part of the island and Aslito air field, its greatest prize.

This 3,600 foot field is necessary for protection against developing Japanese air attacks. American land based planes will soon operate from here, replacing carrier aircraft.

The landing of army reënforcements and artillery in support of the marines, who have borne the brunt of the fighting, paved the way for a general attack. Supported by coördinated artillery and naval gunfire and powerful aerial strength, the Americans struck the Japs at many points.

Take Toll of Marines.

The attack around Charon Kanoa, where the Americans were once compelled to withdraw almost to the beach, started in a heavy tropical downpour.

While the army wheeled southward over a ridge leading toward the air field, the marines struck northeast, avenging a savage Japanese counter-attack which exacted a toll of marines the first two days of battle.

Advancing thru blaze blackened stalks north of Charon Kanoa, in line with experience gained while training in Hawaiian cane fields, the marines encountered a Japanese force strongly supported by tanks moving southward. In a shattering battle the marines knocked out 30 tanks with bazookas, ending the threat at that point.

The marines turned seawards and fought a battle with a group of 60 foot troop laden barges from the enemy seaplane base at Flores point, which were attempting to land behind the American lines.

13 Barges Explode.

The Japanese armada was caught between the fire of landing craft, gunboats, and the marines. Thirteen barges exploded, and the threat was dispersed.

Thru the swamps around Lake Susupe, east of Charon Kanoa, the marines advanced to a point overlooking Magicienne bay, which was reached after they scattered a Jap force forming nearby.

Naval guns and planes ranged over the island, spotting and destroying Japanese mortars on mountain ridges. The beaches, once almost untenable under murderous fire, were covered with masses of men and mountains of supplies brought in by hundreds of boats. Soon hundreds of Japanese civilians —men, women, and children— swarmed there seeking safety and American protection. They are being fed and housed in camps.

Island Is an Arsenal.

Saipan proved to be Japan's main arsenal in the Marianas. I watched naval guns blasting shore targets and saw shells and bombs ripping open deeply hidden oil and ammunition dumps honeycombing the mountain slopes, indicative of many years' accumulation of war stores.

On the southern coast caves were found stuffed with fuel and ammunition. Five oil dumps blazed together in a three mile area. The biggest dump blazed at the foot of Mount Tapotchau, which the Japs converted into a mountain fortress.

Natural obstacles included crossing a 1,500 yard reef to supply the big force ashore, made more difficult by enemy air attacks by carrier planes shuttled from adjacent air fields.

M'ARTHUR'S PLANES ATTACK TRUK WITH 108 TONS OF BOMBS

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, June 22 [Thursday]—(AP).—Liberator bombers made a record breaking attack on Truk Monday, coördinated with the American invasion of Saipan in the Marianas. Headquarters announced that B-24s from the Admiralty Islands dropped 108 tons of explosives on Dublon and Eten Islands in the Truk group, the heaviest single day's attack by 30th air force Liberators. The Japanese made no attempt at interception.

On Biak Island off New Guinea, where three Japanese airdromes have been captured, American veterans advanced steadily along the southwest coast, headquarters reported, and cleaned out pockets of Japanese in the hills north of Mokmer air field.

Liberators attacked Noemfoor Island west of Biak, dropping 57 tons of explosives on Kamiri air strip. Allied attack planes destroyed two coastal vessels and eight barges off Manokwari, near the western entrance to Geelvink bay.

MURDER VERDICT RETURNED.

A verdict of murder was returned yesterday at the inquest into the shooting of Patrick Duffin, 35, a steamfitter, on May 20 by his wife, Jeanne, 24. Later Mrs. Duffin was committed to an institution for mental care after the murder charge was nolle prossed in Felony court on recommendation of alienists.

YEAR MAY SEE JAPAN STOPPED, SAYS WALLACE

CHUNGKING, China, June 21 (AP).—Vice President Henry A. Wallace told a state banquet tonight there was reason to hope the next 12 months "will be the final year of Japanese aggression in China," and President Chiang Kai-shek said his nation and the three other great powers "must shoulder the responsibility of maintaining international peace."

Three essentials to maintenance of peace in eastern Asia and the Pacific, Wallace said, were demilitarization of Japan, collaboration among the nations of the Pacific and self-government for the peoples of Asia.

Assuring Wallace that China was ready to assume her share of the responsibility, President Chiang asserted that a general system of collective security, backed if necessary by international force, was essential.

This, he said, must be carried out by the United States, the British commonwealth of nations, the soviet union, and China.

Japs Strive for Time.

"The Japanese are now trading space for time in the Pacific," Wallace said, "but both time and space are against them. In due course we hope to find them trading space for time in China, but they will be faced with a determined Chinese army receiving coöperation from American forces which will allow no time for trading."

Wallace said a way to orderly, law abiding self-government should be left open to the Japanese after their armies are beaten. He added that the United States did not aspire to any exclusive arrangement with China, and any balance of power system would lead to rivalries from which would spring a resurgence of Japanese militarism.

Free Thailand Backed.

He called for the restoration of national sovereignty to Thailand and asserted that "in Asia there are other political and racial entities now in a state of colonial dependency whose aspirations to self-government should receive prompt and positive attention after victory."

Minister of Information Liang Han-chao, discussing Wallace's visit at a press conference, said there were differences among China's leaders on what to do about Emperor Hirohito of Japan, but all agreed the present political system made for war and that the emperor was part of that system.

"Enraptured" in Russia.

LONDON, June 21 (AP).—In a statement of thanks to the U. S. S. R. for his hospitable reception, Vice President Henry A. Wallace was quoted today by the Moscow radio as saying before his departure for Chungking:

"I must say my personal impressions surpass all my expectations. I am enraptured by the scope of building and great achievement. The heroic effort of the peoples of the U. S. S. R. has been crowned with brilliant successes in all branches of science, industry, and art."

KING TELLS HOW 8 U. S. FLEETS ARE DISPOSED

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Adm. Ernest J. King disclosed today the commands and assignments of eight United States task fleets. He described the numerically designated units as task fleets equipped to carry out any type of operation.

He said that originally the system of command called for task units, then for larger task groups, then task forces. The task forces were combined to form the numerical "task fleets." He announced the commands and assignments of these eight task fleets:

Pacific—3d fleet, Adm. William F. Halsey Jr.; 5th fleet, Adm. Raymond E. Spruance; 7th fleet, Vice Adm. Thomas Kincaid, in the southwest Pacific; 9th fleet, Vice Adm. Frank J. Fletcher, Aleutians.

JAPANESE PUSH AHEAD IN DRIVE TO SPLIT CHINA

Defeated in Yunnan Mountain Battle.

CHUNGKING, China, June 21 (AP).—Japanese troops, bent on splitting China in half, have pressed southward from fallen Changsha along an 80-mile arc and in a 10 mile advance have fought to within 55 miles of the big rail junction of Hengyang, the Chinese high command said tonight.

The right extremity of this arc thru eastern Hunan province was near Siangsiang, 55 miles north of Hengyang. The left extremity swung down to engulf the railroad town of Liling, 75 miles northeast of Hengyang on the east side of the Siang river. Lukow, in this same area, also fell.

A bulletin from Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said medium bombers and fighters on patrol of the Great Siang river knocked out 20 supply launches, damaged other river craft, and struck at Japanese positions.

Salween Chinese Victors.

In Honan province, the Japanese weakened the Chinese hold on the Peiping-Hankow railroad with a 30-mile advance that captured Chengyang.

The best news for China came from the Salween front. Here, the high command said, Chinese troops fighting for 40 days in rain, fog, and sleet have cleared the Kaolikung mountains of Yunnan province, China's most difficult battle zone, of Japanese.

The country is so mountainous that 130 porters carrying supplies plunged to death from trails.

Gain in Myitkyina Fight.

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, June 21 (AP).—India's Kachins and Ghurkas gained six miles north of Myitkyina and inflicted many casualties on Japanese trying to flee from their fallen base of Tiangzup, a bulletin announced today.

The advance carried the Indian levies into Nsopzup, a village 34 miles north of Myitkyina, besieged Japanese base in north Burma.

DEFEAT OF JAPS IN BATTLE SURE, SAYS ADM. KING

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—An air of confidence and expectancy pervaded the navy department today but there was little information on developments in the Pacific naval battle.

Naval Secretary Forrestal told a news conference that there are indications that the Pacific fleet "may have succeeded in catching up with all or a part of the Japanese fleet."

Adm. Ernest J. King, navy commander in chief, added that if the battle has been joined there is no doubt in his mind of the outcome—a disastrous defeat for the Japanese.

"Sooner the Better."

"The sooner the Jap fleet fights, the better we will be satisfied," King said. If the Japanese fleet has decided to battle, he commented, its "coöperation will be appreciated."

For several days, Forrestal disclosed, the Japanese fleet has been milling around west of Saipan. His statement said:

"The Japanese fleet has been sighted at various times during the last few days milling around from 500 to 800 miles westward of Saipan Island.

Jap Carriers Attack.

"On June 19 [last Sunday United States time] Japanese planes attacked our naval forces near Saipan. These planes apparently came from carriers, then some 500 miles to the westward. The Japanese plan seems to have been to launch the aircraft at extreme range from the Marianas with the idea that after attacking they would land for refueling on Guam and Rota.

"We have no other details of the resulting air battle, other than the fact that our forces were ready for the attack. Our carrier aircraft and ships' anti-aircraft guns wiped out most of the Japanese planes.

"Adm. Nimitz' fleet is under strict radio silence. There is some indication that it may have succeeded in catching up with all or a part of the Japanese fleet yesterday, but there is no definite information as to this.

"Navy seaplanes and submarines have been most useful in reconnoitering the Japanese fleet."

King said the bulletin from Nimitz speaks for itself and, combined with Forrestal's report, covers the situation "as accurately as we know it."

"You are not worried about the outcome?" he was asked.

"No," he replied.

"My granddaughter goes with the nicest young man. He takes her to ISBELL'S so often!"

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Volume two of The Chicago Tribune—Its First Hundred Years, which is The Tribune's centennial history, and which will soon go to the printer, contains many significant sidelights on the day by day developments that have resulted in the wars of today.

This volume deals with the period of this newspaper's record between 1865 and 1899, from the reconstruction period after the Civil war to the death of Joseph Medill. Many forgotten threads form the pattern in which may be traced the development of the city, the state, and the nation, as well as the newspaper itself.

Beginning in 1893, for instance, the question of national defense and national expansion arose, which led to our modern complications in the Pacific ocean, the Japanese menace in particular.

Protectorate Stirred Japan.

It was in February, 1893, that the United States established a protectorate over Hawaii. A special dispatch from Honolulu told of the Stars and Stripes being flown for the first time over Government house, with marines from the United States cruiser Boston in charge. A republic had been established and the monarchy was in its death throes. Japan did not like this move and The Tribune said on Feb. 9, 1893:

"The time has passed for this great republic of 70 million people to pursue a timid, shrinking policy when confronted with the bluster or threats of any other nation. We need a few more ironclads and big guns to protect our ports."

England, too, had its eyes on Hawaii, and The Tribune said that if the question of annexation arose, as between England and the United States, that there was only one answer—the United States should annex the islands.

A map of Hawaii, showing Pearl Harbor, was printed in The Tribune of March 28, 1893. On April 15 of that year the Stars and Stripes were hauled down from Government house. The Cleveland administration had no intention of annexing the islands. The Tribune expressed indignation at this and pressed for annexation until it was accomplished five years later under a Republican administration.

On April 10, 1894, the Japanese were noisily demanding the right of suffrage in Hawaii and there were two Japanese warships in Hawaiian waters.

"If Old Glory were flying from government house in Honolulu," said The Tribune of April 8, 1894, "it is safe to assert the Japanese would not be so positive in the demands for equality of citizenship."

During the summer of 1894 the United States used its influence to keep Japan from going to war with China over Korea. Japan denied any designs upon that country, but by July of that year was at war with China. By September Korea was in the hands of the Japanese. Japan and Great Britain then made a treaty of alliance.

"The little Japanese nation surprises the world," said The Tribune of Sept. 15, 1894.

Japan imposed dictator terms on China. The Tribune of April 17, 1895, said that the Japanese were to be congratulated for opening up the vast Chinese country to the business world.

In the meantime the Hawaiian republic was maintaining a precarious existence and looking to the United States for help against a group of hungry powers.

Pearl Harbor '97 Issue.

In April, 1897, the Hawaiians asked that an American warship be sent to their aid. The Tribune said on April 10 of that year that the United States must annex Hawaii, as Japan had become a threat to the islands.

"Since the Chinese war and the occupation of Formosa," said The Tribune, "Japan wants to be the great power of the Pacific." Japan was said to be sending two warships to Hawaii.

During May, 1897, congress rejected an appropriation of $50,000 to improve Pearl Harbor. Speaker Cannon was opposed to this appropriation, while Congressman Robert R. Hitt, chairman of the naval affairs committee, favored it.

Later in the summer of 1897, Uncle Sam was finding out more about his Alaskan possessions and was getting ready to annex Hawaii and defy Japan with its Pacific fleet.

The Tribune by the end of that year had come to the conclusion that national expansion in the direction of Hawaii and Cuba was necessary and that the United States must have a greater navy.

James Bryce, author of "The American Commonwealth," in an article in a monthly magazine for December, 1897, advised against the adoption of an annexation policy. The American republic, he said, would lose far more than it would gain, and would be compelled to create a navy as large as those of England and France.

Islands' Value Upheld.

The Tribune said that the necessity for a powerful navy already existed, and that the Hawaiian Islands would provide a strong naval station. Bryce's arguments against annexation, from an English standpoint, were far from conclusive, the paper stated.

President McKinley, in his December, 1897, message to congress, urged the annexation of Hawaii by confirmation of the treaty already ratified by the republic of Hawaii. All questions with Japan had been settled, he said.

Japan had protested against the annexation on the ground that it would change the existing condition of affairs in the Pacific and might cause international difficulties. Japan also objected that it would interfere with the rights of Japanese citizens in the islands. There were 25,000 Japanese in the islands at that time. The Hawaiian republic had thought it necessary to restrict this immigration and had refused admission to 1,000 Japanese during that year. This caused a protest by Japan and demand for an indemnity, which was subsequently paid in the sum of $75,000.

The Hawaiian treaty was laid before the senate. The Tribune's Washington bureau reported on Dec. 8, 1897, that there was little chance of it getting thru the senate. Some senators felt, it was stated, that this country could not afford to listen to the appeals of the Hawaiians for protection against the threats of the Japanese.

Jap Demand Disclosed.

Former Secretary of State John W. Foster said that if the United States did not annex Hawaii it would turn to England rather than to Japan. The Tribune approved this view and said that this meant that England would control the commerce of the Pacific.

The annexation debate opened in the senate in executive session on Jan. 12, 1898. It continued for months. In the meantime President Sanford B. Dole of the Hawaiian republic came to Washington on a hurried trip. An extensive interview with Dole on his special train was obtained by a staff reporter of The Tribune. Four days before the Dole party sailed, the reporter said, the Hawaiian cabinet discussed a new development in the east in which Japan was intimately concerned.

"At this meeting," he wrote, "a communication from the Japanese government that had come by the previous mail from Japan was opened. There was sudden consternation and a decision to make this trip. Exactly what this communication from Japan was Dole refuses absolutely to say, but there seems little doubt that it was in the nature of a demand from Japan for the right to use one or more Hawaiian harbors for their warships. This privilege is now denied it by express treaty with the United States. . . ." [Hawaii had previously ceded Pearl Harbor to the United States for a naval station.]

While the Spanish war was in progress the annexation of Hawaii moved forward and soon became part of the whole problem of expansion in the Caribbean and in the direction of the Philippines. A great national decision was in the making.

"The time is now in sight," said The Tribune of June 2, 1898, "when Hawaii will be a part of the republic of the United States. It would be the height of suicidal folly to reject it. The Nicaraguan canal, the annexation of Hawaii, and a cable to the Philippines will bring us nearer to our new dependencies in the far east than we are now to the gold fields of the upper Yukon, and start this nation on a new career of development such as it has not seen since the close of the Civil war."

"One flag, one cause, one country," was the slogan at the editorial masthead of The Tribune during this period. The Stars and Stripes were flown there, as they had been shown during the days of the Civil war. The Hawaiian treaty finally was confirmed by joint resolution of congress on July 6, 1898, and sovereignty was approved on Aug. 12.

"A New Era" Is Hailed.

"A new era is beginning for the republic," said The Tribune of Aug. 14, 1898. "The Democratic mugwumps eye it with fear and the national expansionists with delight. The latter are not talking everlastingly about 'free institutions' like the former. Nevertheless the national expansionists have unbounded faith in the free institutions of this country and believe they are superior to those of any country in the world. They believe that fact will become as plain as sunlight after this nation has come out of its shell and shown the world how American institutions are not adapted exclusively to the American continent. The national expansionists are the missionaries who desire to disseminate far and wide the knowledge of the fundamental principles of American government."

The United States must keep the Philippines, The Tribune said on Aug. 17, 1898, adding:

"Never again will this country have a chance to secure so much valuable territory at so little cost. If, thru timidity, shortsightedness, or a desire to placate the mugwumps or the Bourbon Democrats, the Philippines are allowed to slip thru the fingers of the United States now, the loss will be irreparable. This country will withdraw from the Asiatic part of the Pacific forever."

Expansion Wins People.

Prof. Charles Eliot Norton of Harvard university was quoted later that month in opposition to this policy of national expansion, saying that we had entered upon "the ancient path, worn by the bloody feet of hapless generations—the path that leads from trouble to trouble."

In discussing the growth of the expansion idea, The Tribune said on Sept. 18, 1898:

"Three months of intelligent discussion have wrought a revolution in the American people themselves. Millions who at the outbreak of the war would have denounced the idea of holding or annexing a foot of Spanish territory came out of that campaign with the fixed belief that we could wisely or honorably not do less than hold every foot of Spanish territory that we have conquered. The great, expansive, inspiring idea of becoming a world nation had proved irresistible. The logic of events had compelled us to move on and out into the wider sphere of the powers that rule the earth. . . . Such is the story of the epoch-making idea of national expansion, which is the crowning glory of the war with Spain."

American Era Foreseen.

The Tribune took much the same view of the "manifest destiny" of America as that expressed by President William Rainey Harper of the University of Chicago in his baccalaureate address of that fall:

"The world's history seems to move in great cycles of 20 centuries each. Three of them have passed. The central figure in the first was old Babylonia; in the second Syria and the Hebrew nation; in the third, which perhaps is just done, the central figure has been England. The central figure in the fourth cycle will be America. The question of individualism is still on trial; the real test of Christianity is still in the future, and the arena in which this great trial shall be conducted is America. With this before us, surely no narrow spirit of patriotism should prevail. The doors of the world have opened to us and they have opened themselves. We have entered upon no policy of conquest, but if the needs of humanity, to whom America comes with the message of individualism, render it necessary to assume the protectorate of territory far distant from our own land, let us not hesitate to assume the responsibility, for it is the voice of God that is speaking to us."

Thus we entered upon the problems of today.

Hollywood, Cal., June 21 (AP).—Screen Actress Irene Manning was married to Keith Kolhoff last night, unaware, her brother says, that her father had died. The father, Shirley E. Harvuot, 68, died Monday in a Los Angeles hospital after a long illness. The brother, Richard Harvuot, said he and Kolhoff, Los Angeles police traffic division investigator, would tell Miss Manning today.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Anna Marie McMerty, R. F. D., Crystal, N. D.]

THE QUESTION.

WHERE ASKED.

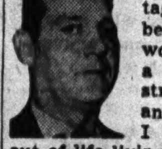
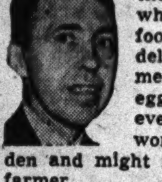
THE ANSWERS.

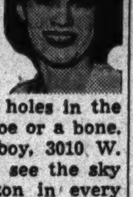


E. J. Brown, engineer, 3250 North av.—If I could live on a gentleman's farm, with no work to do, I think the advantages would outnumber the drawbacks. I would like it to have a little lake or a stream, so I could fish any time I felt like it. I think I'd get more out of life living on a farm; it's the most healthful existence.

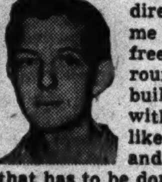
Mrs. Edward Gundlach, clerk, 5800 School st.—I think all farm work is enjoyable because it keeps you busy and your mind occupied. At the same time you get exercise, and that's healthful. By the end of the day you're tired and ready to retire with the chickens, and a good night's sleep has never hurt any one.



M. A. Nolan, clerk, 935 N. Leclaire av.—I've never been on a farm long enough to know what the life is like. From what I've heard the food is abundant and delicious—fresh fruit, meats, milk, butter, eggs, and vegetables every day. I like to work in my war garden and might not be such a bad farmer.



Mrs. E. K. Bivens, secretary, 1438 E. 65th pl.—I like dogs, and it's so easy to have two or three of them in the country. There's always plenty of food for them, and they have loads of room to play in. Then, too, there are no nearby neighbors to get angry if a dog decides to dig holes in the lawn to bury an old shoe or a bone.



Ray Bogacki, office boy, 3010 W. 54th pl.—To be able to see the sky and horizon in every direction would give me a feeling of being free instead of surrounded by big, old buildings and walled-in with fences. I would like living on a farm and doing everything that has to be done. At least, that's what I think now.

LT. LLOYD DIES; ANCESTOR WAS TRIBUNE WRITER

Lt. [j. g.] Demarest Lloyd, 25, son of the late journalist and publicist of the same name and grandson of Henry Demarest Lloyd, former political and editorial writer of The Tribune, has been killed in action in the Southwest Pacific, his mother, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd of Washington, D. C., and South Dartmouth, Mass., learned thru an official notification Tuesday night. Lt. Lloyd's father, who died in 1937, was a director of The Tribune company from 1926 to 1931. Lt. Lloyd's great-grandfather, William Bross, a lieutenant governor of Illinois, was associated with Joseph Medill in the newspaper's early days.

HOUSE REJECTS BILL TO ABSORB WASPS IN ARMY

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The house, aroused over the "washing out" of thousands of surplus male pilot trainees by the army and navy, today rejected a war department request to create a female pilot corps within the army.

By a vote of 189-169, the chamber killed a measure, urged by Gen. Arnold, chief of the air forces, to transfer the WASPs [women's air force service pilots] from a civilian status to a regular army unit within the air forces. The WASPs, numbering more than 500, are engaged in flying in this country under army directions, but Gen. Arnold has proposed to expand the corps to 2,500 and make it part of the army.

Cites Pilot Surplus.

Rep. Izac [D., Cal.], leading the fight against the bill, told the house the navy will shortly wash out 17,000 pilot trainees because of a surplus of flyers, on top of 36,000 recently transferred by the army from pilot training to the ground forces, also because of a surplus. In addition, he said, more than 5,000 pilot instructors, released by the army, are trained pilots equipped to do the work proposed for more WASPs.

"Now," said Izac, "it is proposed to have 2,500 WASPs trained at a cost of 50 million dollars, while these male pilots are turned away. It is the most unjustified piece of legislation conceivable. I'm sorry to see Hap Arnold lose his head on this proposition."

Rep. O'Hara [R., Minn.], urging defeat of the bill, said it was a "piece of society legislation" and declared "we are not fighting a glamor war." Adoption of the bill, he declared, would hurt the morale of our fighting men.

Kills Instructors' Rider.

Pleading for the measure's adoption, Rep. Costello [D., Cal.] asserted there was "nothing glamorous about being a WASP." He cited the record of one of the women pilots, who flew 8,000 miles in five days, ferrying combat planes. Costello urged the house not to overrule the judgment of army leaders, who, he said, contend WASPs are needed to replace men who can be sent into combat.

Rep. Brooks [D., La.] had planned to attach a rider to the bill directing the army to commission as noncombat pilots the thousands of instructors released by the cutback in the training program. Izac, however, thru a parliamentary maneuver, succeeded in forcing a vote on the bill before the amendment was proposed.

CORRESPONDENT MISSING IN B-29 RAID ON JAPAN

New York, June 21 (AP).—Editors of Newsweek said today that the war department had reported William Shenkel of Silver Spring, Md., a war correspondent for the magazine, was missing from the B-29 raid over Japan.

Shenkel, 38, was an observer on one of the planes from which no report has been received, Newsweek said.

A native of Akron, O., Shenkel is married and has two children. With Newsweek since 1938, he previously had been on the staffs of Cleveland newspapers and the Akron Times-Press.

BRICKER FORCES FIGHT TO STEM TIDE OF DEWEY

Convention Possibilities Are Analyzed.

to nominate—because of a lack of magnetism, charm, and glamor supposed to be essential to a candidate. To which the Taft partisans retort that possibly the people are pretty well fed up with glamor, for which they have paid so dearly since 1932, and would welcome with relief a President renowned more for hard-headedness than charm.

The Dewey leaders, who are predicting the nomination of the New York governor on the first ballot, expect California to start the bandwagon stampede with 50 votes when that state is called, fourth on the roster. If states committed to favorite sons then should plump for Dewey, the stampede would be on.

California May Be Spark Plug.

Gov. Warren of California, favorite of the Dewey camp for Vice President, recently released the delegates of that state from any obligation to vote for him for either place on the ticket, enjoining them not to present his name or vote for him. Most, if not all, of the Californians are said to favor Dewey. They will caucus Monday.

Former Gov. Landon of Kansas, Republican standard bearer in 1936 and chairman of the Kansas delegation in this convention, arrived for a meeting of the resolutions committee predicting the nomination of Dewey "on the first ballot, or, at least, the second." As to Republican chances of winning the election, he thought them, about 50-50, the Republicans "having perhaps a shade the better prospects."

Sen. Hawkes of New Jersey said that state's delegation would be for Dewey, tho perhaps voting for Gov. Edge on the first ballot. Sen. Moore, who heads the Oklahoma delegation, reported that he and eight other members were for Bricker. Sheridan F. Smith of Baltimore brought word that there would be four votes for Bricker in Maryland.

Claims W. Virginia for Bricker.

Austin V. Wood, publisher of 16 West Virginia newspapers and a delegate from that state, asserted that the majority of that delegation would be for Bricker.

"I was astonished to read that Gov. Dewey's supporters were claiming 16 out of 19 delegates from West Virginia on the first ballot," said Wood. "If this overoptimism is indicative of the basis for claims as to other states, the Dewey bandwagon will fail utterly to materialize. I am quite confident that more than half of the West Virginia delegation is firmly for Gov. Bricker and that more than half of the remaining delegates are uncertain. I have talked with each of the members of the delegation and know of but three who are firmly for Dewey.

"Both the man on the street and the delegates feel that the issues involved in this campaign are so vital to the welfare of our country that it would be a great mistake for the Republican party to nominate a man who has failed to make known his position upon any of these issues."

Taft Holds for Bricker.

Notwithstanding the evidences of a Dewey tide, Sen. Taft insisted that Gov. Bricker "has a good chance." Clarence B. Kelland, Arizona national committeeman, agreed with Landon that it would be Dewey on the first or second ballot, as did Lew Wentz, Oklahoma member of the resolutions committee. From New Haven came confirmation by Charles E. Rolfe, delegate at large, of J. Kenneth Bradley's statement that Connecticut, claimed by the Dewey camp, will vote for Gov. Baldwin of that state at least on the first ballot.

Opposition to Dewey takes numerous forms. A good many of the higher-ups of the party never have been able to get along with him. They call him intensely arrogant, convinced that he knows it all. They think he would be just another Roosevelt in the White House. Among western leaders, opposition springs from the position of Dewey on foreign policy. They regard him as an internationalist who is yet to record himself as definitely as even Mr. Roosevelt against surrender of sovereignty in post-war international coöperation to preserve peace.

Nationalists Cool to Dewey.

The nationalists of the west noticeably cooled to Dewey after his New York speech to the newspaper publishers in which he espoused international coöperation without stipulating that there must be no impairment of American sovereignty. It was not till after that speech that Bricker took a strong nationalist stand and began to make inroads on Dewey strength in the west.

It was too late, however, for Bricker to overcome the Dewey lead. Dewey had profited immensely from winning the Wisconsin primary in April which snuffed out Wendell Willkie as a Presidential contender. After that, with Bricker still only a shadowy figure in the race, Dewey won delegation after delegation virtually by default.

Dulles a Dewey Aid.

After the speech to the publishers it came out that Dewey's mentor on questions of foreign policy was John Foster Dulles, a noted internationalist who had a leading part in framing the "six pillars of peace" program of the Federal Council of Churches. A dispatch from London today, stating that Dulles would be secretary or undersecretary of state if Dewey should become President, attracted much attention in convention lobbies.

At headquarters of the New York delegation, which is promoting the Dewey "draft," there was a marked disinclination to discuss the London dispatch. Edwin F. Jaeckle, chairman of the New York Republican state committee, said that "the choice of cabinet members is a matter that will be strictly up to Gov. Dewey after he is elected." Otherwise he would not comment.

Temporary Alliance Proposed.

Dulles, grandson of John W. Foster, President Harrison's secretary of state, envisions an Anglo-American-Russian alliance as a temporary expedient for keeping the peace in a transition period after the war. In that period, he proposes that there be formed a world-wide association of nations. Such organization would be vested with no plenary power, either military or economic. But thru regular meetings of its assembly and committees, considering such questions as treaty revisions, boundaries, colonies, labor, etc., it would express opinions on issues that have been wont to provoke wars.

To this organization, in the Dulles plan, would be added international courts, limited to dealing with strictly legal issues, such as interpretation of treaties and other matters involving agreed principles. The United States would accept jurisdiction of such courts in a dispute, provided the other nation involved also accepted.

Relies on World Opinion.

Out of this combination of an international assembly and courts, Dulles hopes there would gradually develop a world public opinion both as to principles of national conduct and ordered means for their enforcement. Dulles said he was skeptical of any international order hinged on the whims of elderly individuals such as Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin. He thought the three nation alliance would be on firmer ground if there were an association of their respective foreign offices in which matters of dispute were more formally and publicly threshed out and decided.

TIME LIMIT LIFTED FROM GOV. GREEN'S WELCOME ADDRESS

Gov. Green was notified yesterday by Walter S. Hallanan of West Virginia, chairman of the arrangements committee for the Republican national convention, that he may speak as long as he wishes when he makes the welcoming address to the convention Monday.

Joseph W. Tolbert.

The decision to have the governor deliver something more than a perfunctory greeting to the convention was viewed as a concession to persistent demands that the middle west, birthplace and stronghold of the party, should be represented in one of the major addresses of the sessions.

Neckties and the Democratic party, in the opinion of Joseph W. Tolbert of Ninety-Six, S. C., are inventions of the devil. Tolbert doesn't wear neckties; and he's a Republican, ready to attend his 14th national convention. He has lost a contest to be seated as a delegate, tho. "Tieless Joe," as he is called, said he hasn't worn a tie since he was a "little shaver."

What was described as an impromptu meeting brought together in a near north side restaurant National Chairman Harrison Spangler, Gov. Green of Illinois, Gov. Hickenlooper of Iowa, President William Hutchison of the AFL Carpenters' union, Frank Stebbins of the convention housing staff, Ernest M. Morris, Indiana committeeman, and Gov. Dewey's New York managers, Edwin F. Jaeckle, Herbert Brownell, and J. Russel Sprague. It is understood politics was not discussed—strange as it seems.

Gov. Kelly of Michigan, arrived last night to be available for meetings of the resolutions committee. He said his talk about the creation of a sound post-war economy will emphasize the relations of government with business, large and small, and the demobilization of the fighting services and of reconversion of industry.

100 USHERETTES AND SEAS OF POP AWAITING G.O.P.

If any preparations have been overlooked for the Republican national convention, which opens Monday in the Chicago Stadium, the men behind the big show would like to know about them. Records for news coverage, concessionaire sales, seating arrangements, and service will go by the boards at this convention, the various heads said yesterday.

On the platform, seats for 778 newspaper men are being built, while out on the main floor and in the mezzanine reservations have been set up for 212 feature writers, Thomas D. Garry, superintendent in charge of workmen, said. Arrangements also have been made to take care of 100 newspaper and magazine photographers, 40 newsreel cameramen, and 160 radio broadcasting employes.

$140,000 Stock of Drinks.

Down in the basement, J. G. Grouzard, manager of the concessionaires, has filled every stock room with food, soft drinks, beer, and souvenirs. Remembering the last convention here four years ago, when 70,000 bottles of soft drinks were sold the last two nights, Grouzard has stocked more than $140,000 worth of bottled goods plus 500 gallons of orange concentrate and 50 barrels of root beer. He expects to use 40 tons of ice.

Twenty supervisors will watch the 225 counter workers and 75 vendors during the four day event. Souvenirs, ranking from 25 cent badges to $20 red plush elephants, will be on sale. Badges, Grouzard explained, are for the most part of a general nature, but he has several hundred MacArthur buttons on hand. "Of course, he isn't a candidate," he said, "but he's a very popular man."

Something New—Usherettes.

One colorful addition to the convention this year will be Andy Frain's usherettes. More than 100 girls, dressed in light blue blouses and darker blue skirts, will work with 200 veteran ushers of the Frain crew.

Work inside the Stadium reached a frenzied state yesterday, with laborers crawling over the building. High in the rafters, electricians were placing 30 Kleig lights, 20 of which are 10,000 candlepower. The lights are being hung more strategically than at the last convention, when delegates complained of burned necks, Garry said. Two technicians and 12 operators will have charge.

Twenty more public telephones were installed in addition to the 36 permanent stations.

WISCONSIN DEAN OF G. O. P. RAPS DEWEY SILENCE

Milwaukee, Wis., June 21 [Special].—"In 60 years of voting the Republican ticket, this is the first time I have seen a convention where the man they claim has the nomination clinched, will not admit he is a candidate, and whose slogan seems to be, 'Mum is the word.'" So declared Col. William T. McCaskey, G. O. P. chairman of Marinette county, and dean of Wisconsin Republican leaders, here today. He said he was referring to Gov. Dewey of New York, "whose managers and himself are conducting a most peculiar campaign for political preferment." Col. McCaskey stopped off here en route to the Republican national convention in Chicago next week.

"Gov. Bricker of Ohio, the only avowed candidate for the nomination, has taken the open, the manly, and the American course," said Col. McCaskey. "He has discussed freely and intelligently the questions which are agitating the public mind. He has taken an American line and hewed to it. He deserves well of the delegates and of his countrymen."

WOMAN NAMED VICE-CHAIRMAN OF G. O. P. GROUP

First One Chosen for Resolutions Post.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Miss Mary H. Donlon of New York, who has been a lawyer for 22 years, yesterday was named vice chairman of the resolutions committee of the Republican national convention, thus becoming the first woman in the party's history to be so honored. Miss Donlon, who is a delegate at large, is a veteran at being the first or only woman on the job.

She was calm and brief in a summary of her duties on the committee headed by Sen. Taft of Ohio. "It's an obligation to keep an open mind and hear all suggestions," she said.

Small, gray haired, and motherly looking, Miss Donlon is the first woman chairman of the New York state industrial commission; only woman member of her law firm, Burke and Burke, and only woman trustee of her alma mater, Cornell university. She was co-manager of Dewey's campaign for governor in her native state and said she is here in the hope of helping to make him the Republican nominee.

"Cattle, Sheep, and Dewey."

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, delegate at large from New Mexico, is another Dewey supporter. She expressed it differently, however, with her statement: "I'm interested in cattle, sheep, and Dewey." The veteran Republican, who said she is an expert cowpuncher [she has 6,000 head of steers and 10,000 sheep] also had a word for women in politics. "They can be just as strong as they want to be," she announced firmly. "There is nothing to prevent them from taking any part in public affairs they want to take."

In Kansas, the women apparently want to take any part they can, said Mrs. Alfred M. Landon, who arrived from Topeka with the 1936 Presidential nominee and their two children, Nancy, 11, and Jack, 10.

"Women in Kansas are asking questions," she said, "especially the women who have belonged to the well-to-do group not particularly interested outside their homes before. They're trying to read their way into political wisdom, and I think they're doing pretty well at it."

Patriotism Spurs Women.

Women in both high and low stations volunteer to do anything they can politically, Mrs. Landon said. Her report was echoed by Mrs. Ernest B. Griffin, Grant Park, delegate at large from Illinois, who is on the resolutions committee with Sen. Brooks and who was elected secretary of the committee.

"I have never seen so much harmony among all women as now," Mrs. Griffin declared. "They come out to help not for personal glory or position, but to do what they can to try to save their country. It sounds hackneyed to say, but it all amounts to women's fight to protect the home front, to guard affairs here for the men who are fighting."

WHEELER HIES SELF TO HILLS, NOT CONVENTION

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Sen. Wheeler, leader of the fight to place anti-war safeguards in the 1940 Democratic platform, will not even attend his party's convention in Chicago next month. In a pause on his trip from Washington, D. C., to his Montana home, he said here yesterday, "I'll be in the Montana mountains during the convention."

Sen. Wheeler.

His disclosure caused some surprise. Shortly after Wheeler made his first visit to the White House in six years, President Roosevelt recently shifted from the internationalist to the nationalist side, pledging himself against surrender of any of the nation's independence.

Critic of Allen Policy.

Sen. Wheeler is still caustically critical of the New Deal foreign policies, however.

Running up a world record debt of 300 billion dollars, this country "must stop giving away its substance to every nation on earth," he said. Our natural resources which helped make us great are being seriously depleted, he asserted. What has been taken from our earth is gone.

"Don't forget that we won every other war in our history without lend-lease," he commented.

The senator termed amazing the statement attributed to Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, British minister of supply, that lend-lease to Britain was Japan's provocation to attack Pearl Harbor.

Foresees Future War.

"Unless a United States of Europe is worked out, there can be no economic peace there, and eventually there will be war between Britain and Russia over who will dominate the continent," he said. "Each will play for the favor of Germany."

The Republican party will be handicaped if it stands for any permanent military alliance, he added. "History shows too clearly that alliances have started rather than prevented wars," Wheeler said.

Radio Singer Nominated in Idaho by 220 Votes

Boise, Idaho, June 21 (AP).—Glen H. Taylor of Pocatello, former cowboy radio singer, held a margin of 220 votes over incumbent D. Worth Clark for Democratic nomination for United States senator as complete returns from Idaho's June 13 primary election were tabulated today. Reports from all precincts—including official returns from 548—gave Taylor 10,733 votes to 10,513 for Clark.

TWO TENNESSEE DELEGATE SETS VIE FOR PLACES

Committee Will Rule on Contest Today.

Two sets of convention delegates from the 3d congressional district of Tennessee appeared before the Republican national committee sitting as the committee on contests yesterday and gave the committee a problem it was unable to solve for the time being. After considering it for 20 minutes, the committee adjourned to this morning, when it will try again and then go on to hearing the remaining three contests.

Both Tennessee groups agreed that two conventions were held simultaneously in the district, which lies in southeastern Tennessee and includes Hamilton county and Chattanooga. Both agreed they responded to the same call, to meet in the Marion county courthouse, in Jasper.

Charge Vote Basis Changed.

But before the convention was called to order, the faction supporting O. T. Tindall Jr. of Chattanooga and Bethel Brown of Cleveland, who are before the committee as contestants, arranged an executive committee meeting to change the basis of county representation.

The other two claimants, Sam L. McAllester of Chattanooga and Walter White of Dayton, asserted that the executive committee "disfranchised" populous Hamilton county by changing the basis of representation from the vote for President in 1940 to the vote for governor in 1942. Hamilton county, said McAllester, was thus reduced from a representation of 98 delegates to 24.

Followers of McAllester and White rescinded the executive committee's action and restored the 1940 Presidential vote as the basis of representation which they contended was the basis designated by the national committee.

Two Instructed for Dewey.

McAllester and White were instructed to vote for Gov. Dewey. The other set is uninstructed, but is reported to favor Dewey.

Joseph W. [Tieless Joe] Tolbert of South Carolina, who has been coming to Republican conventions since 1888, lost his contest without a hearing because he and his three fellow claimants had no proof of publication of their convention call.

James S. Twyford was seated from the 5th Oklahoma district, which he contested with Arthur Geisler. Both are of Oklahoma City.

Other contests to be heard today are: Georgia, involving 14 delegates; Maryland, six, and Virginia, four.

DEWEY SILENT ON TALKS WITH G.O.P. IN CHICAGO

Albany, N. Y., June 21 (AP).—Gov. Dewey disclosed today he had been in telephone contact with New York Republican leaders at Chicago, but remained silent on their statements he would accept the Republican Presidential nomination if drafted.

The governor told a press conference he talked by telephone yesterday with Herbert Brownell, manager of his 1938 and 1942 gubernatorial campaigns and one of three New Yorkers who have established Republican "Draft Dewey" headquarters in the convention city.

J. Russel Sprague, New York Republican national committeeman, and Edwin F. Jaeckle, state chairman, are on the scene with Brownell. They have said Dewey will accept if drafted and will go to Chicago to deliver an acceptance speech. The governor declined comment on these statements.

NEW NAVY RANK, FLEET ADMIRAL, GETS SENATE O.K.

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The senate passed late today a bill to give the navy a new top rank—admiral of the fleet. Sen. Walsh [D., Mass.], naval affairs committee chairman, said the two officers who would be currently eligible for the new rank are Adm. Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet, and Adm. William D. Leahy, chief of staff to President Roosevelt.

The legislation provides that the admiral of the fleet will receive the pay of a rear admiral, $8,000 annually, plus $5,000 cash allowance.

4TH TERM FOES TO G. O. P.: LET'S NAME RIGHT MAN

Republicans can effect a coalition with the "genuine, American" Democrats and swing 10 to 15 million votes and some doubtful states into the G. O. P. column next November if they nominate the right man next week, Dr. Gleason L. Archer said yesterday. He is chairman of the American Democratic National committee, anti-fourth term organization.

"If the Republicans do the right thing—nominate a man for America unwilling to give the wealth of the country away and jealous of our sovereignty—they may easily bring about an extremely fruitful coalition," Archer said. "Gov. Bricker of Ohio may be the man. At any rate, the reaction so far has been most favorable toward him."

Dr. Archer announced appointment of an executive committee for the anti-fourth term committee. He is chairman and the following are members: John J. O'Connor of New York; Charles H. McGlue of Massachusetts; John E. Regan of Minnesota; E. Wayles Brown of Louisiana, and George F. Short of Oklahoma.

Delos Emmons as western defense commander, the war department announced tonight. Gen. Emmons is leaving the San Francisco assignment for an undisclosed post.

LUCAS DEMANDS LYTTELTON QUIT FOR SLUR AT U. S.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The resignation of Oliver Lyttelton, British production minister, was demanded by Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] in the senate today, while the capital awaited verification of reports that British Ambassador Halifax might apologize to Secretary of State Hull for Lyttelton's accusation that the United States provoked the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor.

Sen. Lucas.

Sen. Shipstead [R., Minn.], told the senate the time has come to summon Joseph P. Kennedy, former American ambassador to Great Britain, for questioning regarding the assertion that Winston Churchill was permitted to use the secret American diplomatic code for communications with President Roosevelt.

Not First Such Case.

It was charged in the British House of Commons last Friday that these communications were made before Britain went to war, while Churchill was still first lord of the admiralty. In the interchange, a member of parliament said, Mr. Roosevelt pledged American aid in case Britain went to war.

An equally important development in the comments on American affairs emanating from London was the revelation by Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] that Lyttelton's was not the first British accusation that the United States brought the Japanese war on. Brewster reported that Gerald Campbell, British minister to the United States, and Ambassador Halifax's right hand man, said in a speech in Portland, Me., last fall: "If you Americans hadn't urged us to break our Japanese alliance, we might not be in this mess now."

Suspect Ulterior Motive.

Several members of congress have commented that there is nothing accidental about the sudden flow of statements from London on American affairs. Some say the statements may be intended in some way to affect the Republican convention. Others profess to see in them indication that the British have decided to "pull the rug out from under" President Roosevelt and place their dependence in a Republican administration.

Lucas branded Lyttelton's statement an "ugly slur" upon the nation which, he said, was not removed by Lyttelton's apology of today. Lucas said Lyttelton's words would not have been surprising if issued by Nazi or Japanese propagandists, and went on:

"What Lyttelton said must have given Hitler and Tojo renewed hope in their desperate attempt to exploit what little discontent there is in this country over the progress of the war."

Commends Secretary Hull.

Commending Secretary of State Hull for his prompt rebuke of Lyttelton, Lucas told the senate:

"Those who have control of the British government at this hour cannot afford to permit such an unreliable and dangerous character to continue in high public office for the good of the allied cause."

Observing that diplomats "have their ways in clouds and darkness," Shipstead said it was a trifle severe to ask Lyttelton's resignation, since, Shipstead explained, Lyttelton is neither a politician nor a diplomat.

Shipstead then proceeded to the purported Roosevelt-Churchill communications. The house of commons was told Friday by John McGovern, a member, that it was for revealing these communications that Tyler Kent, a clerk for Kennedy, who was then ambassador, is serving a sentence in a British prison.

"The time has come," Shipstead said, "when the senate should take cognizance of the debates in the house of commons and ask Ex-Ambassador Kennedy to come here and let us know whether he permitted the secret code of the United States to be used by Winston Churchill—whether this was done [illegible] the consent of our then ambassador.

"I cannot believe that Winston Churchill, while lord of the admiralty, would connive with this man Kent, a subordinate in the American embassy. That would be an insult to his intelligence, and he is a very intelligent man."

Brewster told THE TRIBUNE that Campbell made his remark about the Americans urging the British to break their Japanese alliance and thus perhaps bringing on the war, in a speech before the Portland Rotary club. Little attention was given to the statement by others, Brewster said. But Brewster explained he talked to Campbell privately after the address and that Campbell confirmed and elaborated his statement.

AIR PRESSURE KEEPS CABIN OF B-29 NORMAL, CREW COMFORTABLE

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The new B-29 Super Fortresses which bombed Japan last week are the first military planes in the world with pressurized cabins, the war department disclosed today. Special superchargers keep the air pressure inside the planes at nearly normal even when at extremely high altitudes.

The construction of the cabin sections to permit this forced air pressure also allows a high degree of soundproofing and cabin heating. It increases the comfort of the crew members, who can dispense with the oxygen masks.

Each man in a B-29 is equipped with an oxygen mask, however, to wear in case enemy fire punctures the cabin wall and reduces the interior air pressure. Each crew member gets a new type of electrically heated flying suit. Food warmers are part of the equipment.

LYTTELTON APOLOGIZES

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—Oliver Lyttelton, minister of prduction, today told the house of commons he had no complaint so far as the accuracy of the reporters who, yesterday, quoted him as having said that America had provoked Japan to such an extent that the latter was forced to make the Pearl Harbor attack. Lyttelton also said any misunderstanding regarding yesterday's speech before the American chamber of commerce here was "entirely my own fault."

Lyttelton's statement in commons follows: "I feel that an explanation is due the house of some of the words I used in a speech to the American chamber of commerce yesterday.

"I was trying to make clear the gratitude which this country feels for the help given us in the war against Germany before Japan attacked the United States.

"His Own Fault."

"The words I used, however, when read textually and apart from the whole tenór of my speech seemed to mean that the help given us against Germany provoked Japan to attack. This is manifestly untrue. I want to make it clear that I do not complain of being misreported and that any misunderstanding is entirely due to my own fault.

"I ask the house to believe that the fault was one of explanation and not intention and I hope this explanation will undo any harm which the original words may have caused either here or in the United States."

London papers, this morning, took the line that Lyttelton either was "misquoted" or "misunderstood."

According to a United Press reporter who heard Lyttelton's speech, he said:

"America never was truly neutral. There is no doubt where her sympathies were. And it is a travesty on history ever to say that the United States was forced into the war. America provoked the Japs to such an extent that they were forced to attack."

feet high and commands the railway entering the port.

The German controled Paris radio told the French people, meanwhile: "The battle of Cherbourg has begun. A late Berlin dispatch states that American advance troops have begun the assault on the southern fortifications of the town."

Put Torch to Port.

It was known from aerial photographs that demolitions have been going forward rapidly in the port. It was believed, however, that any destruction to quays, ports, and similar installations could be repaired more easily than was similar destruction in Tripoli.

Behind the American spearhead, which according to one report was fighting in the streets of Cherbourg, the main forces moved rapidly forward, liberating Acqueville, 5½ miles to the southwest and Teurtheville-Hague, aboue a mile and a half to the south. The capture of these villages was accomplished in a broad thrust to the west which allied headquarters said "has taken us to within 5 miles of the sea."

Reported Moving Out.

At many points the enemy did not halt to give battle at his outer defenses. Reports from prisoners were that the Germans were moving some troops out of the port to Cap de la Hague at the extreme northwestern tip of the peninsula.

The heaviest fighting was in an area southwest of Cherbourg where American troops who reached Bois Mons sur Roc on Tuesday were held up thruout the night by artillery and mortar fire. The guns set the woods on fire and yesterday morning their advance was resumed.

Progress was swifter from the south because the defenses of Cherbourg appeared to be strongest on the eastern and western flanks where the country is well suited for delaying action. There was no official news of any naval bombardment of the port, but despite bad weather, bombers continued to assist ground forces.

Astride Main Road.

On the southeast the Americans were astride the main road north from Valognes to Cherbourg.

Coastal roads nine miles east of Cherbourg to Cap Levy and 18 miles to the west to Cap de la Hague were in German hands, but were under heavy artillery fire.

At Carentan, weakest link of the allied beachhead, the Americans were pushing across flood lands to stronger positions. Farther south American patrols were reported about two miles north of the road center of St. Lo.

It was learned from broadcasts from the American front of the Cherbourg peninsula that pamphlets have been dropped among the Germans trapped in the city advising them to surrender. The Germans were told that if they do they will be given "fair treatment".

Leaflets, also dropped on Cherbourg, appealed to French residents to prevent sabotage by the Germans.

On the British-Canadian sector at the east end of the allied beachhead, the Tommies captured Onchy, three and a half miles southwest of Tilly-sur-Seulles. A battle of tanks for control of Hottot, a mile to the west, then swayed back and forth.

EYEWITNESS STORY

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES OUTSIDE CHERBOURG, June 21.—All this afternoon we listened to the Long Toms [155 mm. rifles] and medium artillery hammering at the German line, which in one sector contains more than 30 pillboxes.

The dominating terrain lay immediately south of Cherbourg and it was for this that our soldiers were busily fighting this afternoon. It was not a full scale attack by any means but rather a process of probing and stabbing to determine just what the enemy had.

Control Approaches.

In their concrete pillboxes, which control the probable avenues of approach to higher ground, the Germans have concentrated machine guns and 88 millimeter guns. Their perimeter in turn is protected by other automatic weapons' fire, all in all an extremely tough position.

When I saw our troops today they had marched and fought between 15 and 18 miles in the last two days. Their heaviest fight to date had been to by-pass Valognes on the west. But they had moved so fast, while another column was punching away on the other side of the town, that the enemy fled in a great hurry. The first column found eight 88 mm. guns abandoned and captured four tank crews intact with their light French Hotchkiss tanks.

Enemy evacuation was so swift that our troops found themselves able to occupy without much trouble an important hill mass just south of what appears to be the main German defenses.

As he told us about this today, a general shook his head in puzzlement. He had never found this reaction among the Germans we fought in Tunisia.

Immensely Pleased.

Now with the main column, he found himself immensely pleased with its battle conduct and progress. With him was his aide, Lt. Lewis Dietz, 19, Los Angeles, Cal., formerly from Peru, Ind., who was graduated from St. Johns Military academy, Delafield, Wis., in 1942 and then lied about his age to get into the army.

An officer, who had experience with civilian clad prisoners, was Lt. James B. Fahy, Sherwood, O., who had been complaining that his anti-tank company had been called on to fire only seven shots in two days and then their only target was a German observation post in a church steeple.

He said the prisoners, who were wearing civilian clothes, had begun to cry when he made them turn their backs while waiting for an interpreter to arrive, fearing that he intended to kill them.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 21 (AP).—The text of allied war bulletin No. 32, issued tonight:

"Allied forces have made further progress in the battle for Cherbourg and the area held by the enemy is steadily diminishing.

"Our advance up the peninsula has been rapid.

"On the coast we have driven forward astride the main road north from Valognes. To the west a broad thrust has taken us to within five miles of the sea, liberating the villages of Teurtheville, Hague, and Acqueville.

"Heavy fighting continues in the Tilly-Caen area, where attacks and counter-attacks have left the front generally unchanged. In other sectors there has been patrol activity.

"Dense clouds over the battle area limited air operations this morning.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

The Wednesday German high command war bulletin as recorded by the Associated Press:

"In Normandy, the enemy bridgehead east of the Orne was narrowed still more. Enemy attacks southwest of Tilly-sur-Seulles were repelled. Fifteen tanks were knocked out in the course of this fighting.

"Attacks by the enemy north of Valognes failed. The enemy felt his way with weak forces toward the south front of Cherbourg fortress, which were repelled. Several armored patrol cars were set afire by gunfire.

"In the course of the fighting on the beachhead the garrison of one of our strongholds of signaling troops under its commander, Lt. Egle, particularly distinguished itself.

"During the night battleplanes scored hits at enemy ship concentrations off the coast of Normandy. Since June 6 the air forces of the army and navy as well as army and naval coastal batteries have sunk off the coast of Normandy and in the channel two cruisers, 14 destroyers, four speedboats, 27 merchantships and transports totaling 167,400 tons and 12 tank carrying vessels of together 18,300 tons. This list does not include enemy losses caused by mines.

"Three heavy cruisers, three further cruisers, 21 destroyers, nine motor torpedo boats, 68 merchant and transport vessels totaling 287,000 tons, two land craft totaling 4,000 tons, and one steamer of medium size were damaged by bomb, torpedo, and artillery hits."

QUEBEC SIMILAR TO BRICQUEBEC THRU ACCIDENT

The similarity between the names of Bricquebec, the Norman town captured by American troops Monday, and Quebec, the Canadian province and city, seems to be an accidental one. Quebec is believed to be an Algonquin Indian word meaning "a strait or sudden narrowing," and Champlain, early French explorer and colonizer of the St. Lawrence valley, said that the site of the city was called Quebec by the natives. [The St. Lawrence river narrows from 2,500 yards to 1,314 yards at Quebec.]

The Norman town is much older. A castle and keep dating from the 14th century suggest that it was a place of some importance 300 years before Quebec was founded. The origin of the name is obscure.

NEWS FREEDOM KEY TO WORLD PEACE: BERLE

New York, June 21 (AP).—A free exchange of information among nations is a "major necessity" in the successful operation of a world security organization after this war, Adolf A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state, declared tonight.

His unqualified indorsement of the principle of international news freedom apparently placed it among the objectives of American foreign policy for the post-war world. Berle spoke before the Foreign Press association.

"Four great countries, the United States, Great Britain, the soviet union, and China," he said, "committed themselves at Moscow to work out as soon as practicable a world peace organization for the purpose of assuring continued peace when the present battles are done.

"It is not too much to say that freedom of information is a major necessity if world organization is to succeed. . . ." Berle added that "propaganda which is misrepresentation" and also "plain lies" may be started under a system of free press, but "will not last long."

YANKS HAMMER BERLIN; FLY TO BASES IN RUSSIA

Complete First Shuttle Raid from Britain.

LONDON, June 22 [Thursday]—(AP).—Berlin was blasted yesterday by more than 1,000 United States heavy bombers, under a fighter escort of the same size in the greatest raid of the war on the German capital. Early today it was disclosed that some of the bombers flew on to Russia, completing the first shuttle mission from bases in Britain.

The British early today announced that R. A. F. Mosquitos had followed up the American assault by bombing the German capital again last night. Other R. A. F. night bombers struck simultaneously at unidentified targets in western Germany.

Bomb Plane Engine Plant.

A dispatch from Russia said soviet and American fighters escorted the 8th air force crewmen on their mission and soviet and American ground crews welcomed the flyers who poured out of the planes by the hundreds. Bombers from Italy previously had established a shuttle operation between their bases and the U. S. S. R.

The Berlin raiders, with their escort of fighters, bombed an aircraft engine factory at Basdorf, a suburb, the Berlin railroad yards, factories, and other military objectives.

Forty-three bombers and 15 fighters were lost to heavy anti-aircraft fire and the few enemy planes which rose to meet them. Forty-nine German planes were shot down, 20 by fighters and 29 by bombers' guns.

Nazis Threaten Retaliation.

German propagandists, admitting casualties and damage in Berlin, threatened counter-action with "bigger and more powerful explosives."

Eighth air force fighters, some with little to do convoying the heavies to Berlin, strafed enemy air dromes and communications.

Most of the bombers dropped their cargoes thru cloud cover. Only a few groups saw enemy planes and these were mainly two engined JU-88s.

Thunderbolts, Mustangs, and Lightnings swept in to attack about 50 of them and one pilot said about every JU-88 he saw was smoking, blowing up, or its crew was bailing out. One Mustang group reported shooting down eight Nazis while losing one plane.

Twelve Land in Sweden.

Stockholm reported that 12 more bombers made emergency landings in Sweden, making a total of 33 in two days of widespread raids on the reich.

Lt. K. W. Stewart of Decatur, Ill., a Fortress pilot, said, "It was my second time over Berlin without seeing a single enemy fighter."

"We made our run between two huge banks of clouds and condensation trails," said Lt. Paul Middleton of Ottawa, Ill., a Fortress pilot. "It was just like riding down a big avenue. Right after bombs were away one of our motors conked out. We kept falling back from formation to formation until we just ran out of formations. Fortunately, there were no enemy planes around us."

Lt. William Anderson, 7915 Vernon av., Chicago, and Capt. William Bryan Jr., Flint, Mich., were credited with shooting down two German planes each. Capt. Fred Haviland Jr., 6041 Matson av., Chicago, and Lt. Glennon Moran, Granite City, Ill., each bagged one, while Ira Bunting, Albion, Ill., was credited with one-half.

A flight of four Thunderbolts set a new distance record by flying to Berlin.

ENGLAND MUST FREE PALESTINE, AFL CHIEF SAYS

Broke Promises to Jews, He Charges.

Great Britain's "broken promises to the Jews and her attempted enforcement in Palestine of the infamous White Paper have forfeited all British rights to stewardship over Palestine" in the post-war world, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said in a telegram to a Jewish gathering in Chicago last night.

The telegram was read at a dinner in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, sponsored by the Chicago labor committee of the Jewish National fund, to raise money for the establishment of a Palestine colony in memory of Josiah Wedgwood, British Laborite. Green, who had been scheduled as special guest, was unable to attend.

Freedom to Be Proposed.

The telegram added that at the peace conference the AFL will urge establishment of Palestine as a free and independent nation.

"When victory in this war is won," the telegram said, "justice demands complete retribution against those responsible for Hitler's crimes against humanity and full reparation to the surviving victims of his wrath.

"We cannot restore life to those who have been wantonly killed, but we can try to heal the broken hearts of the living and return to them their stolen liberties and their material possessions. Above all, the American Federation of Labor intends to press with all its power at the peace conference for the permanent establishment of Palestine as a Jewish national homeland. We want to establish it as a free, democratic, self-governing land, with no strings attached to Great Britain or any other power.

Immigration Curbs Hit.

"Great Britain has forfeited its right to stewardship over the affairs of Palestine by repudiating its own promises to the Jewish people and by attempting to enforce the infamous White Paper. Palestine must be as free and independent as any other nation after the war, and to that end we advocate that all restrictions against immigration of Jewish refugees to that country be lifted at once."

Joseph M. Jacobs, Chicago labor attorney, presided at the dinner. Speakers included Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel; Harry O'Reilly, representing the Chicago Federation of Labor; Sam Levin, president of the CIO Illinois State Industrial council; Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor; Albert Towers and Michael Mann, president and secretary, respectively, of the Chicago Industrial Union council, and representatives of Zionist and Jewish labor organizations.

Charge of Beer Sales to Air Cadets Dropped

Judge Gibson E. Gorman in South State Street Municipal court yesterday dismissed charges of illegal sales to under age service men by Paul John Lyden, 36, of 862 Newport av. in a tavern at 1221 Wilson av. Cadets George McKnight Jr. and Harry Whitlock, each 20, of the Glenview naval air station, testified they had been served beer in the place, but Atty. Lawrence Dowd, representing Lyden, said the beer had not been analyzed and that a Supreme court finding did not classify beer as intoxicating.

DE GAULLE PACT TO SATISFY U. S., LONDON HEARS

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—An agreement acceptable to the United States, which has not recognized Gen. Charles de Gaulle as head of the provisional government of France, will be drawn by the time De Gaulle returns to London from Algiers, diplomatic circles in London predicted tonight.

Talks between the British government and the delegate of the French national committee, Pierre Vienot, were progressing smoothly, it was reported. They were focused on the immediate problem of civil administration of liberated areas in France.

Recognition by Norway.

An intense campaign in the British press and in parliament has been going on to confront the United States with a fait accompli, which would force American recognition of De Gaulle. As a result, the Norwegian government announced today it recognized the provisional government.

Begin Normandy Task.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 19 [Delayed]. — (AP). — Representatives of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's provisional government have moved into liberated sections of Normandy to set up political control of civil affairs.

Francois Coulet, who was secretary-general of Corsica and underprefect for that area, has arrived in Bayeux to take over duties as commissioner of the republic for the region of Rouen.

The provisional government does not plan to hold local elections until all France has been liberated, according to Coulet.

In addition to directing civil affairs, Coulet's organization intends to enlist a volunteer territorial army as a small token force to help the allied military keep order.

WHERRY RENEWS APPEAL TO F.D.R. TO REVEAL AIMS

Asks Commitments Made in Name of U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—Demands for President Roosevelt to tell American war and peace aims and to reveal any commitments he has made in the name of the United States, were renewed today by Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] in a senate speech.

Sen. Wherry.

Recalling that Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.] directly appealed to the President a month ago to let the people of this and other countries know what American aims were, Wherry said the invasion of France made it imperative for the President to speak now.

"If we who are charged with the task of keeping our American ideals uncompromised, and of sharing them with other peoples, are faithful in carrying out these obligations, we must have more facts placed in our possession," Wherry declared.

Demands Frank Statement.

"We would be false to our trust if we did not continue to insist that the gravity of the task which confronts us demands a frank and honest statement from our President as to what commitments he has made in our name.

"What hope does he hold out to our men, now fighting and dying on the battle fronts, that their most fervent prayers will be answered? What plans have been made to insure the recognition of the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness?

"I shudder to think of the utter disillusionment that will follow this war if its veterans discover we have failed them in these tasks."

What U. S. Expects.

Two roads are open to the nations of the world, Wherry said. One, he continued, is that of increased reliance on armed force as an instrument of national policy. The other is reliance on peaceful processes and law and order in international relations.

"The American people are now fighting for peace and freedom for all peoples," Wherry declared. "This is the task they have placed in the hands of our loved ones. They demand no less from their statesmen.

"At least the American people want to go on record with a faith, even tho all hell has finally broken loose in the midst of men, that they have not surrendered their fight to keep alive all the ideals of truth, justice, and liberty.

"What, then, are our peace aims? What commitments have been made? God help us if in this dark hour we continue to leave our own people unenlightened, or the suffering peoples of Europe without a promise for the future."

COL. POLETTI BECOMES AMG CHIEF IN ROME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 21. — Col. Charles Poletti arrived today from Naples and took over as chief of the allied military government for the Rome region and announced that the first matters on his agenda were the ousting of all Fascist minded officials from the local government and a drive against the black market.

Poletti, former acting governor of New York, recently was promoted from a lieutenant colonel and had been head of the AMG in Naples. The post there is held now by Col. John W. Chapman. Poletti takes the Rome area office from Col. Norman E. Fiske, who had been acting administrator here since Brig. Gen. Hume rejoined the 5th army.

Allies Pursue Retreating Germans

ALLIES IN ITALY HURL NAZIS BACK FIVE MORE MILES

ROME, June 21 (AP).—Allied troops tonight were battering the German army steadily back thru the hills more than 90 miles north of Rome. They were more than five miles beyond the stronghold of Perugia.

Across the breadth of Italy the Nazi armies again were in retreat toward their long-prepared "Gothic" defense line beyond Florence.

It was estimated that the enemy suffered 70,000 casualties since the allied "annihilation" offensive opened six weeks ago, and the end was not yet in sight.

Sun Shines Again.

It was disclosed that the 5th army, driving up the west coast, had taken prisoners from the 19th luftwaffe division, which left Belgium June 10, four days after the invasion of Normandy began. The allied offensive here thus had achieved another of its purposes—to draw strength from German defenses in western Europe.

A heavy rain which hampered allied movement for three days stopped today, and there was bright sunshine.

The allied plunge up the eastern, or Adriatic coastal road, brought seizure of Grottammare, a gain of 50 airline miles since the Nazis began retreating in that sector. On the west coast, American troops captured Monte Pescali, a height which dominated an important highway junction north of Grosseto. Castel del Piano also fell to the Yanks.

French Take 10 Villages.

French forces on the inland flank of the 5th army occupied 10 villages, the farthest advanced of which were Seggiano and Monticello. Immediately to the northeast, 8th army troops cleared the enemy from Chiusi and Cetona.

In storming one enemy strongpoint, American troops captured nine horsedrawn 150 mm. howitzers and 50 horses. A German military hospital overrun in the American advance contained more than 500 wounded Nazis, most of them hit by artillery fire.

Thunderbolt fighter-bombers of the allied tactical air force badly damaged a 20,000-ton enemy aircraft carrier in Genoa harbor yesterday, scoring five direct hits. The vessel was believed to have been the Italian carrier Regola, which the Nazis have been refitting since it was damaged in a previous attack.

CONTINUE GARAGE CASE.

The case of Al Golla, who promised to renovate a converted garage at the rear of his home, 5245 Union av., to make it livable for a Negro tenant war worker and was charged with violating city health ordinances, was continued yesterday in License court to July 12.

ROME COMMAND DECIDES GIGLI WILL NOT SING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, June 21.—Behind the announcement by the Rome area command that Beniamino Gigli will not sing tomorrow night at the Royal Opera house is a little story.

Beniamino Gigli.

Gigli, famed tenor, often called the second Caruso, had been publicized as the chief attraction at a performance to be given for British officers and men. Other Italian musicians and singers protested that Gigli had been notorious for his Fascist sympathies and had sung frequently for the Germans.

The British, however, went ahead with the arrangements. Again the Italian musicians, reënforced by anti-Fascist leaders, objected, pointing out that the inauguration of the concert series by a man with such a background would have unfortunate reverberations. So late today the Rome area command acted and canceled Gigli's performance.

F. D. R. Names Successor to Women's Bureau Head

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—President Roosevelt today sent to the senate the nomination of Frieda S. Miller of New York to be director of the labor department's women's bureau. If her appointment is confirmed she will succeed Mary Anderson, who is retiring as director of the bureau. Miss Miller formerly was New York labor chief.

INFANTRY PAY RAISE APPROVED BY HOUSE GROUP

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Extra pay for infantrymen and glider borne troops was voted today by the house military committee.

The committee approved legislation to give "expert infantrymen" engaged in combat duty an increase of $10 a month, those not in combat an additional $5, and members of glider units the same 50 per cent pay increase given paratroopers.

REDS LAUNCH 2 NEW DRIVES AGAINST FINNS

Report Gains in Both of Offensives.

LONDON, June 21 (AP).—The Red army launched two new offensives today against Finland, driving both from the northeast and the southeast in an attempt to knock the Finns out of the war, Moscow announced tonight.

Springing into action on the new fronts less than 24 hours after announcement of the fall of Viipuri, Finland's second city, soviet troops struck north of Lake Onezhskoe [Onega] with a thrust that broke thru lines east of Medvezhegorsk, and opened another drive along the Svir river, between lakes Onezhskoe and Ladoga.

These offensives were along the Murmansk-Leningrad railway, which Russia apparently is bent upon clearing. The front at Medvezhegorsk is about 240 miles northeast of Viipuri and the one along the Svir is 150 to 200 miles east of the captured port.

Svirstroi and Voznesene were listed among cities captured.

Advance from Viipuri.

The broadcast Russian bulletin said that in the first day of the attack along the Svir, soviet units occupied more than 200 populated places. Another broadcast said soviet troops already were fighting in the outskirts of Medvezhegorsk.

The midnight supplement to the Russian bulletin asserted that the Russians "by determined and daring blows of our infantry and tanks" had thwarted every Finnish attempt to stop the advance of soviet units.

Artillery Blasts Path.

Massed fire from artillery was blasting the way for the advance of infantrymen beyond Viipuri. Soviet planes attacked the vital railway junction of Elisenvara, 50 miles northeast of Viipuri, thru which reenforcements and supplies for Finnish forces east and north of Lake Ladoga must pass.

[The Berlin war bulletin said: "At the southern sector of the eastern front, south of the Smolensk motorcar high road and southeast of Vitebsk, local attacks by the enemy failed. Escort ships of the navy on June 19 sank in the Finnish bay in hard naval and air fights five soviet motor torpedo boats and damaged six more vessels, some of which caught fire, and in addition shot down nine enemy planes. One of our own vessels was lost."]

German "Losses 7,800,000."

LONDON, June 22 [Thursday]—(AP).—The soviet information bureau, on the third anniversary of the German attack on Russia, reported tonight that more than 7,800,000 Germans had been killed or captured in the three years of fighting.

The review, broadcast from Moscow, put Russian losses at 5,300,000 killed, missing, or captured.

COURT ORDERS INQUIRY INTO TUGWELL FIGHT

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, June 21 (AP).—The Supreme court of Puerto Rico today ordered an investigation of a political party's charge that Gov. Rexford Guy Tugwell had offered District Judge Emilio Belaval a permanent post at San Juan in return for reinstating 85,000 voters whose registrations had been judged defective by the insular Supreme court.

The charge was made by the Progressive Republican Union, one of Puerto Rico's largest political parties, in a motion before Belaval asking that he disqualify himself in the case. Belaval, recently transferred temporarily to the District court here from his regular district at Bayamon, refused to hear evidence on the motion and dismissed it.

The Supreme court ruled Belaval should have heard the evidence and reaffirmed the invalidity of the registrations.

FINNS' MINISTER, PROCOPE, 2 AIDS LEAVE CAPITAL

Diplomat's Family, 3d on Staff Remain.

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The state department completed arrangements today for the return to Finland of Hjalmar J. Procope, Finnish minister, and two of his counselors and they have left Washington.

Procope's wife and their children will remain here until after their next child is born, probably in two or three weeks, and she has recovered her health.

Procope advised the state department that he desired to go to Finland as soon as possible.

The minster and three counselors of the legation recently were ordered out of the country because of what the state department called "activities on their part inimical to the interest of the United States." Secretary Hull has refused to say specifically what the activities were. The status of this country's relations with Finland remains unchanged.

The other two counselors are T. O. Vahervuori and Risto Solanko.

It had been understood the diplomats would sail from New Orleans on a Spanish steamer. If this is true, it would mean the government here had arranged with the British for safe conduct.

NAZI PRISONERS GO ON 'STRIKE' IN BEET FIELDS

Scottsbluff, Neb., June 21 (AP).—German war prisoners from the prison camp here, employed by the Washakie Beet Growers' association at Worland, Wyo., have refused to work since yesterday in protest of a change from day rate to piece work pay, Lt. Col. Clyde B. Dempster, camp commander, said today.

Dempster did not disclose the number of prisoners who refused to work. The men formerly were paid 80 cents a day to work in beet fields. New regulations provide 80 cents for thinning a quarter acre in eight hours.

Dempster said disciplinary action will be taken if the men continue to refuse to work.

YUGOSLAV KING IN ITALY; CONFERS WITH ALLIED COMMANDERS

ROME, June 21 (AP).—King Peter of Yugoslavia is in Italy with his prime minister for conferences with the allied supreme command, it was announced late tonight.

Premier Ivan Subasic said Peter was conferring with the allied command on unification of fighting forces inside Yugoslavia.

The premier's announcement said Peter had visited in Malta while Subasic held conferences with the Yugoslav Partisan, Marshal Tito, which resulted in "agreement on many points" between the Partisan group and the royal government-in-exile.

'MIRACLE' OF U.S. POWDER OUTPUT HAILED IN HOUSE

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—Congress today heard how an American production miracle saved a nation plunged into war after it had stripped itself of powder and ammunition for the British following Dunkerque.

Rep. Engel [R., Mich.], who is noted for his previous exposures of war department waste and extravagance, described the manufacture of 6 billion pounds of explosives since 1941 as one of the most amazing chapters in industrial history.

He presented to the house the results of a personal investigation of the 58 powder-explosive, shell-loading, and bag-loading plants of the country which have been established since the pre-war period when there were practically no plants of the kind in existence.

Peril Known to Few.

Only a few men, Engel said, knew the peril which faced the nation when it suddenly was confronted with a war time demand for tremendous quantities of powder and explosives. There was merely a shotgun ammunition manufacturing capacity available.

"When Dunkerque came and we turned over to the British a great deal of our small quantity of TNT in reserve, those of us who knew the story were much alarmed," Engel declared. "Those were anxious days, but the response of industry was amazing."

The explosive and chemical plants shot up like magic, Engel said, with companies manufacturing breakfast foods, cameras, and carbonated beverages among those taking over the operation of factories producing "the most critical of all critical war items."

New Method Used.

"Today, we have 58 plants constructed at a cost of nearly 2½ billion dollars," he told the house. "During 1941, we produced 375 million pounds of explosives. In 1942 and 1943, we produced 5 billion pounds, and nearly a billion pounds in the first four months of 1944.

"We produced TNT by a new method so fast that we had to close plants. We loaded 7½ million tons of artillery ammunition and bombs and 71 million artillery-propelling charges.

"Costs were reduced. A 16 inch shell complete, including the propelling charge, cost us $1,809 in January, 1943. In January, 1944, it dropped to $1,430.

Many Plants Closed.

"A number of TNT, shell loading, and bag loading plants have been closed. Did the war department over-build? It is impossible for me to find it in my heart to criticize it for having too much ammunition or equipment on time or ahead of time. This war never will be lost by having too much powder, explosives, ammunition, and equipment. We came very near losing it by having too little."

An amazing safety record has been compiled in these plants, Engel revealed, largely because of new devices adopted for the protection of workers and the adoption of rigid rules to guard against carelessness.

"One company ordered a complete change of clothes for all visitors to the plant," he remarked. "Officers of one foreign nation refused indignantly to take off their pants. They did not see the plant."

Operating Costs 1½ Billion.

Total cost of operating the plants to March 31, 1944, was $1,477,130,000, Engel reported. The total fixed fee of all the companies up to that date was 65 million dollars, or 4.4 per cent of the operating cost.

Assuming an average of 70 per cent excess profits taxes, 45½ million of the fixed fees was paid back into the treasury and the net cost to the government was 19½ million, or 1.3 per cent.

Engel asserted credit for the amazing record should be divided among 200,000 workers, most of them previously inexperienced in factory labor, war department officers, and private industries, who have turned out "enough explosives to make the heart of every Jap and German quake with fear."

Keep Hands Off Press, Minister Advises an M. P.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—Brendan Bracken, minister of information, today refused to use his influence with newspapers to induce them to give wide publicity to the activities of regular and irregular Italian forces behind German lines in Italy. Answering a request by Richard Acland, member of parliament, he said, "Editors should be allowed to run their papers without interference by the ministry of information."

Sweet potatoes, becoming more plentiful, lead the list of vegetables on which prices are lowered today under office of price administration ceilings for Chicago for the next seven days. Their new price is two pounds for 19 cents, down 7 cents. New California white potatoes will drop to 5 pounds for 23 cents, off 6 cents; dry yellow onions, 3 pounds for 17 cents, off a cent; field grown cucumbers for 2 cents a pound lower at 9½, and all varieties of spinach drop 1½ cents to 11½ cents a pound.

700 ISLE NATIVES COMING TO WORK IN FOOD PLANTS

More than 700 natives from the Barbados Islands will arrive in Chicago this week-end to start work in food processing plants and canneries in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

The workers were recruited by H. C. Buchanan of the war man power commission Chicago regional office, who said they will help to relieve an acute shortage of labor. The number of German prisoners now in the plants is not sufficient to handle increased production, he said.

Accompanying Buchanan on the trip to the islands were L. O. Fish, personnel manager of the Hoopston Canning company, and B. W. Werner of the Corn Products Refinery, Chicago.

A divorce and $17,500 a year alimony were awarded Mrs. Julia Nathan, 35, of 7128 Coles av., yesterday by Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court. She accused her husband, Sol, 37, of desertion. Nathan owns dry goods stores in eight cities. They were married May 24, 1932, and separated Sept. 1, 1940, said Mrs. Nathan, who was represented by Attorneys Richard H. Devine and Michael H. Brodkin. Sixty per cent of the alimony is for the support of three children, Roberta, 6; Rayna, 8, and Esther Naomi, 9. Nathan also will give his former wife a $16,000 home in California.

AIR LINE BUYS $150,000 BONDS AT TRIBUNE SHOW

Marvel Anti-Aircraft Gun Thrills Visitors.

Honor Harvester Firm

Today is International Harvester day at the Tribune War Products show, dedicated to employes of the International Harvester company, for their contributions to the war. The company's Tractor Works octet will entertain visitors to the show from 7:35 to 7:55 p. m. The Negro swing band from Camp Robert will give a concert from 7 to 7:30 p. m., to be broadcast by W-G-N from 7:15 to 7:30.

American Airlines, Inc., yesterday purchased $150,000 of fifth war loan government securities from the United States treasury at the War Products show at the Tribune Tower. In the shadow of the big 90 mm. anti-aircraft gun being exhibited, Miss Torrie Wright, a stewardess for the airline, handed a check for the amount to B. Harrison Neuman, a member of the special events committee of the treasury department.

As he accepted the check, Neuman commented that the $150,000 war bond purchase could buy three such anti-aircraft guns, which are marvels of modern war engineering.

War Bond Sale

The guns are controled by electronics and are capable of bringing down enemy planes five miles in the air. The American Airlines purchase was part of the company's investment of 5 million dollars in war bonds thruout the country, of which $450,000 has been allotted to Chicago. The treasury department has a booth at the show where visitors may buy war bonds and stamps.

Show Open Daily.

The War Products show is sponsored by the treasury, in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE and armament manufacturers. Open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., the exhibit will continue thru July 9.

The American Communications association of the Congress of Industrial Organizations announced yesterday that it has topped the quota in its drive to sell $25,000 in war bonds among Western Union Telegraph company employes. The money will be used to send a mobile broadcasting unit to follow communications workers in the army signal corps. A mobile "radio station" unit of this type is on display at the War Products show. The union said that since the bond drive is continuing, Western Union employes may double their quota and send two broadcasting units overseas.

Children Visit Show.

Three hundred grade school children from Downers Grove visited the War Products exhibit yesterday. Accompanied by parents and teachers, they spent nearly two hours touring the grounds and the displays in the Tribune Tower building.

Among the exhibits which attracted their attention were anti-tank mines, manufactured by United Specialties company; hand grenades by the Semler company, and anti-personnel mines and fragmentation cluster bombs by Todd & Brown, Inc. The latter company also is exhibiting a parachute bomb, attached to a parachute produced by the Formfit company.

The school children were awed by 1,000, 2,000, and 4,000 pound bombs displayed in the big tent by the Elwood ordnance plant, and the 8 inch armor piercing shell manufactured by the Bethlehem Steel company. The J. I. Case company is showing a 500 pound bomb and a 155 mm. shell, while the National Enameling and Stamping company has on exhibit the 1,000 pound bomb it manufactures.

BAR GROUP ASKS 4 BIG CHANGES IN DIVORCE LAWS

Reform Report to Go to Board Today.

Illinois divorce law amendments recommended by a matrimonial law committee named last year by the Chicago Bar association will be submitted today to the association's board of managers. If the board approves the proposals, statutory amendments probably will be drafted by the Chicago Bar association for presentation to the legislature.

The committee recommends: Judicial interpretation of cruelty to permit granting of divorces for cruelty not involving physical mistreatment; elimination of indefinite continuance of separate maintenance status; admissibility of incurable insanity, accompanied by confinement, as a 10th ground for divorce in Illinois, and abolishing of the jurisdiction of City courts to grant divorces.

Separate Maintenance Hit.

Indefinite continuance of a marriage in which the man and wife live apart in separate maintenance is not desirable, and divorce is the only real and proper objective of proceedings in most such cases, the committee declared in its report. It based its opinion on a study of laws in other states and on the statements of sociologists.

The divorce statute should be amended, the committee reported, to provide that either party may obtain a divorce regardless of which was at fault after a couple has been separated three years.

Courts have limited divorce on the ground of cruelty to cases in which repeated acts of physical cruelty have been proved, the report cited, altho the statute is broad enough to include cruelties and indignities not of a physical character. The "necessity of showing physical cruelty has resulted in a very great deal of hypocrisy" in which plaintiffs have magnified slaps and slight pushes into acts of cruelty, the committee found. It recommended that mental indignities be recognized as cruelty sufficient for divorce.

Insanity Troublesome Point.

Whether insanity should be a ground for divorce was possibly the "most troublesome" question examined by the committee, it reported. Eighteen states permit divorce for this cause. The committee concluded that if insanity made, in effect, one spouse "dead" to the other, it was in the interest of society to terminate the marriage. Insanity with confinement for five years should be a ground for divorce, the committee recommended.

The committee investigated, from the view of public interest, the practice of City courts to grant divorces to nonresidents "with little publicity and a high rate of speed." Jurisdiction of the City courts in divorces has been held by the Supreme court to be confined to cases in which the cause of action occurred within the city. This requirement, the committee found, "is bound to encourage the presentation of 'framed' cases and perjured testimony."

City Courts Questioned.

Validity of many City court decrees may be subject to serious question, the committee reported, and it recommended that divorce cases be expressly excepted from the jurisdiction of the City courts.

In other opinions, the committee found that the creation of a reconciliation court is not necessary, as facilities already exist for assisting in reconciliations. It rejected a suggestion that all divorce plaintiffs be required to reside in the state for a prescribed period.

S. Ashley Guthrie is chairman, and Robert C. Cantwell Jr. is vice chairman of the committee on administration of matrimonial law and of the Chicago Bar association. Atty. David J. A. Hayes is a member representative of the board of managers.

U. S. SEA UNITS NEAR STRENGTH OF 3½ MILLION

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The personnel of the navy, marine corps, and coast guard stood at 3,400,646 men and women May 1, Sen. Walsh [D., Mass.] reported today to the senate. The total included 8,727 women officers and 71,980 enlisted women.

The total strength of the navy and marine corps June 30, 1938, was 11,695 officers and 122,631 men, said Walsh, who is chairman of the senate naval affairs committee.

After reviewing the decline of naval strength from the disarmament conference of 1922 until the late '30s, Walsh noted that the navy's permanent authorized strength today is 5,299,480 tons of battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, and submarines, compared with 780,000 tons of underage ships and 300,800 tons of overage vessels at the end of 1932.

CANDIDATE DEWEY.

Gov. Dewey's managers predict that he will have enough votes to nominate him on the first ballot taken by the Republican convention, an assertion that is denied by spokesmen for Gov. Bricker. It is certain, however, that he will enter the convention with the largest single block of votes.

Four years ago, when he went to Philadelphia in a similar position, only to see his support fade before the synthetic enthusiasm produced for Willkie by the packed gallery and the snowstorm of telegrams, Mr. Dewey was known to the nation principally as a fearless middle western crusader who had contended successfully and brilliantly against the gangsters and grafters of the nation's largest metropolis. This year, by reason of his governorship, Mr. Dewey comes to Chicago more thoroly the New Yorker and less the son of the middle west. He is still, of course, the product of an upbringing and education in Michigan.

In his career as prosecutor he was successively an assistant and then acting United States attorney in New York, a special state prosecutor appointed by Gov. Lehman, and district attorney of Manhattan. He sent to prison a notorious galaxy of murderers and racketeers, most of them allied with the Roosevelt political machine in New York and the disreputable element in that city's trade unions. Along with the gangsters he convicted Fritz Kuhn, the Bund leader, and Jimmie Hines, the Tammany politician. In the governor's office he carried on his fight against crime when he prevailed over the recalcitrance of President Roosevelt to yield custody of the murderer, Buchhalter, and eventually sent that gangster to the electric chair.

The racketeers whom Mr. Dewey convicted made a large part of their illicit profits by furnishing the gun power for various schemes of price fixing and restraint of trade in New York. Thus, in his career as a prosecutor, the future governor was not only a defender of law and order but of free enterprise as well.

It probably will be conceded, even by his supporters, that Mr. Dewey made a tactical error when, in his 1942 campaign for governor, he told the voters of New York state that he intended to serve out the four year term that he sought. That promise has been made an excuse for his failure to express himself on national issues as a candidate for nomination should. His silence, while it may originally have been politically helpful to him, has undoubtedly been a political liability in recent months.

Gov. Dewey has, however, adhered to the spirit of the promise that he made to the people of New York. He has devoted his attention almost exclusively to their affairs and the two years of his administration do not suffer in any way by comparison with that of one of his predecessors in Albany, Mr. Roosevelt. Not only has Mr. Dewey accumulated a large state surplus, whereas Roosevelt ran New York deeply into debt, but he has disclosed administrative talents of a high order.

His relations with his party's majority in the state legislature have been coöperative. He gets things done by mutual consent, not by sending "must" bills to the statehouse. He has shown courage in vetoing undesirable legislation and by insisting on the fulfilment of a campaign pledge for reapportionment of legislative districts, even tho it threatened the loss of eight seats in solidly Republican upstate New York.

Gov. Dewey's greatest administrative feat has been the reformation of the state's 30 institutions for the care of 90,000 insane and feeble minded, in which he broke a statutory monopoly of psychiatrists and social workers in order to insure that the inmates got competent medical care as well as psychiatric attention, and improved the pay and working conditions of the 20,000 attendants.

Gov. Dewey's greatest strength is also his greatest weakness. He comes from New York and it is asserted that he has the best chance of any candidate of carrying that state for the Republican Presidential ticket. Coming from New York, he is suspected of views peculiar to New York City which do not accord with the convictions of the rest of the country. The handicap imposed by this suspicion has been increased by his failure to state his position clearly and by his utterances last fall in favor of a British alliance, a policy which later statements suggest Mr. Dewey may have abandoned by now.

His early strength in the pre-convention campaign was traceable in part to the fact that four years ago Mr. Dewey was an unswerving nationalist and thus provided a rallying point for those determined to halt Mr. Willkie's efforts to continue betrayal of the Republican party. Unfortunately, no one can be sure how much Gov. Dewey stands for today that he stood for four years ago.

He is known to be surrounded by a close clique, a majority of whom find the Hudson river a wider barrier in their thinking than the Atlantic ocean. John Foster Dulles of the famous Cromwell international law firm has been a member of this coterie. The London Telegraph this week predicted, certainly without confirmation by Gov. Dewey, that, if the governor is elected President, Dulles will be the No. 1 or No. 2 man in the American state department. This is the principal and, it might be said, the only serious weakness in Mr. Dewey's case. If the delegates should nominate him they face the possibility that they will have bought another pig-in-a-poke and selected a candidate whose policies will not be in accord with those of the overwhelming majority of the party's members.

Mr. Dewey's representatives in Chicago should urge him to make an early and frank statement of his position on all national affairs. Failure to do this will and should be the most serious handicap to their quest on his behalf for the nomination.

REPUBLICAN FOREIGN POLICY.

Wisconsin delegates to the Republican national convention have drafted a plank for submission to the convention's platform committee demanding that the United States refuse to surrender any of its sovereign rights when it negotiates treaties after the war and declaring that "the least America should do is to hold what we have."

The men who defeated Willkie internationalism in Wisconsin this spring know the temper of the American people on this issue. They know that the Republican party cannot win if it enters into any compromise with the Europe-first crowd. Victory will come only upon a forthright declaration that the Republican President and his administration will protect, defend, and promote American interests wherever they lie thruout the world, and place those interests first in our conduct and negotiations with foreign powers.

The Wisconsin resolution is a good start in that direction, but it should be expanded. The Republicans should demand, in addition, that America retain such naval bases thruout the world as we need to protect our safety; that the air fields, radio equipment, and flight strips we have built in foreign countries must at least be paid for; and that we must have rights to fly commercial planes after the war into and over any foreign nation where other powers possess such rights.

LYTTELTON VS. HULL.

On Tuesday morning an editorial on this page contained the sentence: "It may yet be shown that the line of Anglo-American diplomacy was intended to goad Japan into war so that the joint desire of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt [for American participation in the European war] could be gratified."

When those lines were written it was not expected that a member of the British cabinet would make the same point on the same day, but that is what happened. Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, the British minister of production, speaking at a luncheon of the American Chamber of Commerce in London, said:

"Japan was provoked into attacking the Americans at Pearl Harbor. It is a travesty on history ever to say that America was forced into the war. Every one knows where American sympathies were. It is incorrect to say that America ever was truly neutral. . . ."

The statement aroused Mr. Hull's indignation. He issued a reply in which he asserted that America thruout the period was acting in her own interest, not in England's. Capt. Lyttelton felt obliged to rise in the house of commons to express regret, but he was careful to say that he had not been misquoted.

Of course he wasn't; and of course the protection of the English [and Dutch and French] colonies was the immediate goal of Mr. Roosevelt's pre-Pearl Harbor diplomacy. As was said in the editorial the other day, the Japanese were not directly threatening the Philippines or any of our other islands in the Pacific, much less our mainland. The Japanese were directly threatening the European colonies in Indo-China, Burma, Malaya, India, Java, Sumatra, New Guinea, etc. We told the Japanese to leave these colonies alone. The Japanese thought we were so heavily involved in the European theater that we couldn't take them on at the same time. They miscalculated, as events have proved, but, as Capt. Lyttelton has said, it was inevitable in view of their character, that they would regard our action as a provocation to war.

It is unwise of Mr. Hull in his role of diplomat to deny that the war against Japan came because of Mr. Roosevelt's desire to protect the British empire in Asia. He would gain more by admitting it, for he could then say to his allies, and they would have to concede it, that everything they hold in the orient they owe to us. If he is genuinly desirous of improving the position of the colonial peoples and, more especially, of strengthening America's hand in the Pacific, the best way to reach his goals is to impress his allies with their dependence upon us both for victory in this war and for any future security they may enjoy under the protection of our navy, our army, and our air force. Mr. Hull's statement weakens his diplomatic position in the negotiations that will follow the war.

Mr. Hull must know this. The real objection of the Roosevelt administration to Capt. Lyttelton's statement is based on fear of its consequences in our domestic politics. Mr. Roosevelt knows that his most vulnerable point in the campaign for the fourth term is his assertion again and again and again four years ago that he wasn't going to get this country into a foreign war. Capt. Lyttelton, with the inside information that is available to him as a member of the British cabinet, says that Mr. Roosevelt's diplomacy could have had no other result. The implication is that Mr. Roosevelt knew that all along. Of course he did.

LAKE, STAY 'WAY FROM MY DOOR!

[Rockford, Ill., Register-Republic.]

Chicago officials who have been striving for years to increase diversion of Lake Michigan waters into their sewage disposal canal undoubtedly are greeting gleefully the news from Milwaukee that an unusually high lake level there is damaging lake front improvements.

The Chicago plea for increased diversion, supported by dire warnings of an incipient epidemic, always has run up against contentions of other Great Lakes port cities that further diversion would leave their docks high and dry. Federal controls now limit the volume of water which Chicago may take from the lake for sewage disposal purposes.

A federal beach erosion board visited Milwaukee a few days ago to determine what means of protection should be adopted to save Milwaukee's receding shoreline, marked by crumbling sidewalks and lake shore embankments protecting paved streets and lakeside buildings.

Can it be, Chicago diversionists may well ask, that Milwaukeeans will rally to the support of her Illinois neighbor's diversion plea as the best means of keeping her own shoreline intact?

The capture of the island of Elba without harm to its Napoleonic curiosities reminds us that it is famous not only as a coop for a dictator in temporary retirement, but also for a palindrome, which means a sentence that reads the same backward as forward. This remarkable utterance summarizes Napoleon's career, thus: "Able was I ere I saw Elba." Now read it from right to left.

War times always cause a great increase in the colloquial use of "buddy" for companion. Webster's dictionary thinks that this word is probably a diminutive of "brother," but we have another hunch. There is no sentimentalism in its use, and the doughboy who speaks of his "buddy" does not imply that he regards his mate with fraternal affection. "Buddy" may come from "butty," an old English word with the same implication. A "butty" is a fellow workman, a partner, or a chum in English provincial dialect. It originated among bowmen in military service, because in practice shooting they worked in teams at the butts, or archery range.

* * *

If any one springs up to claim that "butty" has never been in American use, we will throw a book at him. It is in "The Mollie Maguires and the Detective," by Allan Pinkerton, published in 1877, and it frequently puts "butty" into the mouths of Irish miners working in the coal fields of Pennsylvania.

Cherbourg claims a lien [with a statue] on the fame of Jean François Millet, the painter. He was born in a nearby village and studied art briefly in Cherbourg before heading for Paris and Barbizon. One of his most famous pictures, hanging in the Art Institute, has been popular among several generations of Chicagoans. It is "Bringing Home the Newborn Calf."

THERE WAS A RAINBOW.

In these great days, how may a laggard pen
Bespeak their tidings, as our heralds speed
Fresh glories of our arms, each soon again
Eclipsed, transcended, by some brighter deed!
The plan comes clear, the mighty fleets embark,
The thundered wings that beat in thousandfold,
Demand an epic's strength; let me but mark
Some simpler thing that else might not be told.
In the time to come, when the books shall weave
The lustrous scroll that will live evermore,
Tell that a rainbow, on that fateful eve,
Arched o'er the channel, and on England's shore
They knew the promise that never has failed
And bore it with them as the proud ships sailed!

The Lost Art of Shooting Anvils.

It is a lost art now, but in the period following the Civil war no Fourth of July celebration was complete without shooting anvils.

A blacksmith's anvil weighs about 125 to 250 pounds. There is usually a hole or depression in the base large enough to hold half a pint to a pint or more of liquid. Two anvils, a keg of black powder, a long iron rod, and a bonfire were the essential materials. And four men, if the job was to be done shipshape and Bristol fashion.

An anvil was turned upside down on the ground so that the hole was on top. One man filled the hole with powder, and either left a train or laid a fuse. Two more lifted the second anvil and placed it top down on the other, thus confining the powder charge. The fourth, who had been keeping his iron rod red hot in the fire, touched her off. Sometimes a third anvil was laid on the top. The explosion would often send both several feet in the air and the noise was terrific.

A good crew could fire their anvils as fast as a gun crew on a muzzle-loading 12-pounder, and make more noise. In those days artillerymen back from the war got the first call when it came to shooting anvils. Glenn Stewart.

A father, too, has very stilted ways
Whereby he sings aloud his personal praise,
Telling of how he climbed to some tall height
Upon a calm-enchanted, radiant night,
How on tip-toe he stood and, reaching high,
Plucked for himself a star that lit the sky.

Weather for Witches.

The afternoon was hot and sultry, and everything was very still. The field of corn, knee high before its time, stood firm and immovable in long, straight lines, row upon row, like a great army at attention.

Then from the west dark clouds appeared and rapidly approached. A wind descended suddenly with gathering force. Lightning streaked in the blackness and there was thunder. The rows of corn, bent with the wind, were suddenly transformed into a mighty conclave of strange, fantastic creatures, fiendishly waving their arms in unison, like green-cowled witches from Macbeth, engaged in a delirious incantation. And one could almost hear them cry above the murmur of the wind, "Fair is foul, and foul is fair."

A. E. writes: "My husband in service carries a $10,000 life insurance policy. He has up until August, 1944, to convert it to a regular policy. Would like to know what steps it is necessary for him to take, whom to see in camp, and is it advisable for him to convert all or any part of it? He is 38. I doubt if he can carry the additional expense of converted insurance, but I don't want him to be without it."

ANSWER: Ordinarily the five year level premium term must be converted before the end of the 59th month it has been in force. In the case of a man still in service, probably all he can do is let the present policy expire but apply for a new one at least 60 days before that takes place. The five year level premium term is not renewable under present legislation, and since these policies do not accumulate a reserve, cash surrender value, or otherwise involve any loss to the insured upon lapsing, the only loss for not converting would be the higher premium rate on the new policy.

HEADACHE FROM EYESTRAIN.

SOME one has said that there are three score causes of headache. Well, perhaps there are more. At any rate, a wide variety of complaints, all centering in soreness about the skull, will point to trouble in some other part of the body.

As every physician knows, in a sizable percentage of cases the difficulty cannot be traced to an organic source. The most careful examination will fail to reveal anything wrong with the vital organs or their behavior. Elimination seems to be normal.

Not long ago, in discussing this question with a prominent ophthalmologist, I asked him if his experience bore out the assertion that eyestrain could be declared guiltless. "By no means," was his reply. "A great many people are unable to balance themselves emotionally. In consequence, they will blame the eyes, the digestive tract, the pelvic region, etc. But I know numerous individuals who are bothered just because they are obliged to do close work. In other words, the focusing mechanism is responsible. Again, I feel reasonably sure that many of those who suffer pain in the forehead, equal on both sides, are victims of eyestrain, involving the muscles which move the globes."

When asked about relieving the condition, he pointed out that certain patients can be freed from jitters, even tho complete comfort cannot be acquired. This has followed the correction of astigmatism and the proper adjustment of errors in refraction with suitable lenses.

To my inquiry, "Does this vary with age?" he answered, "Decidedly. As far-sightedness begins to come on with us oldsters, we encounter far more exhaustion of the pulleys. Furthermore, we are more inclined to pore over newspapers, books, and magazines." Thus these persons will develop what he termed "muscle fatigue headache" which is a sign that they have read more than enough. After a half hour of rest the complex will disappear.

When I mentioned the cerebral arteries and their possible engorgement, he remarked, "Yes, I believe that there is a close association between the nerves which control the caliber of the blood vessels and those which supply the orbs. In other words, I must be shown that correction of vision will not improve the symptoms before I am willing to say the eyes are not concerned in the matter."

We agreed that a few individuals have what is termed a "low threshold of pain"—they fatigue easily. They sense the slightest twinge. They have never become immunized to minor physical discomforts. Perhaps they belong to a frail type, wherein metabolism is on a thin edge and where nerves may be compared to piano wires instead of cables.

"Even in migraine," he concluded, "I would investigate the optics thoroly before I would absolve them completely—at least as a contributing factor."

We must not forget that there are two sets of muscles which are concerned with vision. These structures can become worn out just as readily as those which operate the arms and the legs. They are far more delicate, hence easily exhausted. One set has to do with the focusing power. The other group controls the movements of the eyeball. While all distress in the forehead does not come from the eyes, some of it must.

Trouble, Trouble.

Somewhere in Oklahoma is an eatery known as the Daisy Mae Tavern. Its waitresses dress like Daisy Mae, Li'l Abner's girl, in brief costumes with bare midriffs.

One of Oklahoma's staunch reformers, a lady who feels that the human skin is immoral, recently tried to get civil action brought against Daisy Mae's waitresses to force them to solidify their attire. Daisy Mae's proprietor thought this funny and sent the lady's objections, together with a picture of a waitress, to Institutions Magazine, a trade journal for the hotel field. The editor of Institutions directed a member of his staff to ignore the attached clipping of complaint, but to use the picture of the waitress with the caption: "New Attire for Hot Weather."

The picture was duly published, but beneath it, to the consternation of all, appeared the name of the lady reformer.

Republicans, Attention!

The Republicans should be warned that a Texas Democrat is wandering in their territory right now, hoping to cop the Vice Presidential nomination. This gentleman is a very snide worker who managed to get himself nominated for the same office by the Democrats in 1940, but we don't need to tell you at this late date that he did not get it.

His maneuvers would be considered sinister and tricky any other election year than this, for no more than two weeks ago he flatly told this department he was not a candidate. "Ah'm out of the race," he said then in that fine Texas snarl. "And this is why: The only time Ah'll be feelin' good is when the President is feelin' porely, and to be feelin' bad all the time is too much of a burden for any man."

Thinking him to be a man of his word, we wrote of his self-immolation at that time and published his name, he being sensitive about the whole thing, in mirror writing—Mocsab Snommit. He then said he would throw all his delegate strength to our ticket of Hickenlooper and Hoopengarner with Xenophon G. Hassenplug for secretary of state [and possibly Carbon Petroleum Dubbs for secretary of the interior].

Well, it was a mean ruse.

Yesterday while pushing thru the mobs trying to get something to eat in the Stevens and Blackstone hotels, we bumped into Mocsab again. Confident, smiling, strutting just a trifle, he was striding into the Mayfair room just as tho he ate there every day. Moreover, he had on the candidatorial mien again. He was shaking hands and remembering names.

"You're not——?" In our sorrow we could not finish the question.

He understood. "Yes," he said. "Ah'm in again. Changed mah mind."

"Who is going to nominate you?" we asked defiantly, knowing no one in his right mind would.

"No nomination," he said airily. "Not necessary. Is Dewey 'plannin' to be nominated? No. It'll be by acclamation."

"But——" we began in protest.

"No statement," he said. "No statement. You'll have to see mah manager. He's that man from South Carolina without a tie."

Presumably he was speaking of Tieless Joe Tolbert, who usually has troubles enough of his own getting a seat as a delegate without trying to 'nominate a Democrat, too.

All in all, it was a bad day for our polysyllabic ticket. It begins to look as if Hickenlooper and Hoopengarner may have some competition—and just when we were about to persuade Mr. Oscar Obeldobel to serve as campaign manager and Mrs. F. Peavy Heffelfinger of Wayzata, Minn., to head the women's division.

PATRONAGE AND BAND WAGONS.

Grayslake, Ill., June 14.—The patronage system in the federal government by which the chief executive can build up such a big following for himself should be corrected. Under this system, even before the convention we can visualize self-seeking delegates sizing up the several candidates with an aim of getting on the band wagon even before it gets going. Roosevelt worked this to a fine point when he favored those who were F. R. B. C. [For Roosevelt Before Chicago] after 1932. Today we wonder where so much support for Dewey can be coming from, or why there should be any support. He says he isn't a candidate, he says nothing as to what he stands for except a few remarks which were mostly unpopular in the midwest. It looks like a subtle and well directed and strongly supported movement from somewhere at which we might well look with mistrust. No doubt it is hoped to overwhelm that group who will want to be with a winner from the start.

If our faith in democracy is to be preserved there must be no repetition of 1940. The weight of eastern or seaboard leadership on which you have commented will have to be watched at every turn. In 1940 on the last day of the convention, at about midnight as we hung on our radios hoping for calmness and some common sense, the final ballot had just started—or had it really started? Anyway, some one who still had a clear head made a motion to adjourn. Surely a majority of the listeners and of the delegates must have been in favor of that motion, which we have been taught is always in order. An adjournment with a night's rest, some calm thinking, a slight relief from the planted crowd with its "We want Willkie" would have been highly in order. But up comes Chairman Joseph Martin to rule that the motion is out of order as the balloting had started.

Almost every listener who had followed the doings knew, and Chairman Martin must have known that this meant the nomination of Willkie with the resultant sell-out of the Republican cause. Some of the listeners could have shed tears, no doubt many did. The calmness of the next morning, with clearness of heads would likely have changed everything. Perhaps Sen. Taft would have been nominated or some one of a similar political pattern. Any other candidate except Willkie almost unquestionably could have won.

How can the Dewey supporters hope to nominate him? Maybe they don't. But they hope to kill off Bricker and in the deadlock bring out another dark horse, rubber stamp stooge who will be acceptable to the now embarrassed Willkie crowd. Let's hope and pray that there will be enough delegates of a high minded purpose who will see that this doesn't happen. The middle west wants Bricker, he has told us where he stands, he can win and we have no occasion to mistrust those who are backing his cause. "We want Bricker."

FOR BRICKER AND BYRD.

New Castle, Ind., June 19.—It seems to me the gentleman from Texas who suggests Bricker and Byrd is talking sense. The Republicans will need the aid of millions of Democrats and independent voters. A "closed shop" ticket might win but I doubt it. Well, here are millions of Democrats evicted from their old home—the home Jefferson knew and loved. What, if anything, is the G. O. P. going to do about it? Treat them as refugees and offer them asylum? Heaven forbid! Why not welcome them as brothers and sisters into full partnership in our do or die effort to save the Republic? And to show that the thing is real and not hokum, put Virginia's fine son on the ticket.

Sons of the south, sons of north, dying together on beachheads for the Republic. Why not men and women of the south and north fighting together shoulder to shoulder on the political beachheads for the Republic? Or is our courage too tepid and our imagination too confined for that?

The enemy's chief line of defense has been the Mason-Dixon line. Why not flank it with Bricker and Byrd and win? I could be wrong, of course, but it looks to me like the opportunity of a lifetime and one that may never come again.

TWO EGGS A WEEK.

Wood, Wis., June 18.—After reading a story in yesterday's Tribune stating that eight or more carloads, or something in excess of 144,000 dozen eggs, were sold by our government for one sixth of a cent a dozen, freight prepaid in refrigerated cars, to be used as hog food, I now believe that anything can happen.

I am one of several hundred unfortunate veterans forced to live in the home for disabled veterans at Wood, Wis. I wonder if the people who have been taxed for these eggs, and for many millions of cases still held in storage, would be interested in knowing that the veterans in the Wood home, only 90 miles from Chicago, are limited to two eggs a week, one on each of two mornings.

What has happened to the much publicized veteran's preference? It seems to have been transferred, to the once lowly, but apparently now glorified hog.

A MOTHER BEGS JUSTICE FOR SON HELD IN MUTINY

Raised Him 'American, Not as Negro.'

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—A Negro mother told an army judge advocate's review board today that her son's conviction by a court martial on a mutiny charge was based on illegal grounds and pleaded "not for clemency, but for justice."

The mother was Mrs. Mayme Jones-Jason of Philadelphia, who spoke for Pvt. Leo M. Jones, sentenced to 15 years in prison and a dishonorable discharge from the army in connection with a disturbance and refusal to work at Dale Mabry field, near Tallahassee, Fla., March 23.

Four other Negroes also were convicted, including Joseph R. Kent of Evanston, Ill., who was sentenced to 13 years. His term later was reduced to nine years.

The court martial was held at the field May 2 to 4 before 10 officers.

Negroes "Not Wanted."

Mrs. Jones-Jason told the board of the rearing of three children alone—their father died a week before the third was born—to love their God, their country, and their home, in that order.

Leo wanted to become an air force pilot, she said, but was told "In the shadow of the home of the Libery bell that Negroes were not wanted in the air corps."

"I never thought of my boys as Negroes," she said. "I thought of them as Americans."

Leo enlisted in the air forces and was sent to Bolling field, Washington, where, she said "he encountered his first experience of segregation" by being required to eat in the kitchen and being given an unusually difficult examination.

Has Nervous Breakdown.

Offered an opportunity to become an aircraft mechanic, he went to Chanute field, Ill., and completed his course. He was sent then to the south, Mrs. Jones-Jason said, and the discrimination against his race led to a nervous breakdown.

His protests against segregation, she said, caused him to be broken from sergeant to private, and eventually he was court martialed for insubordination, dishonorably discharged, and sentenced. Within three months, however, his sentence was lifted and he was given a chance to rehabilitate himself.

Continued anguish over discrimination, the mother said, caused a nervous breakdown, and he telephoned her to say that life was unbearable. Finally, she said, he bought a round trip ticket and, without obtaining leave, went home for a visit, his first in three years.

Mrs. Jones-Jason said her son was "mentally and physically ill" and that when she learned he was A. W. O. L. she sent him back to camp.

While awaiting transfer for that violation, the disturbance occurred which led to the mutiny charge. The alleged mutiny was described as a protest by prisoners over "frustration"—failure to be assigned to jobs for which they were fitted—and treatment, particularly the manner in which food was served.

Here the mother made a technical argument.

Held in Florida.

Private Jones, his mother said, was a "general prisoner" in the guardhouse at Dale Mabry field, and as such they were not required to report for work duty, as were the "garrison" prisoners, who were serving their terms in that guardhouse. Thus, she said, her son could not have refused to do something he was not required to do.

"I don't want clemency for my son," she said at this point, "I only want justice."

EVANSTONIAN "MISTREATED."

Joseph R. Kent, 27, one of those sentenced by the court martial, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kent, 2024 Emerson st., Evanston. He is married and the father of an infant daughter, Tomoseen. Kent entered the army in June, 1943. His parents said last night that he was unhappy in Florida because of the treatment of Negroes there.

"Joe promised us that he'd keep out of trouble unless some one hit him," his father said.

Evanston police records show that Kent from boyhood on was involved in a number of law violations ranging from traffic to burglary. The records show that he was sentenced to Joliet prison in 1934 for one year to life for burglary.

CHARGES A SECRET SOCIETY PROMOTES CANADIAN DISUNITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 21.—Sen. T. D. Bouchard, former speaker of the Quebec legislature and cabinet minister, now chairman of the Quebec hydro-power commission, charged today a secret society, the Jacques Cartier Order, with headquarters in Ottawa, is promoting secession in Canada.

He said French secessionists in Quebec province seek to make Ontario a new French province and set up a Roman Catholic, corporative state. He claimed that some of the history taught in Quebec schools is false and misleading and that in some schools English is deliberately taught badly.

"The task of changing the form of a government is not easy, so our secessionists have called to their help all the forces that would appeal best to the popular masses, religion, race, and creed. The new state would be Catholic, French, and corporative, so that the Catholic and French toiler would be master of his own religious, social, and economic destinies."

U. S. BAN LIKELY ON USE OF CORN TO MAKE WHISKY

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Distillers may be barred from using corn—a favorite raw material—in making beverage alcohol during the August whisky making holiday granted by the war production board.

Because corn supplies are at the lowest level since the 1937 drouth year, the government may limit distillers to the use of wheat, rye, and possibly Caribbean molasses in making whisky. Supplies of these raw materials are more plentiful.

Power to control the use of agricultural materials in making beverage and industrial alcohol is held by War Food Administrator Jones.

Jones Opposition Reported.

Reports circulated today that Jones opposes the whisky making holiday because of small reserves of live stock feed. A spokesman said Jones had no comment on this report or on the action of the WPB in informing distillers their facilities would not be needed in August for the production of industrial alcohol for war purposes.

While the WPB did not say the distillers would make beverage alcohol in August, they will be free to do so unless the WFA denies them the use of raw materials.

Sources close to Jones expressed belief that the only action he will take will be to issue orders prohibiting the use of corn and possibly placing restrictions on the use of wheat.

Rye Supplies Larger.

These restrictions would require use of more rye than distillers otherwise would take. Supplies of rye are larger, relatively speaking, than wheat.

An order prohibiting use of corn would be designed to reassure hog farmers in 126 midwestern corn belt counties who have parted with some of their corn to help meet processors' needs for that grain in making essential war materials.

A 60 day order expiring Friday prohibits the sale of corn in these counties except to the government for processors or to feeders having a government purchase permit.

Officials emphasize that none of the 65 million bushels of corn the WFA hopes to get in the midwest will go to alcohol makers.

BRITISH CROP ACREAGE GAINS; CROPS UNHURT BY TWO DRY SEASONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—The exceptionally dry winter and spring had little effect on Britain's thriving farm crops, Agriculture Minister R. S. Hudson reported today. This year 11,600,000 acres were cultivated, an increase of 11,000 acres.

Wheat acreage this year of 3,000,000 was a 2,000 acre drop from last year. Other comparisons were: potatoes, 950,000 acres, about the same as last year; sugar beets, 420,000 acres, and flax, 51,000, slight increases over last year.

Hudson said he was confident British agriculture could "stand up to fair competition from overseas." He has advised farmers to increase production of live stock and milk.

49 BILLION WAR BILL IS PASSED BY THE SENATE

Ferguson Gives Up Fight on Canol Project.

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The senate passed unanimously today a $49,107,785,795 war department appropriation bill after Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] abandoned his effort to delete funds for the United States financed Canol oil development in Canada. The measure goes back to the house for action on minor amendments.

Ferguson, altho announcing he had given up his fight, termed the oil project "utterly fantastic and ridiculous on its face."

Called a Necessity.

In a letter which helped break down opposition to the project Undersecretary of War Patterson told the senate that "the completion and operation of Canol has been determined by the joint chiefs of staff to be a military necessity."

Ferguson said the chiefs of staff would have to answer for the responsibility of the project "after the veil of secrecy is lifted."

"And, I am giving notice now that when that veil of secrecy is lifted, I am going to want to know in detail why they took the responsibility."

Blocked Passage.

Ferguson said funds for the White Horse refinery and the pipe line from Norman wells to White Horse, upon which $134,000,000 already has been spent, were included in a $1,799,000,000 blanket item for the corps of engineers, which supervised construction of the project.

His protest on the floor last night, in which he was joined by Senators Kilgore [D., W. Va.] and Ball [R., Minn.], other Truman committee members, blocked passage of the bill approved unanimously by the house Thursday.

SHOT ENDS LIFE OF EX-CONVICT FLEEING POLICE

Adolph G. Garn Jr., who police said was being sought for questioning in connection with several robberies, was shot and killed by Policeman Charles Meyer early yesterday while fleeing from a barbeque stand at 2728 N. Clark st.

Police said Garn had a record dating back to 1933, when he was sentenced to 1 to 3 years from Juneau county, Wis., on an adultery charge.

In 1937, he was returned to the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun as a parole violator, and Jan. 23, 1943, he was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell on a petty larceny charge. His last arrest was last Jan. 19 when he was sentenced to 60 days in the Bridewell on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

DEFENSE ARGUES TO BAR SEDITION TRIAL EVIDENCE

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Four defendants missed today's session of the mass sedition conspiracy trial. The session was devoted to defense arguments against the introduction of approximately 20 exhibits, principally articles from German-American bund newspapers, bund "commands" and minutes of bund conventions.

The four defendants were "voluntarily" absent.

Gerald B. Winrod received permission to return to his Wichita, Kas., home where his father, the Rev. J. Winrod, was reported critically ill. The other absent defendants: David Baxter, San Bernardino, Cal., whose wife was reported ill here with mumps; Peter Stahrenbern, whose mother died in New York, and Howard V. Broenstrupp, whose attorney said he had been admitted to a veterans' hospital.

HOUSE INCLUDES UNIONS IN QUIZ OF VOTE FRAUDS

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The house today set up machinery for investigating any suspected election frauds in the Presidential election campaign and for the first time included labor unions in the investigation.

Heretofore biennial investigation of congressional campaigns has been confined to contributions that may have been made illegally by corporations or other business associations.

The house rewrote the resolution to make susceptible to investigation the contributions of individuals, partnerships, corporations, committees or labor unions. In addiion, attention is to be paid to "the amounts raised, contributed and expended by any labor organization, trade or business association and any other agency."

WAR BOND SALES TO INDIVIDUALS LAG IN CHICAGO

Chicago and Cook county sales of individual bonds are lagging behind state and national sales, Philip R. Clarke, fifth war loan campaign chairman, disclosed yesterday. Sales for the Chicago area totaled $36,435,000, or 13.2 per cent of the 277 million dollar quota, in the first tabulation. The state reported 15.5 per cent of its quota reached and the national figure was 16 per cent.

Clarke said many bond sales are still to be reported and called the campaign "generally successful."

The liquor industry expressed concern because only 2½ million dollars worth of bonds have been sold in the Chicago area out of a liquor industry quota of 16 million. As a result 800 salesmen yesterday decided to take no liquor orders in the next 10 days, but to become bond salesmen. Joe O'Neil, international vice president of the AFL liquor salesmen's union, and Arthur S. Smith, executive secretary of the Illinois Wholesale Liquor Dealers asociation, indorsed the action.

Four Henry C. Lytton stores in the Chicago area yesterday began issuing address stickers with bond purchases on which buyers could sign their names, the stickers to be placed on bombs directed to Hitler and Tojo.

More than 1 million dollars worth of war bonds were purchased at a dinner sponsored by the South Central association in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel last night. Four hundred persons were present. Jay Crost, executive chairman of the association, which includes business and civic leaders, was toastmaster.

SUITCASE CHECK FACTORY SEIZED; 2 SUSPECTS HELD

Milton F. Johnson, 30, was arrested by police yesterday and accused with Charles Grego, 32, of printing and cashing fictitious checks for approximately $5,000 in the last six months in several western cities. A printing press, three fonts of type, a .22 caliber rifle, and seven blank checkbooks were seized in their hotel room at 1533 Madison st.

Johnson, police said, is on parole from the Washington state penitentiary at Monroe, where he served two years for forgery. He and Grego committed 20 burglaries in Seattle and Spokane, Wash., then obtained the type and small printing press, which they carried in a suitcase, police said.

Grego was arrested Monday by Detectives Joseph Hoban and William Clark, who said he tried to cash a bogus check in a currency exchange at 102 W. Chicago av. Police said Grego and Johnson, who came to Chicago two weeks ago, imprinted purported pay roll checks of the Federal Construction company, 6625 Oketo av. Each man also had stolen selective service registration cards and social security cards, the police said.

BROTHER OF IKE CALLS FOR HALT IN GROUP STRIFE

Agriculture, industry, and labor are dependent on one another for full prosperity, and a recognition of this and an end to strife among these groups offer the best chance of a stable economy, Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, said yesterday at a second day session of the three day war time conference and 29th annual convention of Kiwanis International.

Eisenhower, brother of the general, spoke in the Medinah club before the 300 delegates attending Kiwanis' streamlined 1944 meeting.

He suggested that Kiwanis clubs in the United States and Canada promote discussion programs that would help bring farmers, workers, manufacturers, and capitalists to a closer understanding of one another.

FIRE DAMAGES LA GRANGE PARK VILLAGE HALL

The village hall of La Grange Park, 447 N. Catherine av., north of La Grange, was damaged late last night by fire. It is a two story structure, which housed both fire and police automobiles and official records. The upper floor was occupied as a home by Police Chief George Mason. The fire started in the attic, supposedly from defective wiring. The volunteer fire department, under Chief Fred Liedtke, fought the fire, aided by Chief Harry Oakes and a company from the La Grange fire department. All village records and the fire truck and police car were removed to safety. Damage was estimated at nearly $5,000.

CATERPILLARS CRAWL INTO MORE HOUSES; SPRAYS HELD REMEDY

Neighboring houses also are being invaded by the crawlers.

Mrs. Sebeck, who is forced to keep the doors and windows of her home closed at all times, had called upon city officials to help her stop the invasion.

Yesterday she received a document from the health department which suggested sprays involving 50 gallons of water and the use of high pressure spraying rigs.

"Where am I going to get all that stuff?" she asked. "And what good will it do me if I mix my bathtub full of it when all I have is a squirt gun?"

NEGRO FILES SUIT FOR WRIT TO BAR HIS INDUCTION

Perry H. Hansberry, 23, Negro, of 6140 Rhodes av., will be inducted into the army today, but his court fight against alleged "Jim Crowism" in the army will continue. He filed suit in federal court yesterday thru Atty. George C. Adams charging there is discrimination against Negroes in military service, in violation of the selective service act, and that they are denied privileges given white soldiers.

When Judge John P. Barnes indicated yesterday that he would deny Hansberry's petition for a temporary injunction to restrain his induction, his attorney withdrew this petition. Assistant United States Atty. George G. Kelly previously pointed out that the court lacked jurisdiction because all of the defendants had not been served. They include President Roosevelt, the national and Illinois state directors of selective service, the secretaries of the navy and war, and Hansberry's local draft board. A full hearing will be held after they have been served.

To support his charges, Hansberry pointed to the case of his brother, Carl Jr., who has been assigned to a regiment made up entirely of Negro soldiers since his induction last Aug. 28.

Gingham Goes Glamorous in Summer Evening Gown

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

This summer dance or evening gown dramatizes smooth, fine gingham. The skirt is made with unpressed deep pleats fastened to a belt. The bodice top is of dazzling white, with an appliqued band and front tie of scarlet plaid cotton to match the plaid design of the deep blue and white skirt. This gown is in a summer collection of Adrian originals featured in a Chicago store.

Thru the Looking Glass

Today we feel compelled to preach a small sermon to the men with the fervent hope, which we know all other women share, that it won't fall on deaf ears.

Deodorants, brethren, are not in a class with perfumes, lipsticks, and face powders; they are not exclusively feminine toiletries. They're intended for use by men and all self-respecting men should appreciate this.

Actually there is far more need for the use of a good deodorant among you men than among us girls. You perspire more than we do, generally. You wear heavier, more constricting clothing. Your suits aren't as tubbable as our dresses. And the odor of perspiration is one that clings to clothing but most certainly does not improve with time. You should be just as meticulous as any woman in preventing perspiration's damage to your clothes and in erasing its offensive odor.

Apparently men feel there is no offense where they're concerned. They would find it a horrid characteristic in a woman, this carelessness, but they don't seem to feel it is of any importance when a man is the offender.

And that's where they're awfully wrong. Women find the odor of perspiration highly objectionable, whether a man or woman is the offender. And certainly in social life or in business such flagrant lack of ordinary fastidiousness can only be a handicap to a man.

Incidentally, the service men who want to be a hit at the U. S. O. should remember this, too. Off the post, particularly, they would be wise to realize that their heavy uniforms—and the unwritten social rule of consideration for others—make it absolutely necessary for them to use one of the many efficient, inexpensive preparations, sold in any drug store or post exchange, that check perspiration or destroy its odor.

New President Chosen.

Designers Employ No Crystal Ball to Forecast Fashions

BY REA SEEGER.

It's a year 'round business, this designing for American shoppers. It's also wacky inside, because fall and winter clothes are in the making now, while the cool summer stuff you currently are finding in the shops and stores is the result of day and night work 'way last January.

But finger-on-the-pulse designers, born with fantastic amounts of imagination and not a little foresight into the future, plus an enviable intuition of what the women will want and wear, do very nicely for themselves, despite the completely futuristic nature of all collections.

Adrian, unquestionably America's top flight designer, has an uncanny knowledge of the variable needs of all American women, for his summer clothes are as intriguing as his swank winter fabrics. He cuts, smoothly fits, and dramatizes the shoulder lines and features unusual color combinations and contrasts and the daring little details that mark, as with a signature, his originals. Prints that are dashing and slenderizing, plaids, checks, and his beloved stripes are used with subtle sophistication to make street and town clothes, suits and ensembles.

His summer collection, now delighting the most exacting of shoppers, flaunts dashing white prints with gay color patterns, distinguished dark plaids and checks, his famous silhouette dresses in dull black silks and crepes, the essence of deceptive simplicity but so very smooth and sophisticated when worn, and the newest glamor gowns of cotton for evening wear.

Using such simple fabrics as smooth gingham, this wizard of individual design makes with magic the loveliest and most effective of summer dance dresses.

Handy, famous as the composer of the "St. Louis Blues," have been added to the list of musicians who will appear in the fifth annual American Negro Music festival at Comiskey park Saturday evening, July 8. Styles to Wear at Ravinia Park Put on Parade

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

The luncheon rooms at Marshall Field & Co. were filled to the last table yesterday for two showings of fashions to wear "under the stars" at Ravinia park during the Ravinia festival season, which opens next Tuesday.

Several hundred other women hungry for fashions and food queued up at all of the entrances, and in the resulting confusion of customers and scurrying waitresses the young models frequently strayed from the paths mapped out for them, turning up unexpectedly two or three times in the same place to get their bearings before starting out for another room.

"I think I've been everywhere but in the toy department," one of them said as she returned from the models' circuitous route to the dressing room. She was pretty, dark haired Jean Sullivan, who wore a pale blue spun rayon sport dress that will be confortable on hot nights at Ravinia. Mrs. Walter S. Cherry Jr., whose slim, svelte figure occasioned much favorable comment, was particularly appealing in a floating black chiffon dinner dress with sequin embroidery thru the waistline.

A short evening dress consisting of a rather full skirt of shocking pink topped by a navy blue bodice and trimmed by a cabbage rose of pink at the waist looked dashing on Miss Betty Bennett, who already is tanned a deep, even color. Miss Anamary Evans chose a smart dress of gray, striped vertically in chartreuse, and brightened the costume with short chartreuse gloves.

Miss Joan Huth appeared fragile and charming in a long evening gown of white jersey. Her long blonde hair, which she wears piled up smoothly on top of her head, adds to her height, but its quantity proved a problem when it came to finding a hat that would fit when she modeled an informal silk shantung gown. In the end she carried a hat in one hand.

Miss Nancy Cochran's short evening dress of white printed in ermine tails and the coat of black faille lined with the print was the most expensive costume shown. With it she wore a tiny flower hat made of ermine. Equally pretty and at the opposite extreme in price was the stunning white cotton frock with front peplum modeled by Debutante Joan Johnson. The show was sponsored by the coupon book committee of the Festival association.

50,000 OCD Aids to Join in Saturday Waste Paper Drive

Civilian defense workers will throw the strength of their 50,000 members into the Saturday curb collection of waste paper. The order, affecting all OCD members, was issued last night by Mayor Kelly. It will bring to 100,000 the number of persons enlisted in the all-out waste paper pickup, which is expected to produce 6,000,000 pounds for the day.

More than 8,000 Girl Scouts will form a vanguard for the paper trucks, calling on householders Saturday to urge them to place their paper on the curbs immediately and wherever possible gather it in the center of the block. Mrs. Ann Schlott will direct the work of the girls.

The Office Snoop.

I wonder whether any of the other WCGs have the same situation in their offices as we have in ours. I refer to the office snoop. In this case it is a man [and they say women are curious!] who constantly is snooping into things which do not concern him. He is a high salaried man in a supervisory capacity, but has nothing to do with office procedure or personnel information. Yet he is always leafing thru correspondence and material of a personal nature which only the person who handles that material and the head of the department need see. What can be done? Should the office employes report it to the department head? Should they tell the offender to scram? We have tried keeping things inside the desks, but if the WCG is away from her desk, he opens the drawers and takes out the material. This is a problem we've had for over a year—and as yet no solution! A.

Heedlessness Only Phase of Pre-Teen Age

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In analyzing the "sins" of our poor, misunderstood young inbetweens—as we have been doing recently, we come upon several which [next to dawdling] turn mothers' gray.

They really rather tie up together, making a trio of behavior that—for many parents—blots out all the niceness of these jolly, healthy, gusty, joyous inbetweens. These three trying ways are heedlessness, forgetfulness and a veritable genius for losing homely but necessary possessions or articles of clothing. Who hasn't heard the refrain, "Mom, where is my sweater," or "my bike," or "my homework"? And who hasn't answered, "Well, where did you put it?" only to be met by the innocent response, "I don't know, Mom; I don't remember"?

These are all evidences, really, of the fact that your child is a child, and it is more evident at these ages because we feel he should be growing out of little childhood. But at this time the maturing process, so far as it affects responsibility, seems to be making slow progress. When this 10 year old was only 4, 5 or even 6, you probably got a lot more cooperation than you do now. Many a little child is orderly, for instance, to an extreme.

Since these ways represent an almost inevitable phase, it is well not to expect too much at this time. In fact, it is practical to demand little of your boy in the way of being responsible during the inbetween years; but try to see that that little is accomplished, without nagging or punishment.

Homes Shrink, So Do Families, Expert Asserts

The population of the nation cannot reproduce itself if the family trend in relation to housing continues on its present course, Edmund H. Hoben of the National Association of Housing Officials declared yesterday in an address before the American Home Economics association, now in convention in the Stevens hotel.

In an effort to give low income families a chance at houses builders have been squeezing down the size of homes to one or two bedroom units, Mr. Hoben said. In homes of that size, he continued, the trend is toward smaller families.

Mr. Hoben warned that unless better housing conditions soon are ready for returning service men they will be coming from fox holes on the battle front to fox holes on the home front.

A hopeful note in the meeting was struck by Philip M. Klutznick of the federal public housing autority, who predicted that the United States, "a nation which rocketed to a production scale unmatched by any other nation, can meet its housing problems."

In another address before the convention Dr. Edith Abbott, dean emeritus of the school of social service administration at the University of Chicago, condemned the means tests of the old age assistance plan for their "limitations and degradations." The tests are un-American, undemocratic, and unnecessary, she declared. As an alternative, she suggested a flat grant for every person who reaches a set age and who is below a certain income scale. Such a remedy, she predicted, would eliminate the budgeting and "superbudgeting" that now is necessary.

Dr. Irma Gross, professor of home management at Michigan State college, spoke on the possibilities of increasing economic security thru individual action. Those possibilities are related today as in the past to certain factors outside the family, the most important of which is the size of the family income and, in the case of rural families, the possibility of achieving or maintaining land ownership, she said.

Stage Note

"Let's Face It" closes Saturday night after two weeks at the Selwyn, and nothing new is booked to follow . . . "The New Moon," opening at the Civic Opera house Friday night, has declared that performance a scenic rehearsal, which is the theatrical equivalent of calling itself an open city. Reviewers will refrain from focusing bomb sights until Saturday, and leisurely reviews will appear on Monday.

'Up in Mabel's Room' Is Slick Movie Comedy

"UP IN MABEL'S ROOM."

A United Artists picture, directed by Allan Dwan, featuring Gail Patrick, Marjorie Reynolds, Charlotte Greenwood, Binnie Barnes, Dennis O'Keefe, Mischa Auer, Lee Bowman, and John Hubbard, and presented at the Garrick.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Modernized adaptation of the old and very successful French stage farce.

ACTING: Might slick! You'll have guessed that if you glanced at the names of the featured players.

DIRECTION: Canny.

DIALOG: A bit dated, but smooth enough.

SETS, COSTUMES, PHOTOGRAPHY: Eye pleasing.

STORY: The comedy situations arise thru the refusal of a young married man to tell his wife the truth about his association in Mexico, with Mabel—who is about to be married and wants the unincriminating truth told to squelch false rumors that have been going around. Mabel has a slip which had been bestowed upon her by the young man, and nothing about that slip does she want kept secret. Gary, whose name is embroidered on the thing, can't be induced to out with the facts. . . . Most of the action occurs in the country house of Mabel's fiance, Arthur [Lee Bowman]. . . . Here, welcomed by Arthur's sister [Charlotte Greenwood], come Mabel [Gail Patrick], Gary [Dennis O'Keefe], Gary's wife [Marjorie Reynolds], the Larchments [Binnie Barnes and John Hubbard], and Gary's Russian butler [Mischa Auer]. The last is there for the sole reason of filching aforementioned slip. . . . His price for doing same goes up and up as the accomplishment becomes more and more difficult. . . . And so, screwily, to a beatific finale.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: A lot. Especially do the customers get a kick out of Mischa Auer. He is very, very funny!

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 21.—Dennis O'Keefe gives Eddie Small the credit for his big chance in "Up in Mabel's Room." Following that he did "Abroad with Two Yanks," and now he'll get star billing in "Brewster's Millions." His salary doubled from $2,000 to $4,000 per. Incidentally, Dennis is one of the bright spots in "Dr. Wassell." . . . If Lana Turner doesn't do "Jennie Was a Lady," Susan Hayward may get a whack at it. Susan is coming up by leaps and bounds. . . . The last planned Andy Hardy picture, which wasn't made, proved to be quite expensive for Metro. Bonita Granville, signed to play the lead opposite Mickey Rooney, was paid off with six weeks salary. . . . Buddy De Sylva's next for Paramount will be "Masquerade in Mexico," starring Paulette Goddard and Arturo De Cordova. The idea is Buddy's, but was put into script form by Karl Tunberg and the late Darryl Ware. . . . When Jimmy Dunn sings "Annie Laurie" in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," can't you just hear the tears dropping? . . . Carmen Miranda, who's always worn long, slashed-up-the-side skirts, will show her nether limbs in "Something for the Boys" when she goes into action in the samba-boogie, a new kind of dance. . . . A marine corporal doesn't think Walter Huston is right for Gen. Claire Chennault in "God Is My Co-Pilot." His choice is Harry Carey. Well, why not?

Wondering Out Loud—About Various Things.

It's all right to love your husband, but you can carry it too far. I'm wondering if Gracie Fields didn't do that when she threw a huge party at her home for Italian prisoners of war, while so many of our own boys are lying wounded in hospitals thruout the land. Gracie was much criticized when she left England and came to America at the time her countrymen needed her most. She was their absolute idol. Yet when she sang for British soldiers in North Africa last summer, she was hissed. Gracie is a fine woman, but with sons and husbands fighting all over the world, you've got to think of those things. . . . Count that day lost when you don't get a plea for help. The latest is to send makeup to Russian actors, which is fine. But how about sending back some actors [whom I could name] along with makeup?

Better Than Last Year—and That Was Good.

Laraine Day will have two pictures playing in August—"The Story of Dr. Wassell" and "Bride by Mistake"—in which she co-stars with Alan Marshall. . . . Kenny Baker, after a year of "One Touch of Venus," is back on his own radio show, and Columbia's talking term contract with him. . . . Al Pearce won't play his character of Elmer Blurt in his Republic film. Manny Seff's script is so funny the studio feels Pearce can play it straight and still get laughs. . . . Bob Milton adapted John Huston's story, "Frankie and Johnny," and it looks now as tho Jack Wilson will give him a chance to produce it on Broadway. Some folks claim that Bob inspired the song in "Oklahoma!"—"Surrey with the Fringe on Top." . . . Somebody guessed wrong. Danny Kaye will not replace Groucho Marx on Blue Ribbon Town.

Real Hero Heading for Real Welcome.

Understand Lt. Col. James Stewart is on his way back to the United States. Gosh! Will he get a welcome! . . . Since Ketty Frings has been working on the life of Susan B. Anthony for Hunt Stromberg, might I ask what ever happened to the story about Jane Addams and Hull House? . . . It isn't "Farewell My Lovely" for Adrian Scott and Anne Shirley. It's just "My Lovely." . . . The A. J. Balabans are happy their daughter, Ida, is touring for U. S. O. They hope it will give her a chance to forget George Givot. . . . Marie Wilson earned the undying thanks of the Merchant Seamen's association for helping get old fur coats to line their jackets, and was rewarded with a live seal from the fellows. She's got nothing on me. Chet Lauck, of "Lum and Abner," brought me a pair of chinchillas. So look out for me, fellows, I'm gonna grow my own coat. I haven't decided whether to keep them in my bedroom or drain the swimming pool and let them use that. Or am I too hopeful?

INSTALMENT XLVI.

REVENGE.

Cockrill glanced at Esther suspiciously, but it was clear that the first flush of strength and excitement was fast ebbing away. Woody fetched water from the tap and she drank it gratefully and sank onto a stool, leaning back, with a gesture of terrible weariness, against the wall. "Just a moment, Inspector, while I pull myself together. You can while away the time explaining to them all how clever you've been."

He saw that she would not be fit to walk very far. "Order a car," he said to Sgt. Bray who had stood, all this time, very pink and excited in the background. While they waited, Freddi said, as tho struck suddenly by an idea: "But Esther—do you mean to say that it was you who tried to kill me?"

She lifted sad, heavy eyes and held out her manacled hands in a little gesture that immediately she withdrew. "O Freddi, darling . . . darling little Freddi—not to kill you; not to kill you! And after all it was I who dragged you into the fresh air. I wouldn't have let you die . . ."

"She had to have morphia," said Cockrill, "she wanted you out of the way. She didn't want to harm you, only to get you out of the way for a day or two . . ."

"For a night or two," corrected Esther gently.

"For a night or two. She wanted to go on night duty in the ward."

"They give out so much more morphia at night," said Esther dreamily.

"No wonder the patients on St. Elizabeth's were restless and in pain," said Cockrill. "That first night, after she knew who Higgins was, she kept back his morphia. I think she only wanted to torment him; to have him suffer; but it gave her a quarter of a grain. When she killed Sister Bates, she found more in the poison cupboard. She took that, too. She was in danger of being found out, by then, and she wanted it for herself — in case of need. That was two grains and a quarter; but she couldn't be certain that, that would be enough; she had to have more. She knew only one way to collect it, and that was to withhold it from the patients." He pointed with the toe of his shoe to the pool on the floor. "There it is now. Maj. Moon got here just in time to snatch it from her."

"I saw her just about to use it when you turned your back to pick up my coat," said Moon. "I — I wanted to save her," said the old man, sadly.

She raised her prisoned hands and took one of his and kissed it and held her cheek against it, and said very softly: "Thank you," and leaned back against him with a little sigh of gratitude.

Eden pushed forward. He cried eagerly: "But William—surely inspector, you're not going to accuse Esther of having tried to kill William? She was in love with him. She was going to marry him. . . . You don't suggest that that was all false? You don't suggest that it wasn't true that she loved him?"

"Of course she loved him," said Maj. Moon, sadly, looking down as she sat with closed eyes, her head against his arm. "That night that she became engaged to him—anyone who saw her then must have known that she was happy, and in love. She was transformed. She shone like candlelight in this ugly, gray old place. She forgot the past and looked only to the future. She was so lovely in her radiance, that I fell in love with her in that one moment; I never knew real love before . . . but I fell hopelessly in love with her like any callow boy."

"What will poor William do?" cried Woody.

Sgt. Bray's heavy footfall sounded in the lobby outside. As he appeared at the door, Barney, who had remained quietly in the background, came forward. He put into words what they had all been aching to ask: "But why?"

Esther sat with bent head and did not reply. Cockrill and Bray stepped forward. Woody cried, as tho to put off for just another few moments that terrible moment to come:

"Inspector, you must tell us that; you must explain to us. We—she was our friend. We—we loved her. We knew her so well. . . ." She suddenly put her hands to her face and burst into bitter tears.

Cockrill was not sorry to put off, for a little while longer, his ugly duty. He said, pausing: "You should know, Miss Woods, if any one should. You were there when she told us—almost in so many words; that night when we talked outside the theater door."

"That night we told her about the operation to William's leg?" said Woody.

"She was worried about the operation," said Cockrill thoughtfully. "She said she couldn't bear to think of him ill and in pain; she said it wasn't the danger—she knew there was no danger. But 10 minutes later she was white and trembling, she was saying that William would die under the anesthetic. She knew he would. She was going to kill him herself. In that few minutes she had made up her mind."

"But for heavens sake — why?"

"Because of something you said."

Woods blurted out, wretchedly: "I said something? What could I have said?"

"I suppose they hadn't talked very much about the past," said Cockrill, not directly answering her. "She and her William, I mean. He told her the important things, of course, about his private life, and life in the navy, perhaps, but they didn't have very much time together, and I expect they mostly looked ahead into the future. She didn't know, until you told her that evening, that he'd worked with Higgins."

"In the rescue squad!" said Woods.

"In the rescue squad that left her mother to die," said Cockrill. Esther slid slowly off the stool and lay in a motionless heap upon the ground.

"She's fainted!" said Cockrill.

"She's dead," said Moon; and he added softly: "Thank God!"

Cockrill flung himself on his knees beside the limp body. He looked about him, wildly: "What is it? What's the matter with the girl?"

"Is she dead?" said Gervase.

"She dying anyway." He cried imperiously to Maj. Moon: "You know something about this! What is it? What has she done to herself?"

Moon did not seem to hear him. Barnes came over and knelt down and took Esther's hand and pushed aside the steel bracelet and felt her wrist. To Cockrill, fuming impatiently, it seemed an eternity before he said, slowly: "It's no use; she's dead."

"For heaven's sake, can't you do something?" cried Cockrill, frantically. "All you doctors and nurses—isn't there anything you can do? Can't you give her artificial respiration?"

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

Among the unforgivable crimes at bridge is dropping partner's forcing bid, and certainly nothing is so well calculated to cause said partner to seethe! Consider the following case:

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

West	North	East
	♠ 7
	♥ K 9 6 5 3
	♦ A 7
	♣ A 10 8 5 4
♠ 9 8 4 3		♠ A Q J 6 5 2
♥ 8 7 4 2		♥ Q J 10
♦ J 6 3 2		♦ Q 8
♣ Q		♣ 7 6
	SOUTH
	♠ K 10
	♥ A
	♦ K 10 9 5 4
	♣ K J 9 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	1 spade	2 diamonds	Pass
Pass [!]	Pass

What happened here is all too obvious. North, panicky over the possible misfit of his own and partner's hand, and suddenly taking a pessimistic view of his own bare 2½ honor tricks, decided "to play it safe" and pass out the two diamond call. That he was making a unilateral decision for his team and ignoring the one-round-forcing nature of South's free bid, apparently cut no ice with North. It was just as tho he were saying, "I know exactly what South's 13 cards consist of, and I rule that we had better stop right where we are."

Autocratic principles do not work out any better at bridge than in other walks, and this case was certainly no exception! If North had played partnership bridge and responded, as he was obliged to do, to South's free bid, it is probable that the laydown contract of six clubs would have been reached. True, North was not strong enough to bid three clubs on the second round, and would have had to rebid his hearts as the lesser evil, but then South would have mentioned the club suit, and after a raise from North would have gone to at least five clubs, if not six.

Strictly speaking, pork sausages are not pan-fried, altho we usually visualize them sizzling away in a skillet in their own fat. Sausages taste best, however, if they're partially cooked by steam.

Place the links or patties in a cold frying pan, add a small amount of water, cover and steam for five minutes. Pour off remaining water, if any, then cook uncovered over low heat, turning so that sausage will be nicely browned on all sides. Do not pierce the skins of sausage links with a fork, but turn them with tongs or a pancake turner.

Pork Link Casserole.
[Serves five.]

- ½ pound pork links
- 1 large apple
- 6 cups bread cubes
- ½ cup celery, chopped
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg
- 1 cup milk
- 4 tablespoons sausage drippings

Cook pork links in skillet over low heat in small amount of water for 5 minutes. Brown on all sides, then cut into 1 inch pieces. Remove apple core and cut across whole apple in ½ inch slices. Brown apple slices in sausage drippings. Remove from skillet and line 8 inch casserole with apple slices. Combine bread cubes, celery, salt, pepper, and sausage links. Beat egg and add milk and sausage drippings. Fold egg mixture into bread mixture. Fill apple lined casserole with bread mixture, piling it lightly. Bake in 400 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serve with gravy made from remaining sausage drippings.

Spaghetti with Sausage Balls.

- 1 pound bulk pork sausage
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- ½ clove garlic
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups tomato juice
- 4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- 1 8-ounce package spaghetti

Shape sausage into small round balls and brown slowly. Brown mushrooms and minced garlic in 2 tablespoons drippings. Blend in flour. Add tomato juice gradually and stir until thick. Add seasonings and sausage balls and cook for ½ hour. Add green pepper the last 5 minutes of cooking time. Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. To serve, combine spaghetti and sauce and arrange balls on top.

Pork Sausage with Corn.
[Serves four.]

- 1 pound bulk pork sausage
- 3 tablespoons sausage drippings
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 No. 2 can whole kernel corn
- 1 cup coarse cracker crumbs

Form four patties from part of sausage meat. Brown the rest of bulk sausage for 6 to 7 minutes. Make a white sauce of sausage drippings, blended with the flour and the milk. Stir and cook until thickened. Mix the cracker crumbs with additional sausage fat to moisten. Arrange crumbs, corn, pieces of browned sausage meat and sauce in layers. Top with crumbs. Place the sausage patties on top and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees.

Baked Stuffed Potatoes with Sausage.

- ½ pound pork sausage links
- 4 large baking potatoes
- 4 teaspoons grated onion
- Milk
- Salt and pepper

Cook sausage slowly in small amount of water covered. Bake potatoes until tender. Cut lengthwise, scoop out, and mash with milk, a tablespoon or two of sausage drippings and the onion. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Refill potato shells with mixture. Place 2 link sausages on top and with pastry tube or fork, flute edges of potato skins with mashed potato border. Place under broiler to brown.

TURN IN WASTE FATS FOR POINTS AND PENNIES!

Chicago to Be in Spectator's Role July 4th

Pyrotechnically speaking, this July 4th promises to be unprecedentedly quiet. Most of the gay, bunting draped fireworks stands beyond the city limits have not opened, and those which have report they have little more to offer than sparklers and similar items.

James Price, a railroad worker, who got to know a great deal about fireworks when he bought as his home the vacated premises of an established fireworks business and retained its telephone number, said calls have come in feverishly from persons in Iowa, Michigan, and nearby points who are anxious to celebrate Independence day in the old manner.

The men along the fireworks circuit expressed belief Chicagoans largely would be on the spectator end of the fiery displays this year. One of the largest scheduled is that sponsored by the Cook county council, American Legion, at Soldiers' field on July 4.

The council's show, planned by its 270 posts with a combined membership of 50,000, will present a colorful depiction of a bombing raid on Berlin, a beach landing operation, and other war scenes. The faces that launched a score of successful battles — Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur and others of like fame —will be sketched in flames across the sky. Effort is being made to bring the glow and glare of battle to those far removed from it.

Tons of explosives will be set off by electricity and more than 40 men will work the day and night before the show setting up the displays. Spokesmen emphasized that the items to be used are of no military value.

Military reviews, animal and acrobatic acts and a liberal sprinkling of professional entertainment will be presented. Proceeds, council spokesmen said, will go to the Chicago Service Men's centers, the U. S. O., the Soldiers' and Sailors' councils, and the organization's own fund to provide cigarets and games for overseas service men.

The federal works administration in Washington, D. C., yesterday approved an increase of $123,642 for the child care service sponsored by the Chicago board of education, which now has nearly 1,000 children enrolled in 44 war emergency child care centers. The board expects to have 70 centers by the end of the year and has opened 19 since Jan. 1.

The new grant raises the total for the child care program here to $371,372 since it was begun May 1, 1943, a board spokesman said. Cost for the first half of 1944 was approximately $110,138, leaving only $67,328 of the year's original budget to meet estimated expenses of $190,970 for the last six months. The new grant, which was requested in April, will close the gap.

The money is provided thru the Lanham act, which authorizes funds for war services. The board of education sponsors the program but does not give money to it. The child care centers are for both pre-school and school age children with mothers in war work. Mrs. L. Robert Mellin, board member, is active in the program.

Sally Tells Need for Twin Buggies in Three Homes

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

If any reader has a twin buggy which is no longer needed, we know a woman who would be grateful for it. She is the mother of nine children, the youngest of whom are twins six months old. They are healthy, active youngsters, and it is difficult for the mother to take them to the clinic or keep them outdoors as much as they should be without some sort of vehicle. The address is on the near west side.

Mrs. C. writes from the near south side with the same request. She is the mother of five children, the youngest, twins. Both these youngsters are anemic, and physicians have advised that they be given as much fresh air and sunshine as possible. The mother cannot afford to purchase a buggy for them.

Twin babies, a girl and a boy six months old, are the youngest children in the M. family. The mother has no means of transporting them, and it is impossible for her to buy a twin buggy or stroller.

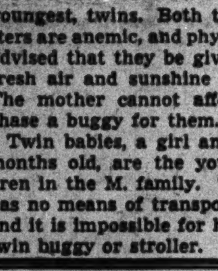
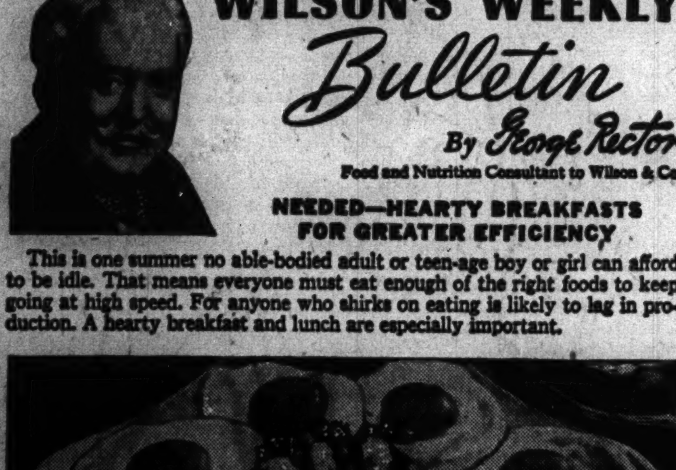
WILSON'S WEEKLY Bulletin
By George Rector



Food and Nutrition Consultant to Wilson & Co.

NEEDED—HEARTY BREAKFASTS FOR GREATER EFFICIENCY

This is one summer no able-bodied adult or teen-age boy or girl can afford to be idle. That means everyone must eat enough of the right foods to keep going at high speed. For anyone who shirks on eating is likely to lag in production. A hearty breakfast and lunch are especially important.



Bacon and Eggs—For a Breakfast that "Sticks-to-the-Ribs"

To broil—place Wilson's Certified Bacon on a cold rack and place in an unheated broiling oven about 5 inches from flame. Set broiler at 325° F. and broil about 8 minutes, turning bacon once after first 5 minutes.

To pan fry Wilson's Clear Brook Eggs—Leave about ⅛ inch of bacon fat in skillet. Have fat hot enough to start cooking the eggs as soon as added but not so hot the white browns or becomes crisp. Baste eggs with the hot fat until yolks are covered with a white film or add a tablespoon of water, cover tightly and let the steam baste the eggs. Continue cooking until sufficiently set.

ALLOW PLENTY OF TIME

Don't rush through breakfast. Rushing means food gulped, a smaller amount eaten, a poor chance for proper digestion and a frustrated feeling to start the day. Far better to get up 15 minutes earlier and get a calm start for the day and some good substantial food.

Given plenty of time, who can resist the fragrance of Wilson's Certified Bacon, sizzling in the pan, and the flavor of Wilson's Clear Brook Eggs, cooked in those delicious bacon drippings. It's just such a feast we should all enjoy daily . . . not only for the sake of our own health but also so we will be able to accomplish more for the war effort. Eating wisely is patriotic.

Protein Breakfast Prevents Mid-Morning Slump

Physicians have noted a mid-morning and mid-afternoon fatigue or "let-down feeling" among many industrial workers and have recommended mid-meal snacks to bolster morale. Many women in the home have also felt the need of a lunch in the middle of the morning. Latest research indicates that a high protein breakfast tends to prevent this mid-morning slump.

TASTY BREAKFAST MENU

This tasty breakfast furnishes a goodly amount of complete proteins: orange juice (4 oz.), two slices of bacon, an egg, milk or hot cocoa (8 oz.), one slice of buttered toast. This supplies at least a fourth of an average adult's daily allowance of all nutrients for which allowances have been recommended by the National Research Council, except for calories and niacin. Why not give a "protein breakfast" a trial?

Sincerely,
GEORGE RECTOR

VETS WHO PLANT BOMBS ON NAZIS SEE THE HARVEST

Returned Airmen Watch Results of Campaign.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dyersburg Army Air Base, Tenn., June 21.—Winged warriors who helped soften Europe for invasion are speculating on how well it was done in light of current news dispatches. They are veterans of numerous combat missions now training new Flying Fortress crews about to take off for England.

These youngsters, wearing ribbons for valor, witnessed a dissipation of some of Hitler's former strength. They had birds-eye view of railroad yards, bridges, factories, and airports in volcanic eruption. They saw a gradual decline of Nazi fighter opposition in 1942 and '43. They saw some of the German air power disintegrate before their own gunsights.

See Waning Nazi Power.

The veterans, over their coffee in the mess halls, agree Hitler was weakened before landing barges hit the French beaches. Some even hope the Nazi strength to resist has been crippled.

Lt. Roger Moran said current news indicated to him that "the allies rule the air—it wasn't like that in former days."

Moran, at 25, wears the distinguished flying cross and an air medal with three clusters won in 25 combat missions. He has yellow wavy hair, cropped short over a red sun-tanned face. He taught science at Hornell [N. Y.] high school before enlistment, Dec. 19, 1941.

On April 4 of last year Moran saw Paris thru a cloud of flak from about 20,000 feet elevation. As his plane was steadied for the bomb run over an aircraft engine plant, a swarm of Nazi fighters appeared above and ahead.

One Bomber After Another.

Seconds later, in a new experimental maneuver, the opposition spiral-dived in tight formation, concentrating their fire on a single bomber. It burst. A million dollars worth of equipment and crew training plus 10 lives were lost.

The Germans repeated the maneuver three more times, each time taking out a bomber and 10 of Moran's friends. As a navigator and gunner, Moran was in a position to reply to the attack. The Nazis lost 39 fighters. They disengaged and fled at the approach of allied fighters. Moran's plane limped home on three engines.

Other Veterans of Air.

Others here have had perilous experiences in the air war. Lt. Col. William M. Musselwhite, former Mississippi State university football player, was at a combat post on Pearl Harbor day and later was on anti-submarine duty in British Guiana. He was a squadron leader on Aug. 17, 1942, when the 97th heavy bombardment group struck Rouen in the first American punch at the Nazi fortress.

Also here are five other officers from that pioneer group, including Maj. Howell J. McCorell who at 25 wears a distinguished flying cross with two clusters and an air medal with three clusters.

Flew in 27 Raids.

The opposition, an estimated 350 fighters in addition to heavy flak, was stronger than had been anticipated and 16 of the 60 bombers were lost. The Germans lost about 65 fighters. It was one of Santoro's 27 raids.

"I got the distinguished flying cross for returning to my guns after being knocked down by flak," said Santoro. "I was just trying to save my own life, not to be a hero. We knocked down about 60 Germans."

Another of the battle-tried Fortress veterans here is 23 year old 140 pound Lt. Robert Bercu, a navigator, formerly of the University of Utah. His tour of duty abroad was cut short by a fragment of a 155 mm. shell on his seventh combat mission.

Bercu returned from a Jan. 3, 1943, raid on submarine installations at St. Nazaire sitting on the floor in the waist of the plane with a tourniquet around his left leg above a fractured and torn ankle. As he described it, he "sat out" most of a sky battle in which we lost seven of our 55 bombers and the Germans lost 38 fighters.

FINED FOR LEAVING ACCIDENT.

Louis Lochiro, 17, of 559 De Koven st., a trucker's helper, was fined $25 and his driving license was revoked for one year yesterday by Judge Harry P. Bean in Boys' court for leaving the scene of an accident.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

FINAL costs have been figured on the 73 Hereford feeder cattle that went to market from the Wheaton farm last week, and the balance sheet shows a net profit of $30.38 per steer.

This is a very acceptable figure for these days of high costs and narrow margins. It compares closely with the net profit shown by a load of cattle from the Fox river farm last month. These animals brought a net return of $31.05.

There was a considerable difference between the gross profits per head of the two loads. The Wheaton cattle showed a gross profit of $84.75 a head, and the Fox river steers brought a gross of $65.64. The Fox river steers yielded a greater net profit, however, because they were fed a shorter period of time and had a lower feed bill.

Steers' Board Bill Large.

The Wheaton steers were in the feed lot on Dec. 1. Previously, they had run in the pastures getting a cheap bone growth. They spent 195 days on the concrete feeding platform. They consumed 19.21 tons of silage; 2,966 bushels of corn; 27.01 tons of hay; four tons of oil meal, and $7 worth of salt. Feed costs amounted to $3,823.10.

Labor charges against the steers amounted to $146.25. This gave a total of $3,969.35 for the feed and labor. The original cost of the steers was $6,476.13, so the manager had a bill for $10,445.48 to settle on the animals before he could begin to show a profit.

The steers, when marketed, brought $12,663.02. This gave the farm a net profit of $2,217.54, or average net profit per head of $30.38. These figures do not include the value of by-products, so actually the steers made a bit more than is shown.

Haying Work Is Slow.

Heavy morning dews have kept the men from getting into the hay fields as early as they would like, but the work is moving ahead slowly. The field of quack grass and alfalfa finally has been cut and baled and stored in the barn. This is a big load off the men's minds, for now the field can be counted out of production. When time is found, the field will be plowed and fallowed for the rest of the summer. Constant cultivation for the rest of the season should whip the quack grass completely.

Breakdowns are beginning to cost valuable field time. The big truck went out of commission the other day and called a halt to work for a while. The hay rake needed some new parts and also was out of the field temporarily.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

TOMATO plants in the sample garden on the Wheaton farm are so advanced that it appears the first ripe tomatoes will be placed on farm tables in the first week of July. Last season, the first fruits were picked on July 1. All of the plants now are 24 to 36 inches tall, and most have several clusters of tomatoes turning white. One of the 100 plants holds 19 tomatoes ranging from marble size to two inches in diameter. The tomato varieties are Crimson Cushion and Certified Rutgers.

The first peas [Little Marvel] have been harvested, and the beets are almost ready. The Giant Stringless Green Pod snap beans have formed pods, and should be ready for picking in a week. Some of the Large Bell green peppers are two inches in diameter, and could be used now.

Spinach, lettuce, radishes, and onions have been going into the kitchens for several weeks. The Big Boston and Bibb types of lettuce are starting to form heads, and the Black Beauty eggplants are in blossom.

NEWS VENDERS PRAISED FOR WAR STAMP SELLING

St. Louis, Mo., June 21 (AP).—Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, adjutant general of the United States army, tonight assailed what he called false optimism about an early ending of the war.

In a speech before the International Circulation Managers' association, he said: "Too many persons are sitting back with a smug satisfaction that they no longer need to do their bit," but "until the last shot is fired, we on the home front have a definite responsibility to exert every effort toward the hastening of that victory."

Gen. Ulio, in his address which was broadcast over the Mutual broadcasting system, paid tribute to the nation's newspaper boys who have sold $1,175,000,000 in war stamps since the inception of the boys' stamp sale program in the summer of 1941.

"I praise our newspaper carriers for a good job well done," he said.

BROWNS CRUSH SOX, 11-2; CUBS LOSE TWO

Humphries, Ross Ineffective.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 21.—The White Sox's engagement with the pace setting St. Louis Browns tonight had some elements of a surrender—an 11 to 2 surrender.

After the Sox had score two runs off Nelson Potter in the first inning, Johnny Humphries, making his second start against Potter and the Browns in eight nights—also his second of the season—wilted for three runs in the Browns' half of the first. Humphries forced home what proved to be the winning run with his fourth pass in the opening inning. He also pitched two doubles in the first inning and a homer to Gene Moore in the fifth.

The tempo really got hot after Buck Ross went in in the seventh. The Browns made four runs off Buck in the seventh and three more in the eighth.

Sox Score Two Quickly.

The Sox scored their two runs before two were out in the first on a double by Wally Moses, Leroy Schalk's sacrifice, Thurman Tucker's single, and Hal Trosky's double.

Humphries got the call from Manager Jim Dykes, who was sick in bed a week ago tonight and did not see the Browns make six runs off Humphries in the first three innings that night—and march on to an 11 to 3 victory. As for Ross—poor Buck had been in the dog house for weeks and weeks.

Now neither Johnny nor Buck is suspected of having the temperament to participate in a pennant race as sizzling as this year's—tho it has been hinted the Sox must get something out of the pair if they are to stay in a challenging position.

Tonight's swoon gave the Sox their ninth loss in a dozen meetings with Luke Sewell's cagy crew. And they've been very, very rough when the Sox have tried to shove in second and third string pitching.

They Make Browns Look Good.

The Browns have been last in hitting for several weeks, but on two successive Wednesday nights have looked like all-time bone crushers. Tonight they made two homers—by Moore and Vern Stephens; two triples, by Don Gutteridge and Milt Byrnes, and two doubles, by Moore and George McQuinn.

Going into tonight's game Gutteridge was hitting .214, McQuinn .276, Stephens .277, Moore .267, and Byrnes .278. That ought to give you an idea of the kind of workmanship Humphries and Ross turned in and the Sox trying to rise to a point two games behind the Browns and a half game behind the second place and also fainting Red Sox.

As it is, the Sox are now four games back of the Browns and a game and a half behind Boston. The Sox, tho, are still in third place and tomorrow should have some big league pitching—by Bill Dietrich. The Browns are giving away nothing—they are going to start Jack Kramer.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

IN recent years there has been much agitation for removal of the American league franchise from St. Louis. . . . Officials of the league and of other clubs demurred. "Give the fans a chance," they said, "the Browns may get going and, if they do, surely the fans will support them," or words to that effect. . . . Well, Luke Sewell has had his team at or near the top during most of the first two months of the campaign and attendance for the first 23 home games was, in round numbers, 83,000, an average of 3,600. . . . Furthermore, the Browns won 17 of those games. . . . Bob Bowman, right hand pitcher for the Milwaukee Brewers, signs his pay checks with his left hand. . . . Bill Kats, the Kansas City Blues' outfielder, was born Katsilomete. . . . Charles Tesreau, son of Jeff, the former Giant mound star, is an operative for the F. B. I. . . . His dad has been Dartmouth's baseball coach for 26 years. The Dodgers have employed eight outfielders, seven shortstops, five second basemen, two first basemen, four catchers and 14 pitchers [so-called] since the season opened. . . . The Washington Redskins are nearing their 1943 season ticket sale total of $140,000. . . . Two soldier nines were playing a baseball game in Cheyenne. . . . Came the ninth inning with the score tied and a single was dribbled into left field. . . . Just as the fielder reached over to pick it up a rabbit jumped out of a hole within inches of the ball, startling the man so he kicked the sphere and the runner circled the bases. . . . George Walberg Jr. is a tail gunner on the Italian front. . . . His dad, the former Athletics southpaw, owns a restaurant in Germantown, Pa. . . . The first boxing champion on record seems to have been Theagenes of Thasos, Olympic winner of 450 B. C., who beat 1,406 opponents, most of whom were killed by the cestus, the iron bound boxing glove of that time.

Says Earl Caldwell, the Milwaukee pitcher who has been chucking them for 17 seasons: "If I were looking for a young pitcher, I'd pick a good-sized man, loose, not awkward, who can throw hard. I don't care whether or not he knows how to hold the ball for a curve. You can teach him everything else if he has speed. Remember Bob Feller?" . . . Denton [Cy] Young got the nickname when he was knocking the boards out of wooden backstops for the Canton [O.] club in his kid days. . . . It's a contraction of "Cyclone."

It helped me more than words can tell,
To hear you folks are feeling well.
You want to know how I am, too?

Are We Rationing Words?

In a language as fertile as ours—
And you'll have to admit it's prolific,
How come that the youngsters use only one word

In a language whose ramifications
Can be endlessly stretched and unfurled,
Why must one phrase explain quite every phase,
I'm referring to "out of this world."

I have to admit there are often times
That the going is somewhat thorny,
When the kids describe this, that and everything
With a "Brother, but was it corny!"

When I glance at my old Webster word book
At the waste of good paper I rage,
Why that volume so stolid when most words we "sent solid"
Could be nicely contained on one page?

FREE FOR ALL WINS STAKES IN RECORD TIME

Sir Bim Is Second in Arlington Race.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Free For All, John Marsch's candidate for the juvenile championship of 1944, flashed to victory by five lengths in Arlington's historic $10,000 added Hyde Park stakes yesterday at Washington Park and knocked two-fifths of a second off the track record held jointly by the great Alsab and Flying Streak.

Under the expert guidance of Otto Grohs, it was just a breeze for the son of Questionnaire-Panay as he sprinted to the front at the start. Then, with only Don Ameche's Sir Bim giving him any contention, Free For All drew out by four lengths as they went into the stretch turn. He held this advantage as they swept by the grandstand and added another length before passing the judges.

Sir Bim, with Conn McCreary in the saddle, beat Henry Tikulski's Icangetit by half a length for the place, while C. C. Tanner's Best Effort, coupled with Sir Bim and Wise Admiral in the betting, came in fourth in the field of 10.

Backers Get $3.40 for $2.

Free For All's time for the five and a half furlong sprint was 1:04 3-5 as compared to Alsab and Flying Streak's 1:05. He went to the post the 3 to 5 favorite and was coupled with Alfa as the Marsch entry. The mutuel returns were $3.40, $2.40, and $2.20. Sir Bim paid $4 and $3. Icangetit paid $3.60.

Jockey Grohs, besides admitting he had a very pleasant ride, said the colt runs straighter than any 2 year old he ever has ridden. Trainer Burley Parke declared the bay flash showed him everything that Occupation did as a juvenile, and Occupation was the leading 2 year old money winner of 1942. Even Ben Jones, trainer of the Calumet farm, called Free For All the best colt he has seen this season.

A crowd of 15,000 attended the program and sent the mutuel handle high above that of the corresponding day last year. The wagering totaled $904,571 as compared with $513,991 for the third day of the 1943 meeting.

Roman Sox Triumphs.

Roman Sox, the Brolite farm's sprint star, won the $2,500 Grey Lag purse, the secondary feature. The 4 year old son of Roman Soldier had the little Chicago lad, Tony Skoronski, on his back and finished two lengths in front of William Helis' Salto in a field of five. Traffic Court was third. The winner paid $6.40, $3.20, and $2.40.

Sentiment Sake, a 3 year old daughter of Spanish Play, went over for the long shot players in the fifth race, the $2,000 Dawn Play purse, and returned $160 for a $2 win ticket. The place price was $50 and the show $18. Sentiment Sake, ridden by Willie Morrisey, scored by 2½ lengths over the Calumet farm's Bibelot in a field of 12 3 year old fillies. Mrs. John Marsch's Chance Game was third.

Sky Wolf, J. H. Rouse's even money favorite, took the opening event and Willie Garner rode H. W. Young's Meminisse into the winner's circle in the second half of the daily double, which was worth $42.

NAME 26 FOR STARS, STRIPES

Twenty-six thorobreds, including Pensive and two others from the string of Warren Wright's Calumet farm, have been nominated for the $50,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap, highlight of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's charity week at Washington Park, July 3 to 7.

The 16th running of this nationally important event, in which some of the greatest horses on the American turf have participated, will be held on the Fourth of July.

In addition to Pensive, Calumet has nominated Mar-Kell and Sun Again. William Helis, the New Orleans oil man, will bring back the Irish bred Rounders which won the race last year. W. E. Boeing has named Slide Rule, winner of the 1943 Arlington Classic, and A. J. Sackett has entered Tola Rose, the 7 year old member of the "I Beat Whirlaway club."

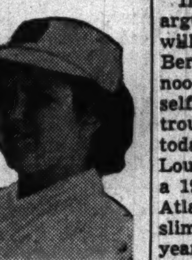
ZAHARIAS AND BERG LEAD WOMEN GOLF STARS INTO QUARTER-FINALS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The greater part of the anticipated proceedings in the 15th annual open tournament of the Women's Western Golf association transpired as expected yesterday at the Park Ridge Country club with the advance of such favorites as Lt. Patty Berg of the marines, the defending champion; Mrs. Mildred [Babe] Didrikson Zaharias, the medalist this year and winner in 1940, and Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia, holder of the W. W. G. A. amateur championship and runnerup for the 1944 medal.



Phyllis Otto.

While Mrs. Zaharias was playing in for a 76, one over par and the best score of the tournament, in the course of a 5 and 4 conquest of Ann Casey, the young school teacher from Mason City, Ia., to pace the upper bracket's progress into this afternoon's four quarter-final matches, Miss Germain, top gal in the lower side, was experiencing considerable trouble. The difficulty was furnished by Mrs. Joanne Barr Tracy of Dallas, daughter of a Texas professional, who forced the Philadelphian to the final carpet for a 2 up decision.

Lt. Berg's Victory Impressive.

Lt. Berg, who has played little or no golf since she entered the service after her victory at Glen Oak last year, demonstrated with the help of several lessons from Jack Drucker, Chicago golf professional, that she still has the touch which brought her one national title and every honor offered by the Western association. The evidence presented by the freckled Minnesotan consisted of a 4 and 3 triumph over black-haired Lois Penn of Des Moines, Ia. Patty was out in 37, one under par, and was only one stroke over Park Ridge's regulation figures for the 15 holes she played.

Haemerle Eliminates Kirby.

In the upper section pairings, beginning at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon, Mrs. Zaharias will meet Mrs. Alfred Becker of Englewood, N. J., first round conqueror of Catherine Fox on Tuesday and 19 hole victor over Claire Doran of Cleveland yesterday.

If Mrs. Zaharias can win today's argument against Mrs. Becker she will be in a fair way to meet Lt. Berg in the first of tomorrow afternoon's semi-finals altho Patty herself knows that she may have her troubles with her quarter-final foe today—Betty Jane Haemerle of St. Louis. Betty Jane yesterday avenged a 1943 defeat by Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., by putting out that slim and able runnerup for last year's crown, 2 and 1. In the performance she played so close to par that she needed only a 5 on the 18th for a 78, but skipped playing the bye hole because of the following Germain-Tracy battle.

Jeanne Cline Advances.

In the lower bracket, Miss Germain will meet Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D., first round winner over Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., who was runnerup to Dot for the 1943 amateur title. Georgia yesterday moved into the final eightsome by defeating Mrs. Lawrence Selz, who won this open championship in 1932 under her maiden name of Jane Weiller. The Dakotan's margin was 3 and 2.

The remainder of the pairings bring together two of the Western's brightest competitors—Phyllis Otto of Omaha and Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill. Phyllis, runnerup for the 1942 open championship, won her second round match from Virginia Nilles of Evanston, 6 and 5, while Jeanne was putting out Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., 4 and 2.

SECOND ROUND RESULTS.

Mrs. George Zaharias, Los Angeles, defeated Ann Casey, Mason City, Ia., 5 and 4.

Mrs. Albert Becker, Englewood, N. J., defeated Claire Doran, Cleveland, 1 up, 19 holes.

Lt. Patty Berg, Minneapolis, defeated Lois Penn, Des Moines, 4 and 3.

Betty Jane Haemerle, St. Louis, defeated Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, 2 and 1.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS.

1:15 p. m.—Mrs. Zaharias vs. Mrs. Becker.
1:30 p. m.—Lt. Berg vs. Miss Haemerle.
1:45 p. m.—Miss Germain vs. Miss Tainter.
2 p. m.—Miss Otto vs. Miss Cline.

LATSIOS LOSES TO ARMSTRONG IN TEN ROUNDS

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Henry Armstrong won a 10 round decision over Nick Latsios, Alexandria, Va., Greek-American boxer, before 8,000 customers tonight in Griffith stadium.

Armstrong weighed 142, three pounds less than Latsios.

Armstrong, Los Angeles Negro who once held three world titles, was the aggressor thruout. Latsios spent most of the time retreating before the bobbing, weaving Henry.

Armstrong several times motioned Latsios to come out and fight, but Nick refused the challenge and kept backing away.

DORIS HART WINS IN COLLEGIATE TENNIS TOURNEY

Elizabeth, N. J., June 21 (AP).—Doris Hart, Betty Rosenquest and Lillian Lopaus, Florida college stars seeded in the first three places of the women's eastern intercollegiate tennis tournament, won easily in today's second-round matches at the Elizabeth town and county club, to move into the quarter finals.

Miss Hart, representing Barry college, Miami, defeated Gloria Rustum, Montclair State Teachers' college, 6-1, 6-1. Miss Rosenquest, representing Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla., won two love sets against Katherine Garrigues of Wheaton college. Miss Lopaus, also of Rollins, eliminated Alice Putnam of Temple university, 6-0, 6-4.

Segura Will Seek N.C.A.A. Tennis Crown

Francisco Segura of the University of Miami will defend his singles title in the National Collegiate tennis meet to be held on the Northwestern university courts in Evanston starting Monday and continuing thruout the week. The entry of Segura, national clay court champion, was received yesterday by Coach Paul Bennett of Northwestern.

Notre Dame Is Favorite.

Notre Dame with an entry of four men is the favorite to capture the team title. The undefeated Irish squad will be represented by Capt. Charles Sampson, Jerry Evert, James Griffin, and Bill Tully. Michigan, recent winner of the Big Ten championship, has entered three men, including Alden Johnson, David Post, and Roy Boucher. Other midwestern schools entered are Northwestern, Chicago, Bradley Tech, Lawrence, De Pauw, Oberlin, and Western Michigan.

Stanley Clark, California Tech star, heads a strong far western entry which includes representatives from College of the Pacific, Gonzaga, George Pepperdine college, Utah, and Utah State. The south is represented by a two man team from the University of Texas. The only eastern entry to date is the United States Naval academy, which is sending two men.

SEGURA MOVES AHEAD.

Francisco Segura, national clay court champion, defeated William Schneebeck of Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-0, and Billy Talbert of Indianapolis beat De Witt Boyd of Middletown, O., 6-0, 6-1. Jack McManis of Forest Hills, N. Y., advanced on a default.

In the fourth round women's singles, Pauline Betz, national women's titlist, eliminated Amy J. Trounstein of Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-1, and Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., beat Nancy Corbett of Chicago, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., defeated Helen Bendel of Cincinnati, 6-1, 6-1, and Mary Arnold of Philadelphia beat Betty Hulbert of Chicago, 7-5, 6-4. Shirley Ann Fry of Akron, O., defeated Bee Mathews of Indianapolis, 6-9, 6-1.

DROP 10TH, 11TH STRAIGHT TO CARDS, 6-4, 7-2

St. Louis Routs Erickson, Passeau.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The title holding Cardinals who are leading the National league and the disconsolate Cubs who are bringing up the rear, now are so widely different in their baseball ways that there is a gap of 19½ laps between them. This interval was arrived at yesterday on the Wrigley field premises when the St. Louis gallopers amused themselves by taking a double header before 16,823 fans. The scores were 6 to 4 and 7 to 2, making the season's count between the two entrants: St. Louis, 11; Chicago, 0, with 11 to go.

As usual the pitching department was responsible for extending the Cards' anti-Cub campaign as well as further delaying the possibility of escape from the cellar. There was Paul Erickson who was brushed off with four runs in the first inning of the opening game, three of them because Dan Litwhiler exploded a homer. The Cards went on from there, doing a little damage later on to Bill Fleming and Paul Derringer. Then they gave Claude Passeau the bounce in the second battle, a potent item in the Mississippian's affairs being a two run homer by Alumnus Ken O'Dea.

Novikoff Hits Homer.

The Cubs piled up 12 hits against George Munger in the first game, enough to make him seek Mort Cooper's relief in the seventh. However, Munger fanned Bill Nicholson twice, once with the bases filled and none out. In the other battle Harry Brecheen southpawed with amazing ease except against the noted Lou Novikoff. The jolly rotund Russian slapped him for a homer and a two bagger but what was Novikoff's luck was Nicholson's grief. Bill fanned two more times, one of these also being with three on and none out.

A pass to Hopp was enough to invite the Cards to their four run party at Erickson's expense in the opening inning of the first game. With one out, Musial also walked and O'Dea singled, Hopp scoring. Erickson felt pretty spry when he fanned Kurowski, but didn't feel so good a moment later when Litwhiler plunked a three run homer into the center field seats.

Cubs Score in Third.

Fleming finished the inning and then remained until the end of the sixth, the only damage being a run in the third on Kurowski's single and Litwhiler's double.

The only headway by the Cubs in six innings was a run in the third on Cavarretta's single, a pass to Dallessandro and a single by Nicholson. Then they rose up unexpectedly after two were out in the seventh, Dallessandro, Nicholson, Pafko, and Johnson nailing Munger for singles, three scoring. Munger departed immediately to make room for Mort Cooper. Then the Cards grabbed back one of the runs in the eighth when Marion singled and Hopp tripled off Derringer.

It just so happened that Johnny

YANKEES DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER WITH SENATORS

New York Wins, 4 to 3, Then Loses, 6 to 4.

New York, June 21 (AP).—The New York Yankees and Washington Senators divided a double header today, the Yankees winning the opener, 4 to 3, and the Senators taking the second game, 6 to 4.

The Yanks came from behind to win the first. Trailing, 3 to 1, in the seventh, Johnny Lindell tripled to score two runners and tie the score. A double by Oscar Grimes and a triple by George Stirnweiss won the game in the eighth.

A five run rally by the Senators in the first inning was enough to decide the second game. Milo Candini of Washington yielded six hits to win his third game of the year.

Hopp, Stan Musial, and Whitey Kurowski opened the second game with singles, thus accounting for the champs' two run kick-off. Novikoff cut this in half with his No. 2 homer to left in the Cubs' first inning. Then the Cubs filled the bases in the third when Hughes singled and Phil Cavarretta and Novikoff walked. All this happened before anybody was retired, and the tying run got home on an infield out.

The Cards' three runs in the fifth were registered quite simply. Brecheen and Hopp led with singles and the former counted on Ray Sanders' long fly. After Musial had grounded into a force play O'Dea arched his homer into the center field bleachers for a 5 to 2 score. The Cards made a slight alteration as soon as Derringer made his second appearance of the day in the eighth. O'Dea walked, went ahead on a wild pitch and over the plate on Litwhiler's double. Sanders doubled and scored the last run in the ninth on Musial's scratch single and an infield out.

CHICAGO HOLDS GOOD POSITION TO RECONVERT

Varied Industries Cushion Shock.

Senate Passes Bill

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Compromise legislation setting up machinery for the termination of war contracts was approved today by the senate. The bill now goes to the house, where speedy acceptance is expected.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

When war production ceases Chicago will be cushioned against the severe effects foreseen for other industrial and manufacturing centers.

As a highly diversified manufacturing and trade center Chicago is in a far better position to absorb the shock of sudden cancellation of war contracts than other centers whose present industrial position is an outgrowth of war conditions.

Data compiled by the business survey department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE emphasizes the area's relatively favorable position as reconversion approaches.

Fast Return in Prospect.

The striking fact that more government money was invested in new plant facilities in Chicago in the war period than in any other city in the country does not dim the city's prospects for a healthy and relatively speedy shift to civilian production.

Between June, 1940, and the end of last year, the war production board allocated 881 million dollars for war plant construction in the Chicago industrial area. This was nearly 200 million dollars more than was allocated to any other area. Next, was New York, with plant investments approaching 700 millions.

By themselves, these figures suggest that Chicago has had a great industrial expansion that could lead to a severe deflation at the end of the war. Actually, however, Chicago ranks 57th among industrial centers in the percentage increase in manufacturing employment in the war period.

Available Labor Important.

Several factors were responsible for the big investment made in Chicago in war plants. An important one was the city's geographical position. Chicago also had the labor force and the manufacturing experience essential to the successful operation of these new plants. Perhaps the most important single factor was the quality and size of the labor force.

Other factors were exceptional transportation facilities and the large number of capable small manufacturers available for subcontracting work.

The statistics compiled by the business survey staff shows that these new plants are manned largely with workers from the city's resident population. The number of women employed in manufacturing in the Chicago area has increased 110 per cent since the middle of 1940, bringing the total number so employed to an indicated 300,000. In the same period the total number of manufacturing workers in the area rose 57 per cent to 723,000. The new male workers were drawn mainly from other fields, from the ranks of the unemployed and from among those not previously counted in the labor force.

City's Labor Diversified.

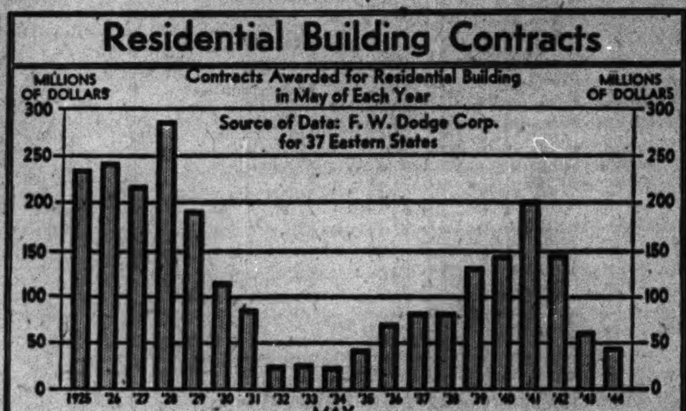
In normal times about one-third of Chicago's labor force is employed in manufacturing and 23 per cent in trade. By contrast 47 per cent of Detroit's workers are employed in manufacturing and 19 per cent in trade.

When the war started the impact was felt most severely in trade industries. The shutting off of production of scores of peace time products and closing down on dealer organizations sent thousands of individuals into manufacturing for employment. When this process is reversed thousands will go back into trade industries which will get the biggest initial stimulus from resumption of civilian production. Its preëminent position as a distribution center will enable Chicago to reabsorb in trade industries the workers released by war factories, it is predicted.

Industrial Base Broader.

Furthermore, it is not expected that the new plants built in Chicago for war purposes will fall into disuse with the passing of war needs. The city's industrial base has been broadened under war conditions with many industries new to the area that will remain as permanent units.

Whereas manufacturing employment has risen only 56 per cent in the Chicago area under war conditions, the growth in such employment in other areas ranges up to more than 700 per cent.



Plan Orderly Disposal of Surplus Food

Surplus war food stocks will not be dumped on the market after the war as they were in 1919, but will be released thru normal trade channels, M. Lee Marshall, war food administration director of distribution, predicted yesterday in an address before the eighth annual conference of the Super Market institute in the Hotel Sherman.

M. Lee Marshall.

He said food stocks will be released systematically so as not to depress normal markets and, wherever advisable, to the original processor or distributor. He asserted, however, that the original processor would be given preference only when he offered a fair price and when he was located in an area where a particular kind of food was scarce.

Exports Will Not Halt.

Marshall warned that all food exports would not cease immediately after the war's end, but assured the group that the WFA would not adopt a "blind stockpiling" program in expectation of the needs of liberated countries.

"Immediately after the war we shall have to help in a tremendous rehabilitation effort," he said. "Feed, seed, and machinery will be the main items needed to attain this goal. But millions of people will have to be fed before they can work.

"When Europe is liberated, all war time reserves for that theater will be available for distribution over there. Our supplies will be coupled with the reserves of our allies.

U. S. Has Large Reserves.

"Blind stock piling for needs that may not develop is not our idea of making the best possible use of the nation's food supply. We want adequate reserves, and we have large reserves. When the axis forces are defeated it will no longer be necessary to maintain war time stock piles, and when the armies demobilize it will not be necessary to maintain military reserves. These reserves and WFA stocks should provide a large share of the food needed to feed people in liberated areas."

Dry Cleaners Get More Carbon Tetrachloride

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Five times as much carbon tetrachloride will be available to dry cleaners each month, beginning in August, as was available in the second quarter of this year, the WPB announced today. WPB said the allocations of 1,086 drums a month will be sufficient for dry cleaners who use that solvent exclusively.

WPB RELEASES MORE IRON AND STEEL FOR GALVANIZED ITEMS

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The WPB today authorized increased use of iron and steel in the manufacture of galvanized ware for civilians. It also removed restrictions on the types of iron and steel that may be used. Increases range from 7½ to 25 per cent above previous allotments.

Eight classes of galvanized ware may be made for civilians. They include garbage cans, pails and buckets, washtubs, storage cans for petroleum, fire shovels, funnels, and coal scuttles.

In making any of these items manufacturers may use as much iron and steel as they did in the year ended June 30, 1941. Authorizations to exceed quotas may be granted to fill orders for export or for the national housing agency.

WHEAT MARKET DECLINES AFTER EARLY ADVANCE

After a showing of firmness, wheat futures declined as much as 2 cents a bushel from early high points on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, and remained near the bottom thru most of the session. At the close wheat was down ⅜ to 1⅝ cents, oats 1 to 1⅛, rye 1⅝ to 1⅞, and barley ⅜ to 1. Legislative news had a bearish effect on the market.

Outside buying of rye kept the market firm at the start, but prices quickly turned lower under selling led by Chicago traders.

CORN FREEZE TO END.

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The war food administration will not extend beyond Friday's original expiration date an order freezing sales of corn in the midwest except to the government for war products and live stock feeders with a government purchase permit. Corn supplies were reported adequate.

AMER. UTILITIES ORDERED BY SEC TO RECAPITALIZE

Philadelphia, Pa., June 21 (AP).—American Utilities Service corporation today was ordered by the securities and exchange commission to recapitalize into a single class of new common stock and to dispose of Wisconsin Southern Gas company and Minnesota Utilities company, two of its eight subsidiaries.

The order disapproved American's voluntary reclassification plan, which called for the distribution of all the new stock to preferred holders. The company was granted 30 days in which to amend the plan to give 15 per cent of the issue to common holders. The other 85 per cent will go to the preferred.

The required recapitalization is designed to equalize voting power and simplify the company's capital structure, the commission's opinion said. Holders of the new common will get the right to elect a representative board.

CONGRESS SENDS OPA EXTENSION TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—Congress tossed on President Roosevelt's desk today legislation to prolong war time price, wage, and rent controls, breaking a legislative deadlock that menaced plans for adjournment this week-end. Republicans immediately began packing their luggage—destination Chicago.

A compromise, the price legislation extends war time economic controls for one year, to June 30, 1945. Administration men said it was fairly satisfactory and Democratic leaders predicted Mr. Roosevelt would sign it altho he asked for reenactment of the existing law without major change.

U. S. Fidelity Guaranty Votes 25c Extra Dividend

Directors of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company declared an extra dividend of 25 cents yesterday along with the regular 25 cent common dividend.

Stock Average Off First Time in Two Weeks

New York, June 21 (AP).—The stock market moved irregularly lower today after attempting to resume its climb and averages declined for the first time in two weeks. Transactions totaled 1,515,840 shares.

A burst of buying among liquor shares, stimulated by the decision to permit a temporary resumption of whisky making, plus an early demand for steels, gave forenoon proceedings a mixed appearance. Trends turned definitely downward later, but selling lacked urgency and was confined chiefly to profit cashing.

Motor Issues Are Active.

Losses were mostly fractional, altho a few leading stocks slipped 1 to more than 3 points on a few sales. Park & Tilford was a wider loser, dropping 7¼. Du Pont lost 3⅛, Westinghouse Electric 1¼, and Dow Chemical 2½.

Blocks of 1,000 and 15,000 shares of Graham-Paige kept the tape busy in the last few minutes. It closed at 2⅜, up ⅛ at a new 1944 high. Other motors also were active, with Hupp and Willys-Overland ahead and Chrysler, General Motors, and Packard lagging.

The Associated Press 60 stock average declined 0.4 point from the year's high of 55.6, which was set Monday and duplicated Tuesday.

BOND PRICES LOWER.

New York, June 21 (AP).—The bond market fell into a backward drift today after a feeble effort to move ahead early in the session. Losses of fractions generally and in some cases a point or so were in the majority at the close, altho there were a number of firmly resistant issues in the industrial and utility list. Sales of $8,251,100 compared with $8,177,400 on Tuesday.

A rather persistent investment demand was maintained for the higher priced bonds. Consumers Power 3¼s sold at 109½, Great Northern 4½s at 106⅛, Louisville & Nashville 5s at 107, and National Distillers 3½s at 104⅞. There were many others in this class moving a little higher.

CHICAGO FAVORITES RISE.

Prices were uneven on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, altho most active issues closed higher. Miller & Hart led the list in volume and closed up ¼ at 3⅛, a new 1944 high. Hupp Motor was nearly a point higher at 4, also a new high. Ten others sold at top prices for this year.

G. M. PREPARING PLANS FOR WPB ON AUTO OUTPUT

Newark, N. J., June 21 (AP).—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., board chairman of General Motors corporation, said today he believed plans being prepared by his company for the WPB would result in returning "very quickly" to civilian production of 2 million cars a year.

"If we are slow in converting from war to peace, if we fumble the job, it may be a tremendous influence on the pattern of the economy for a long time to come," he told guests at a meeting of the New Jersey state chamber of commerce.

Sloan predicted a "tremendous aggregation of purchasing power" after the war and declared avoiding inflation would be a more serious problem than producing goods. He said the automotive industry expected possible sales of 6 million cars for several years after the war.

AVERAGE GAINS 5 CENTS AS HOG RECEIPTS TAPER

The average price of hogs made a 5 cents gain at the Chicago stock yards yesterday, the first upturn in four weeks, as volume tapered off more at many packing centers. Altho about 15,000 hogs were unsold at the close, members of the trade believed the general situation was improved.

After a steady opening the market for steers turned weak to lower. Many of the light cattle sold off 25 cents after noon. The $17.60 top made early equaled the highest sale since May, 1943, and was only 40 cents under the highest June price on record.

Quicksilver Sells Under $100 as Supplies Mount

New York, June 21 (AP).—For the first time since the war began quicksilver prices today broke below $100 for a 76 pound flask. A small lot was reported sold for $98 a flask and round lots of 100 flasks or more could be bought at $97, contrasted with war time high prices of $196. Scarcity of the metal was overcome late last year.

SUDDEN PLANE ORDER SHIFTS JOLT INDUSTRY

Advance Notice of Changes Sought.

BY FRANK STURDY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—Industrial upsets caused by changes in army and navy production schedules and "cutbacks" in orders are a source of worry in the aviation industry, altho no drastic effect upon employment is expected until early next year.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding the army air forces, recently announced that the air forces would be at full plane strength by the end of this month. Large numbers of fighters and medium and heavy bombers are distributed thruout the country awaiting assignment to combat areas.

Some Models Supplanted.

Some of the current models will be supplanted by improved types. Others will be restricted to the replacement level. Still others already are on a reduced production schedule because of changing military requirements. Some are in heavier demand, notably fighter planes with long range for use principally against the Japs. Another production factor is that losses have been lower than expected.

Hoping to balance factory employment and prevent strikes, the army, navy, and industry are trying to develop a systematic program of change-overs to new models. They have one advantage in that tho the number of planes in the army budget for 1945 is reduced, there will be emphasis on heavy bombers. Thus, the total weight of planes produced probably will be as high as in 1944.

Both the army and the navy are criticized by the manufacturers for having failed in the past to tell them long enough in advance about cutback orders, with the result that trouble arose with employes, many of whom switched jobs. That left some manufacturers with the problem of short personnel after they found new contracts.

Lose Employes Thru Secrecy.

A critical problem exists in big plants engaged in converting production lines to new bomber and fighter types. The process takes months of careful planning, as it affects thousands of subcontractors and suppliers and in the interval the lines produce few planes. In the majority of such cases the new model promises to require the labor of all or most of the employes, but they cannot be told of this prospect because of war regulations governing secret types. In the slack period the employer faces a pay roll of idle workers, or stands to lose large numbers to other factories.

Many of these difficulties can be eliminated if the war production board and army and navy officials coöperate, industry spokesmen assert. This has not been the rule, it is said. Critics mention an order recently issued to a manufacturer, without previous warning, to cease production and put 14,000 employes on a "stand-by" basis for two months.

The program desired by the industry would provide five months' notice of drastic cutback orders.

As the new Boeing plane, the Super Fortress bomber, is stepped up in production in the five plants assigned to it, the output of the B-24 Liberator and B-17 Flying Fortress is expected to be cut. Boeing already has announced that its Seattle plants will drop all B-17 production to concentrate on the B-29.

Marauder to Be Dropped.

Another important change will take place in the medium bomber division where the B-25 Mitchell will be cut back substantially and the B-26 Marauder dropped entirely. These two will be supplanted by the new Douglas medium bomber, called the A-26 Invader.

The P-51 Mustang and the P-38 Lightning are two army fighters expected to survive the impending cutbacks.

From Jan. 1 to April 30 of this year the country's total plane production was 35,000. Other production figures:

Year.	Planes.	Total wt.
1941	19,290	85,700,000
1942	47,873	292,600,000
1943	85,946	743,000,000

Training plane contracts were ordered terminated some months ago. The largest cutbacks on combat types are expected early in 1945.

Mayor Indicates Transit Plan Will Receive Government Aid

Mayor Kelly returned yesterday from Washington, D. C., and indicated confidence that conversations there with officials would bring federal support for his plan to unify the Chicago Surface Lines and the elevated system under municipal ownership.

The mayor disclosed also that he had won promises from officials of the municipalities section of the war production board that priority regulations will be relaxed to build a new terminal building at Chicago airport.

Talks to "Potent Figures."

He said he had "talked traction to potent figures," and this caused belief he had presented unification data to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the federal works agency, altho he did not specifically mention either.

The mayor said also there was a strong possibility that the surface lines investors and the city would soon agree on a sale price for the street car properties. The municipal ownership ordinance, still in rough draft form, is to be presented to the council committee on local transportation this afternoon and he said he would attend the meeting.

Both the city and investors hope by a showing of effort to dissuade Federal Judge Igoe from carrying out a threat to take the surface lines out of equity receivership, where they have been for 17 years, and throw them into bankruptcy.

View of Judge Igoe.

Judge Igoe has said he is not opposed to municipal ownership, but believes attempts should be continued to reorganize and unify the traction systems under private ownership so that there will be a program to follow if the municipal ownership plan is defeated at public referendum.

The proposed airport terminal building is to be erected at the northeast corner of the field with funds supplied by eight major air lines using the airport. Title will go to the city which will waive rent and landing fees until the debt is cleared. The building is to cost $950,000 to $1,250,000.

DEMANDS U. S. COME FIRST IN SURPLUS SALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The nation's best interests from both the economic and business points of view should be given first consideration in the sale after the war of surplus property accumulated abroad, a business advisory committee recommended today.

Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley made public the committee's preliminary report which urged these goods be kept out of the country and that the sale be handled so as to prevent avoidable financial loss to the government.

Advises Early Study.

The committee of four advised that a staff be assembled immediately to study the problems of handling the foreign disposal of surplus property. It said that, altho it is impossible to obtain information now as to the nature and location of the surpluses, it would be unwise to postpone planning. The framework of policy and organization should be determined by the time large quantities of goods are available for sale, the committee said.

Members of the committee are J. A. Donaldson, vice president and treasurer of Butler Brothers, Chicago; H. D. Bennett, president of the Toledo Scale company, Toledo, O.; T. V. Houser, vice president in charge of merchandise, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago; and Clark Minor, president of International General Electric company, New York.

Suggestions of Committee.

The committee made these observations and suggestions:

1. Surplus property must be treated as a valuable national asset and must be conserved and made to yield for the nation the largest possible benefits.

2. Surpluses must be sold with regard for the interests of business within the United States. Goods must not be permitted to overhang the market and discourage domestic producers any longer than is necessary for wise disposal.

3. Decisions to sell abroad must be made after proper consideration of the effect of these sales on this country's future export markets. It should be the policy to prevent the reëntry into the United States of surplus property sold abroad or of surplus goods sold in the United States on condition that they be exported.

4. Disposal of surpluses abroad should be effected thru a government corporation.

able, but the property the military services abroad have procured and some of which will be sold as surplus includes food, clothing; baking, laundry, and shoe repair equipment; dental and medical supplies, typewriters; raw materials such as steel, copper and oil; industrial equipment such as machine shops; transport facilities including airplanes, airports, repair depots; railroad and harbor equipment, warehouses, trucks, and building equipment.

The committee said that property is likely to be declared surplus in England, France, Norway, the Mediterranean countries, Burma, India, the East Indies, South America, and the South Pacific. It said 10 or 15 major disposal areas or zones thruout the world may have to be organized.

U. S. Interests Come First.

After asserting that sales abroad must accord with the foreign policy of the United States, the committee said:

"We recognize the inevitability of conflict between the economic interests of the United States and the foreign countries in the sale of surplus property. The economic and business interests of the United States should predominate over the economic and business interests of foreign countries."

In the interest of United States business, surpluses should be sold as speedily as practicable so as not to retard domestic production, but they should not be disposed of in such haste as to throw avoidable financial losses upon the government. It said all but the largest stock abroad should be sold within two years of the time they are declared surplus.

The government should be prepared, when the law permits, to sell on credit if this will result in profitable disposal of goods.

LANDLORD GETS U. S. JAIL TERM IN RENT PERJURY

A landlord and his daughter were sentenced to jail terms for contempt of court for perjury, and triple damages for rent overcharges were assessed against the landlord yesterday in the first case of its kind in the federal District court here.

The landlord is Otto Hough Willard, 50, a fireman for the Chicago board of education for 15 years, who owns a six-flat building at 3431-33 Congress st., where he lives. A suit for triple damages under the federal rent control act was filed against him by three tenants, Mrs. Margaret Dwyer, Edward Daker, and Mrs. Minnie Danna.

$10 Excess Rent Cited.

The tenants alleged that Willard required them to pay $50 a month rent for their apartments, beginning Sept. 1, 1942, while previous tenants paid only $40 a month. They asked for triple damages for 22 months, plus $150 attorneys' fees.

Testimony in the case was completed Tuesday before Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw. The principal witness for the plaintiffs was George Schwartz, a handwriting examiner, who testified that leases offered in evidence by Willard were not genuine and that the signatures of previous tenants had been forged.

Willard's daughter, Mrs. Laura Miller, 24, testifying in behalf of her father, said she saw the purported leases being signed by the previous tenants.

$2,430 Judgment Given.

Judge Shaw heard arguments in the case yesterday and then entered judgment for the full amount of the plaintiff's claims, totaling $2,430. Then, after a conference with Assistant United States Atty. William J. McCormack, he sentenced Willard to 60 days in the county jail for contempt of court. Willard's daughter was sentenced to 30 days on the same charge.

On motion of defense attorneys, Willard was granted a stay until Aug. 1, and his bond set at $1,000.

WOMAN WHO BEGGED RIDE CHARGED WITH EXTORTION ATTEMPT

Miss Muriel Beier, 30, of 2416 Byron st., who admitted having been arrested eight times on larceny charges, thumbed a ride yesterday from Albert Hanson, 46, of 722 N. Laramie av., salesman for a packing house. After getting into his automobile, Hanson told the police, she said she was a policewoman and she would arrest him unless he paid $75. When he said no, she said she was a reporter for THE TRIBUNE. Hanson drove her to the Sheffield av. police station where she was charged with attempted extortion by threats and with impersonating a police officer. She will be arraigned in the Felony court tomorrow.

WPB CLASSIFIES CIVILIAN ITEMS FOR PRODUCTION

Washington, D. C., June 21 (AP).—The war production board today released a list of hundreds of essential civilian products which manufacturers will be authorized to produce first as restrictions on materials are lifted.

In three parts, the list is made up of items in acute shortage, serious shortage, and goods essential but in relatively better supply.

On the list of goods of which there is an acute shortage are such products as mechanical refrigerators, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, electric ranges, and hairpins and bobby pins.

STRIKE DELAYS WORK ON STEEL ORDER FOR NAVY

Ninety CIO workers went on a wildcat strike yesterday at the sheet and tin mill of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation in Gary. Last night a company spokesman charged that they struck rather than work four hours overtime to meet a rush order for the navy "needed in the great war offensive."

Later the strikers heeded an appeal by Alfred Rebollo, an international representative of the United Steelworkers, CIO, and voted to return to work today. However, said the company agent, by refusing to work four hours overtime, they had cost the mill one and one-fourth days' production, and had delayed the navy's emergency order.

Ask for Notification.

The strike began at 1:30 p. m. when 45 hookers, cranemen, and tractor operators walked out, and were followed by 45 others in the same categories on the 4 p. m. shift. The 90 man strike, unauthorized by CIO chiefs, threw 175 nonstriking operators out of work, and cost an estimated production loss of perhaps 2,000 tons of ship plates.

Demand Three Shifts.

Because of a labor shortage and volume of work, the mill does not work three shifts of eight hours each daily in all departments. The hookers, cranemen, and tractors, however, have been demanding a three shift schedule. Without a full 24 hour schedule, it has been necessary for some of the men to work overtime, at time and a half pay.

Such an occasion arose yesterday. The men were notified that a navy rush order for landing craft material had to be filled. Their answer was the strike.

POLICE CHIEF FIRED BY LYONS VILLAGE BOARD

Joseph C. Duffek, chief of police of Lyons for the last three years and a Democratic precinct captain in the village, was discharged from the police force yesterday by the village board. The action was taken after Chief John McGinnis of the county highway police complained to Theofil Bulat, village president, that Duffek had used abusive language against highway police who had helped clear up an accident in the suburb. Chief McGinnis said Duffek told the highway police to stay out of his town. McGinnis also reported to the village board that Duffek had served a prison term for burglary. He said the crime was committed in 1928, when Duffek was a policeman in La Grange.
